. . . Portuguese Army Chief Dismissed

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Military jets made low swoops over Lisbon Thursday and government commandos surrounded the former headquarters of radical military security chief Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho.

The government dismissed army chief of staff Carlos Fabiao, held responsible by Premier Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo for spreading leftist indiscipline in the ranks.

A presidential anouncement late Thursday night said Fabiao was replaced by Col. Ramalho Eanes — promoted to general — who is known to have planned the operations by loyalist troops that crushed a revolt Tuesday by dissident leftist paratroopers.

The actions apparently were intended to prove loyalist military forces were in firm martial law control after crushing the uprising.

One of Carvalho's lieutenants said by telephone: "I don't know if we are being made prisoner or not."

Military sources said Carvalho, stripped of his command and demoted to major, had left Lisbon "for his own safety" after being given an open-ended furlough. Later, however, another source said Carvalho had not left Lisbon and was at home.

A 25-year-old woman was killed near the capital when she disobeyed an order to stop at a check-point during the midnight-to-6 a.m. curfew.

Military authorities who imposed martial law on Lisbon following the uprising published a list of 51 officers and noncoms imprisoned in an army stockade in Oporto, 175 miles north of Lisbon. Several other well-known officers were reported to have gone into hiding.

Among them was Maj. Jose Costa Martins, a former Labor minister and a man described by associates as a pro-Communist.

Wall posters put up by a Maoist group in Lisbon accused Costa Martins of fleeing with $520,000. The Maoists didn't say whose money it was.

A senior official disclosed that the Portuguese government had evidence the plotting involved many officers and civilian activists not yet arrested.

"The coup was much more profound than anyone could have supposed. Many people were involved," the official said. "We have indications of who was involved and which political forces were behind them, not only individuals but organizations. This has to be told to the people."

Socialist leader Mario Soares has accused the Communists of prime responsibility for the uprising, saying it was a carbon copy of the Communist takeover of Prague in 1948.

The Oporto newspaper Jornal de Noticias quoted what it said was a reliable military source that a "revolutionary government" had been named in advance and would have taken over as soon as the military putsch succeeded.

The Communist Party, meanwhile, issued an appeal for negotiations to settle the crisis.

Sinatra Request: Submachineguns

Jerusalem (UPI) — Visiting Singer Frank Sinatra has asked Israel for two Uzi sub machineguns that he can add to his private collection of weapons, a city hall spokesman said.

The spokesman, Yossi Dovra, said Sinatra asked city authorities to arrange with the military to get the Israeli-made submachineguns for him.

Worried Employers Turning To Lie Detector

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

Comb your hair, straighten your clothes and practice your smile, job hunters. And if you've got any skeletons in your closet, prepare to have them rattled a bit.

There may be a lie detector in your future — and impressing it could be as important as impressing the personnel manager.

With employe-connected thefts cutting into profits, businesses nationwide are using polygraphs (lie detectors) to verify job applications and track down thefts by employes. A local firm, Security Services, Inc., of 111 S. 25th, has run polygraph tests for 60-70 Lincoln area firms, company president Arthur Aksamit said.

The practice has sparked controversy, pitting the employer's right to protect his business against the employe's right to privacy:

—One non-local firm, headed for bankruptcy because of thefts, had its 400 employes tested. The polygraph indicated that 87% had stolen from the company. In tests a year later, only 3% failed, saving the company an estimated $200,000 in the thefts.

—Employes at a Washington, D.C., bookstore struck last summer rather than take polygraph tests. As a result, two bills were introduced to the District of Columbia city council seeking a ban on mandatory polygraph exams.

Reactions Mearured

The polygraph is a highly sensitive electronic instrument capable of measuring involuntary physical reactions assumed to occur when a person lies.

"We've done business with and for just about every kind of business: law enforcement agencies, banks, department stores, nightclubs, jewelry stores, government agencies and gas stations," Aksamit said.

"Today there's no such thing as a conscience. The only conscience is getting caught."

Aksamit said some firms require preemployment polygraph tests, others test their employes periodically and others use the polygraph only when they have a theft probem.

Firms Kept Secret

He refused to name any of the firms he serves, saying they "would not appreciate it" and "certain people would like nothering better than to take a cut at the profession (lie detection)."

All local polygraph-using businesses contacted referred questions to their home offices or security divisions.

For 10 years, Zales Jewelers has given polygraph tests to employes once a year and to job applicants under final consideration "with almost no problems at all," a Dallas, Texas, spokesman said.

Such testing is voluntary, he said, and no one is fired or not hired solely for failing or refusing to take a polygraph test.

"The final decision is left to the manager," he said.

A pre-employment polygraph test in Dallas costs about $25 per person, he said, "and it's well worth it to a bank, for instance, to get information on, say, a teller who has embezzled in the past.

"The courts kid of handcuff you as to what you can and cannot ask (a job applicant), but the employer still has the right to verify the honesty of his people."

Stealing Big Problem

Of nearly $4 billion in thefts from American companies each year, 60-75% is employe-related, according to insurance companies and security firms. The Small Business Administration says half of the small companies that fold each year do so because of theft.

Ron Daniels, president of Des Moines-based Ardan Jewelers and Distributors, said that company gives voluntary polygarph exams once a year to employes "from myself on down." No pre-employment tests are given, he said.

Daniels said decisions to hire or fire are not based solely on polygraph tests.

However, job applicants who indicate objections to taking polygraph tests are asked to "discuss why they don't want to take it," he said.

Brandeis only uses the polygraph for specific theft problems, according to Ray Powers of the Brandeis security division in Omaha. He said that system, in operation six or seven years, is "very effective" in stopping employe-related thefts.

When they are hired, Brandeis employes sign a statement obliging them to take polygraph tests at the company's request, he said, but signing the statement is voluntary.

The Lincoln Police Department, the Lincoln Fire Department, the Lancaster County sheriff's office and the State Patrol use the polygraph to confirm their recruits' applications.

Use of polygraphs by businesses is under attack by groups concerned about employe rights.

The New Jersey Supreme Court has ruled that a suggestion or request that employes take polygraph tests represents coercion. The American Polygraph Association may appeal.

Thirteen states and some cities have laws governing the polygraph, most prohibiting its involuntary use. Two bills before Congress would outlaw all polygraph tests.

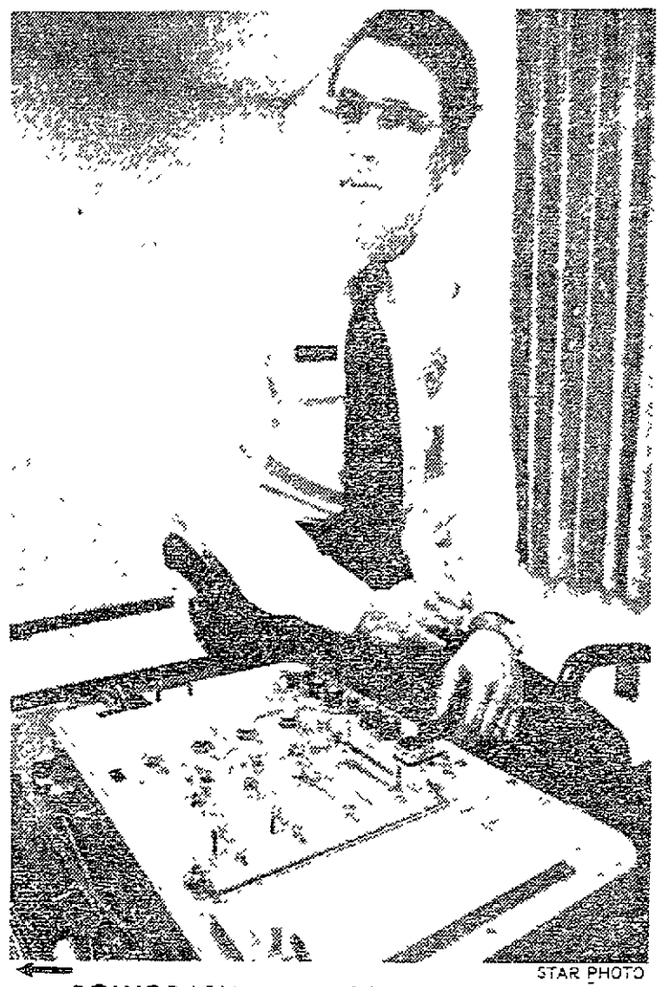

Involuntary polygraph tests are opposed by the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) and some labor unions as a violation of the right to privacy and Fifth Amendment protections against self-incrimination.

Nebraska ACLU spokeswoman Barbara Gaither said the group opposes polygraph tests as a condition of employment.

In other states, ACLU affiliates have successfully supported legislation banning the use of polygraphs by employers.

Locally, one complaint a month, sometimes from a group of employes, is received concerning the use of polygraphs by employers, the spokeswoman said.

"Most of the complaints come from people after employment, not at the time of employment. We need someone who objects at the time of employment to challenge it (in the courts)," she said.

Task Forces Probe Police Policy Gripes

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

With Police Chief George Hansen has come the era of the task force in Lincoln Police Department affairs.

Hansen is using task forces to get input from all levels of the department, particularly the lower ranks that are out in the field, on certain policy matters.

"Who recognizes the problems an officer has more than the guy who works the street," Hansen asked rhetorically.

Three task forces have already completed their studies. As a result some officers are growing moustaches, meter maids are now wearing slacks in cold weath and a departmental newspaper will soon be coming off the presses.

The relaxing of the long-standing policy against moustaches came from the task force on grooming, which, with that exception, put out fairly strict recommendations.

The moustaches themselves cannot drop below the lip line. Hair cannot cover the ear or curl over the collar.

A few changes in the wearing apparel of meter maids were recommended by a task force on that subject. In addition to recommending that the meter maids be allowed to wear slacks, the task force recommended that meter maids be allowed to wear headgear that covered their ears.

The idea of putting out a departmental newspaper was already being considered before he arrived, Hansen said.

Three task forces are now studying the department's weaponry and ammunition, uniforms, and the possibility of establishing a "neighborhood resource" officer program.

Study by the task force on weaponry and ammunition includes writing to departments across the country and collecting studies, including many on the use of hollow-point bullets, which have aroused controversy in some quarters, Hansen said.

The task force on the "neighborhood resource officer" program is the only one that has civilians working with it, Hansen said.

The task force is studying the possibility of assigning officers to neighborhoods to make personal contact with residents to learn their concerns and get ideas on how the department can serve them.

The involvement of the rank-and-file officer in the task forces is meeting with approval from officers, according to Jim Hill, president of the Lincoln Police Union.

"It's the first opportunity they've had to become involved in decision that affect their working conditions," Hill said.

Conservation Is Stressed By Fuel Allocation Office

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Now entering its third winter, the State Fuel Allocation Office is turning its emphasis toward conservation of fuel, according to its chief George Dworak.

Dworak said his office has three applications in the grant mill dealing with encouraging more efficient use of fuels.

For one, Dworak is seeking $75,000 in federal funds to fund a scanning program for the 118 Nebraska communities having 1,000 or more people.

Mapped From Air

The project would be similar to one conducted by Cengas in Lincoln last winter. By using special sensors, a low-flying plane was able to detect the level of heat loss from Lincoln homes.

The data was then mapped out to reveal homes having poor insultation. Residents were able to find out how their home or business fared and were advised about possible corrective steps.

Dworak called that "a good, innovative program" which should be extended statewide. Dworak said he heard that 20,000 people visited Cengas offices in connection with the survey.

Such a program would be conducted in cooperation with local utilities, he said.

A second great proposal, requested jointly by Kansas and Nebraska, seeks $250,000 to study possible ways to conserve fuel used in agriculture.

The study, he said, would be conducted through the University of Nebraska's Agricultural Extension Division.

Among the things such a study would consider are off-peak hour use of electric irrigation equipment, he said.

"We should be receiving the word on this one pretty soon," Dworak commented.

The Fuel Allocation Office is also eyeing a statewide program to help businesses conserve power and fuel, Dwoark said. He is seeking $30,000 for this project.

It would be identical to one initiated in Lincoln last winter. In that project, a group of engineering students examined businesses and advised owners about ways to conserve fuel.

Dworak hopes to involve 30 engineering students in the project.

Regarding this winter's fuel picture in Nebraska, Dworak said the supply is "good."

As evidence, he pointed to the fact that the office thus far has received only about half as many requests for help in locating fuel.

Grain Was Dry

The situation has been aided by an extended Indian summer as well as dry conditions which reduced the amount of fuel needed for grain drying.

Dwoark noted that eight communities with municipal power plants have still not been interconnected into the state power grid. Should a fuel shortage develop this winter, those communities could find themselves without power.

"They're considering it now," Dworak said. Prodding them into action is the rise in diesel fuel prices.

Where once the state had trouble getting all fuel distributers to report their inventories, all firms are now providing periodic reports, he said.

Despite the stable picture, Dworak said a lot will depend on how severe the winter is.

U.S. Called 'Poorest' At Conserving Energy

Paris (UPI) — The International Energy Agency said Thursday the United States is doing less than any other industrialized Western nation to save energy.

The IEA, set up at Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's request a year ago to deal with the energy crisis, gave America the poorest rating among 17 of the West's leading industrialized states.

"The American program must overcome an extremely high per capita historical energy consumption pattern and as such must be comprehensive and strong to be effective," an IEA report said. "At the present time, it is neither."

The agency noted a virtual lack of enforced energy conservation measures in the United States.

"The current program depends almost entirely on a voluntary programs, research and development and public education," it said.

IEA officials said publication of the critical assessment may strengthen the hands of congressmen and administration officials urging tougher conservation measures.

The report said the Ford administration has proposed a number of conservation steps, but the measures provided "few structural changes necessary if the U.S. is to reduce consumption substantially in the long term."

"Congress is not moving rapidly to adopt the program or an equally effective one at this time," the agency said.

It said the United States, unlike other IEA members, has "no standards, no incentives, almost no taxes" to cut back energy consumption. It gave also bad marks to Canada, Switzerland and Austria.

Thousands of Spaniards cheered the new king as he rode from the Mass at Los Jeronimos Church to the National Palace where he reviewed 17 military units and received 81 foreign delegations including three presidents of Common Market countries in ceremonies marking the beginning of his rule

In a banquet toast Juan Carlos said "In this new era Spain wishes to maintain the tightest relations with all countries for the sake of peace and a better understanding among all nations

Vice President Nelson A Rockefeller attended the reception by Juan Carlos and his wife Queen Sofia of Greece, at the palace then departed for home Much of Europe s royalty turned out, including Monaco s Prince Rainier and Princess Grace the Duke of Edinburgh, whose wife, Queen Elizabeth II is second cousin to Juan Carlos and Sweden s Prince Bertil

Juan Carlos looking fatigued by the round of activities following Franco s death Nov 20 had a private breakfast with French President Valery Giscard d Estaing who told newsmen 'Spain is part of Europe and said he wished "it may participate with us in the great task of our time that of the European Political Union

President Walter Scheel of West Germany and President Earbhal Odalaigh of Ireland were on hand to underscore Spain's improved chances for entering the European community

Outside Carabanchel prison, a few miles from the military review, police armed with clubs and tear gas battled an estimated 3 000 demonstrators Labor sources said 50 persons were arrested, including actresses Aurora Bautista and Maria Luisa San Jose, Spain's movie sex queen It was not known how many were injured

The crowd protested that Juan Carlos' first try at liberalization — general amnesty for an estimated 15,000 prisoners — did not cover those serving long terms for political offenses They also demanded release of underground labor leader Marcelino Camacho, serving 12 years for illegal association and illegal propaganda

Madrid Press Association sources said it was considering a general strike to protest arrests of five journalists, including two members of an American television crew A CBS spokesman said Cyril Bliss and John Archer British citizens, were released after an hour, but police held their film

The Information Ministry announced it was seizing the nation s leading political weekly 'Cambio 16, because it ran an article speculating on Juan Carlos' liberalization plans

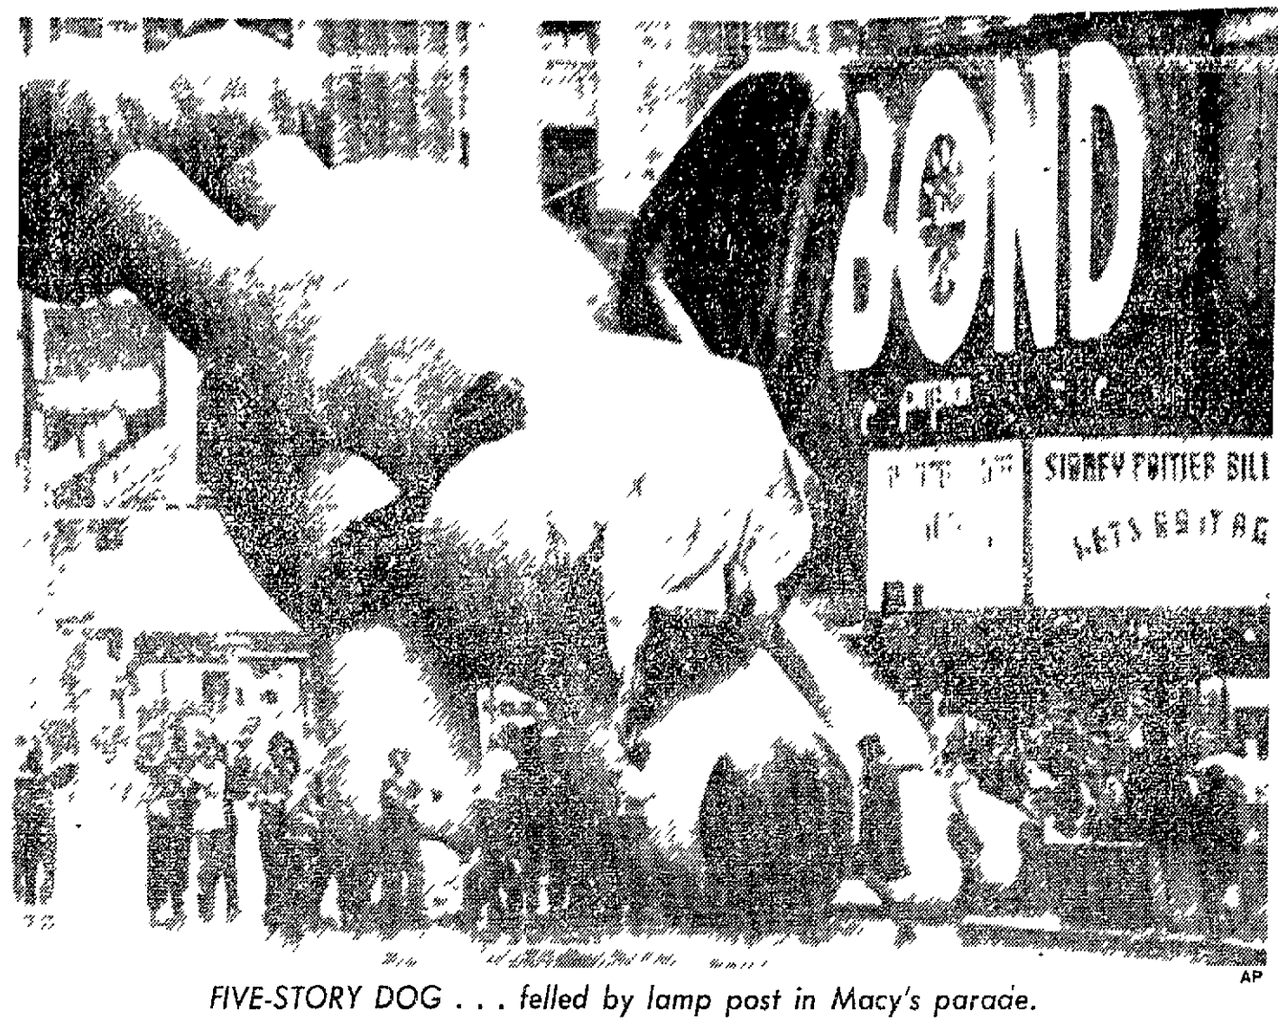

The most significant development of the day, however, came from the Roman Catholic church s chief political voice, Vicente Cardinal Enriquey Tarancon, the archbishop of Madrid At the high mass in Los Jeronimos Church he asked the king for "free and active participation by citizens in the life of the nation "

Speaking one week after the death of Gen Francisco Franco, Spain s autocratic leader who prohibited all political activity during his 36 years of rule, Cardinal Tarancon urged the king to be a man "for all Spaniards, full of love for Spain and without privilegse of any sort "

The cardinal told the assembled high Spanish officials and foreign dignitaries that the church "is only demanding freedom

The prelate, often a target of rightists who enjoyed influence and privilege under Franco added "I am asking that if there are any privileges they are given only to the poor, those who nobody seems to love "

In another signal that Franco's rules would continue to be enforced, the Information Ministry prohibited foreign correspondents from meeting with Socialist leader Felipe Gonzalez, an outspoken critic of the king s amnesty The correspondents responded by resigning from the government-operated Press Club

FIVE-STORY DOG . . . felled by lamp post in Macy's parade.

Underdog Meets Ignoble Fate In Rain

Underdog, the five-story dog that needs 80,000 cubic feet of helium to stay inflated, got hit in the snoot by a lamp post during Macy s Thanksgiving Day parade in New York on Thursday and collapsed

The incident was witnessed by thousands of New Yorkers who braved gusty winds and more than a half-inch of rain in two hours to watch the 49th annual parade

Underdog, who met his ignoble fate in the Times Square area was one of nine giant balloons in the parade There also were 44 floats, 13 bands and, at the end of the line of march, Santa Claus

Who cares about the rain? It s fun not going to school and knowing that Christmas is not far away ' said Sandy Robinson, 10 who was perched on her father s shoulders from time to time

Elsewhere around the nation there was good news and bad news during the holiday

The bad news so to speak, came from Ellen Parham, a home economics professor at Northern Illinois University

The average dinner of three slices of turkey, a half-cup of dressing, a quarter-cup of gravy, a moderate scoop of potatoes, a half-cup of baked squash, a dab of cranberry sauce, two buttered rolls, pumpkin pie and whipped cream, two glasses of wine and black coffee all comes to about 1 719 calories, or three-fourths of an average adult s daily need

It may be nutritious, but it s plenty fattening, ' she said

On the brighter side, a Colorado man visiting his mother in Minneapolis thought he had been ripped off when he went out to his car

My checkbook, tapes and other things were spread all over the car, ' said Wes Pibcock, Glenwood Springs, Colo "My citizen s band radio was on the front seat with its wires cut '

He said he couldn t figure out what had happened until he found an envelope containing a note and $10

To whom it may concern, ' the note read "After thinking about what I had done, I decided to return this equipment I hope this money will cover the damages I caused to your radio "

Pibcock said he was shocked "I was absolutely flabbergasted '

He figures the would-be thief took the radio home, thought about his deed and changed his mind

'He probably feels much better today, just like I do " Pibcock said "It s kind of nice on Thanksgiving

At Ft Chaffee, Ark , it was the first Thanksgiving for the more than 6,200 Vietnamese refugees, but that wasn t the only cause for excitement around relocation camp

'They were so excited about the snow, said Phyllis Young of the State Department "That s all they wanted to talk about Some described it as a phenomenon The children learned to make snowmen and snowballs

About two inches of snow fell Wednesday in the Ft Chaffee area which was on the fringe of a major winter storm

As thousands of Americans participated in the traditional holiday festivities, President and Mrs Ford accompanied by daughter Susan, attended Thanksgiving services at St John s Episcopal Church in Washington

Ford said he and his family were primarily thankful for the fact that this country is at peace for this Thanksgiving, rather than in a war as we were for four, five or six years

James Schaefer, whose father runs a catering firm in Wauwatosa, Wis , a Milwaukee suburb said holiday business was going great

It s just gotten wild for us, ' he said "We re putting out about 300 turkey dinners for families this year

For $32 50, the service offered a 20-pound roast turkey with all the trimmings — dressing, potatoes and gravy, peas and carrots, cranberry sauce and pumpkin or apple pies

In New Orleans, 10-year-old Andres Fernandez ate his first Thanksgiving meal in the United States He was flown to New Orleans from Honduras to undergo a delicate operation to try to save his right eye badly damaged by glaucoma

His left eye was removed two years ago because of glaucoma

Syria OKs Extending Mandate Six Months

DAMASCUS Syria (AP) — Syria will extend the mandate of the United Nations peacekeeping force in the Golan Heights for another six months, semi-official Syrian sources said Thursday

No official confirmation was available immediately The sources said Syrian President Hafez Assad decided to extend the mandate as the result of talks here Wednesday with U N Secretary General Kurt Waldheim

The sources said Assad s decision was based on Waldheim s personal commitment to work for the early reconvening of peace talks in Geneva among Israel Egypt Jordan and Syria

Waldheim expressed confidence Thursday night that the mandate of the 1 300 U N troops between Syrian and Israeli forces on the heights would be extended, as on another front Israeli soldiers crossed into southern Lebanon in an anti-guerrilla raid

I am hopeful the U N Security Council — and the decision is now with them — will extend the mandate of the U N peacekeeping force before it expires Sunday Waldheim said in London en route to New York after a six-day Middle East mediation tour of Israel, Egypt, Lebanon and Syria The Security Council meets Friday to discuss the extension

In Beirut, the French-language newspaper l Orient-Le Jour quoted Zuhair Mohsen, leader of the Syrian backed Palestinian guerrilla group Al Saiqa as saying he expected Syria to extend the mandate more than once, as long as the situation remains frozen and until a new stage begins that would require movement one way or the other by an initiative on our side

Diplomatic sources at U N headquarters in New York said Syria has agreed in principle to an extension but wants the council at the same time to invite a representative of the Palestine Liberation Orgnization to address the body on political rights of Palestinians

Analysts in Jerusalem have accused Syria of brinksmanship over the mandate in an effort to squeeze political concessions out of Israel such as an agreement to withdraw from all Arab lands within six months Israel has flatly refused any concessions

Israeli soldiers moved into Lebanon before dawn Thursday to search for Arab guerrillas near the village of Kfar Kela.

Riot Overshadows Ceremony

MADRID, Spain (AP) — King Juan Carlos I won European acceptance for his new regime Thursday, but it was overshadowed by a bloody riot, seizure of the nation's most liberal news magazine and unprecedented advice from the Roman Catholic church to give Spain more liberty.

Thousands of Spaniards cheered the new king as he rode from the Mass at Los Jeronimos Church to the National Palace where he reviewed 17 military units and received 81 foreign delegations including three presidents of Common Market countries in ceremonies marking the beginning of his rule.

In a banquet toast, Juan Carlos said: "In this new era Spain wishes to maintain the tightest relations with all countries for the sake of peace and a better understanding among all nations."

Oswald Controversy Won't Die

The first two hours of CBS New's four-part series on "The American Assassin, dealing with the death of President John F. Kennedy, embraces the Warren Commission conclusions about the actual shooting — that it was the work of a lone gunman shooting from behind the presidential car.

But the segments of the John Kennedy assassination do little to dispel notions that more was involved in the overall scheme to kill the President that Lee Harvey Oswald acting alone.

The suggestions that authorities were aware of some of Oswald's activities and had reason to believe him dangerous and that he might have had accomplices in planning the crime still are credible suggestions.

Skepticism about the Warren Commission report runs deeper than ever.

According to a CBS poll, only 15% of the American people now believe the report of the Warren Commission, while 68% believe that Oswald was involved with others in the assassination, although only 45%, according to CBS, want the investigation reopened. Yet that is almost half the people, assuming polling techniques are reliable.

The American people have learned much since the days of the assassination and the follow-up Warren Commission investigation. We have learned to mistrust what persons in positions of high authority say. We have learned that once-respected institutions which we felt existed only to protect us — such as the FBI and the CIA — engaged in nefarious schemes against citizens of this nation. We have learned, too, that only a decade ago, it was best not to question, not to turn over rocks, and people didn't volunteer very much. But since that time, we have learned to question more deeply, to be skeptical about the answers we get. Moreover, people now are less afraid to talk (granting that some talk too much while having little to say).

The question seems to be, should we stir it all up again to see who, besides Oswald, was implicated? There is the suspicion that even if some shadowy characters in authority did not take a direct hand in the killing, they may have been negligent in not preventing it. They may have known something and not acted, or they may have aided and abetted it.

Perhaps a majority in this country does not want or does not have the strength or patience to have that rock turned over to see what wriggles around, but we have the uneasy feeling that someone has gotten away with something.

Carter Strength Growing

Hubert Humphrey is playing it cool for the first time in a career-long struggle for the presidency. People are now coming to him: the Great Mentioner mentions HHH most often these days as the candidate the Democrats will turn to if the primaries don't produce a cinch convention winner.

Humphrey enjoys all the attention and lately has indicated he will not rule out active campaigning in some of the later primaries. But he, for one, as an astute politician, doesn't see a deadlocked convention turning to him — because he doesn't see a deadlocked convention. He thinks the primaries can produce a winner.

Serious money — in light of past history and the current prognosis — would be put on the primaries and state conventions and caucuses producing one or two candidates who could go to New York with enough delegates to win after a ballot or two rather than on the chance that the convention will be brokered.

Yet nobody in their right mind today would venture a serious guess as to who the emergent frontrunner(s) may be.

Making up the most ground among the darkhorses recently has been former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, a fellow so reputedly self-confident that he worries on occasion about the possibility of his changing after being elected president.

Carter is said to be making good headway against George Wallace in Florida and has shown well in straw polls in Iowa. Carter's growing strength reportedly has national party leaders sitting up and taking notice with some apprehension, because Carter is viewed as somewhat of a maverick.

That sort of a reputation might sit well with voters. His independence plus his educational, military and government background mark him as a candidate to be reckoned with.

Gambling Is Gambling Is Gambling

Lincoln, Neb.

My paper of Wednesday, Nov. 19, contained an article about three people's being arrested for maintaining a gambling room. It also contained a flyer announcing the opening of Lincoln's first "casino."

Don't get me wrong — I'm not at all against gambling. I just don't think that what is illegal for one should be legal for another simply because there is a church banner flying.

I fail to see the difference between putting a dollar in a slot machine in hopes of winning 25, and putting a dollar on a bingo card for the same purpose.

Las Vegas considers bingo as gambling; there is a parlor in nearly every casino. From an odds point of view, it's one hell of a gamble, odds on winning ranging from astronomical to incalculable.

I think it is time for the city and state leaders to re-evaluate the gambling laws, especially in light of the tax increases. Gaming taxes bring in great revenue, but church revenue is tax-exempt.

I would like to see The Star's Column A writers investigate this in light of who is financing it, where the money will go, how much is expected to be made, etc.

Cyclamate Scare Never Reversed

(Editor's Note: This column replaces the weekly column by Ronald Reagan. Reagan's column was discontinued by the syndicate which handled it because of the former California governor's candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination.)

WASHINGTON — If Congress did not live in such abject terror of the small but aggressive "consumerist" movement, it would be investigating the Food and Drug Administration and the National Cancer Institute. But if Congress won't act, the public should.

Consider these facts:

In 1969, Secretary of Health, Education & Welfare Robert Finch banned cyclamates just ten days after receiving a report from Abbott Laboratories that possibly this best of sugar substitutes might cause cancer.

The usual slow and painstaking process for determining the true effects of any food additive were brushed aside as a result of a lurid, scare-the-pants-off-the-public campaign by "consumerists" and the media.

This precipitous action cost Abbott Laboratories and the other producers of cyclamates tens of millions of dollars. It cost the consumer other millions in the skyrocketing sugar prices that resulted from the ban. What the effect was among those on low calorie diets who went back to sugar has not been measured.

SECRETARY FINCH
. . . issued the hurry-up needless ban . . .

Four months after the ban, the surgeon general of the United States and the head of the Food and Drug Administration confessed that the Abbott tests proved nothing at all.

Careful new tests by scientists both here and abroad proved that there was no basis for any finding that cyclamates were carcinogenic. In fact, West Germany, which has been very leery of additives and chemicals since its tragic experience with thalidomide, endorsed cyclamates after thorough investigation.

This should have been the end of the ban. But as Barron's, the prestigious financial magazine describes in a series of articles, the ban continued. Not, let it be emphasized, because FDA or NCI had any evidence of harmful effects from cyclamates. Not because they felt that the final word had not been said.

Both these august organizations, presumably dedicated to scientific fact, have refused to lift the ban because (1) they do not want to admit error and sloppy procedures and (2) because they feel that it would not be politically expedient.

There is, moreover, one ugly side to the picture, about which Barron's is not reticent. The sugar industry, which had been hurt by the popularity of cyclamates — perhaps by sheer coincidence — had, some time prior to the ban, embarked on a campaign to discredit the sugar substitute. Its lobbyists had gone to work and one of Washington's most powerful law firms was retained to carry the war to the government.

Today, scientists who have pressed for the lifting of the ban are being badmouthed by FDA and NCI.

Though he cannot defend what has been done, Dr. Alexander Schmidt, the present FDA chief, says he is "not interested" in "rehashing" the question.

In short, we are witnessing a new and dismal cover-up.

Under the circumstances, it would seem fitting that Congress look into the matter. But like the Food and Drug Administration and the National Cancer Institute, Congress too was caught up in the hysteria about cyclamates and added to the general confusion by some helter-skelter legislation. It, too, fears that it will look ridiculous in the eyes of the public for having pressed the panic button before responsible tests had been made.

So the rest of the world uses cyclamates while Americans must either invite obesity by using sugar or accept far less satisfactory sweeteners whose carcinogenic potential has yet to be tested.

Since sugar is far more expensive than cyclamates, one would think that the "consumerists" would be up in arms, but they are far too busy chasing will-o'-the-wisps to care about the consumer.

Engineering Agnew's Downfall

WASHINGTON — For the first time, it is now possible to trace the strange twists of history that put Gerald Ford in the White House.

If ex-Vice President Spiro Agnew hadn't been caught taking petty bribes from Maryland contractors, he would be president today.

If ex-Treasury Secretary John Connally hadn't become ensnarled in the milk scandal, he would have been named as Agnew's replacement and would now be sitting in the oval office in Ford's place.

We have obtained the amazing, behind-the-scenes story from sources close to both Agnew and ex-President Richard Nixon. We have spoken, for example, with Charles Colson who was the intermediary between Nixon and Agnew. We have also had access to the page proofs of Colson's unpublished book, "Born Again," which discusses Agnew's downfall.

As Agnew's friends relate the story, the then-vice president learned in early 1972 that President Nixon wanted to replace him on the ticket with Connally.

Colson got the same impression from the President who confided that Connally was "one guy who could take over my job." The two men became so close that, after Connally's departure from government to recoup his finances, Nixon quietly intervened to help him with some oil deals in the Middle East, Colson recalls.

But Agnew had a strong, stubborn following among conservative Republicans. To replace him with a lifelong Democrat, Nixon feared, would cause a Republican rebellion. "Could I appoint a Democrat?" Nixon asked Colson. Then, answering his own question, the President said: "No, I can't do it."

Less than a week after their Nov. 7, 1972, re-election, Nixon summoned Agnew to the presidential retreat as Camp David, Md. Apparently, Agnew thought he was being invited for a celebration; he was unprepared for the brutal session that followed.

The President informed him bluntly that the White House staff would exercise tighter control over his operation. His budget would be cut and his activities curtailed, Agnew was told. In short, the triumphant Nixon served notice that he intended to keep his vice president on a short leash.

Afterward, the President confided to an aide: "I was really surprised at the way Agnew buckled under. I would never have taken that." Agnew returned from Camp David with a new impression also of Nixon. "He is the coldest fish I ever met," Agnew remarked to a friend.

True to his word, Nixon clamped down on the vice president who was treated thereafter like a minor functionary. He was told whom to fire and whom to keep on his staff. The humiliated Agnew was even obliged to ask a Nixon aide, Alexander Haig, for transportation and other perquisites.

The vice president also had to clear his overseas travel with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. Once Agnew wanted to visit his ancestral home in Greece, but Kissinger refused permission.

It was February, 1973, that Agnew first got wind that a federal grand jury was investigating him. He suspected immediately that Nixon was behind it. As Agnew confided darkly to friends, he expected Nixon to use the threat of indictment to blackmail him into giving up the vice presidency to Connally.

SPIRO AGNEW
. . . put on a short leash by Mr. Nixon . . .

Colson insists that President Nixon had no such plot in mind, although he ended up trying to push Agnew out and to bring Connally in. Colson claims that the President never instigated the Agnew investigation and, in fact, never even learned about it until April, 1973.

Nixon's first reaction was to come to Agnew's aid simply to spare his administration from further embarrassment. On April 13, 1973, he asked Colson, who had left the White House to practice law, to help Agnew.

Not until September, according to Colson, did he get s suggestion from the White House that Agnew should resign.

The President warned Colson: "There is no way Agnew can escape indictment. It is time for him to make a deal."

The removal of Agnew, Nixon indicated to Colson, would take some of the heat off himself from Watergate. Colson contended, on the contrary, that a crippled vice president would be his best insurance against impeachment.

On September 23, Nixon was back on the phone to Colson. "God," said the President, "how I wish it would all go away, but Ted (Agnew) doesn't understand the problem. He has got the best deal he can ever make. It is all boiled down to one income tax problem."

Colson said his client was worried about going to prison. "He should have no fear about that," assured Nixon. "That can be taken care of."

For the first time, Colson put the proposition straight to Agnew on September 24. He had no support in the White House; his situation was deteriorating fast; maybe it was time to make a deal.

Agnew angrily rejected the idea. "I am innocent," he swore. "I am going to stick it out. I don't give a damn. I was elected just like the President was." But Agnew's attempts to force a showdown on Capitol Hill, according to Colson, were undercut by the White House itself.

The President still had Connally in mind as Agnew's replacement, said Colson, until Connally came under investigation for allegedly taking a bribe from dairymen. In desperation, Nixon turned to Gerald Ford to be his new vice president.

Trial Time

WASHINGTON — The Sixth Amendment to the Constitution affirmed "the right to a speedy and public trial" in all criminal prosecutions, but it offered no definition of "speedy." And the Supreme Court has consistently refused to establish an absolute time limitation for a speedy trial on the ground that to do so would involve the court in legislative activity.

Congress finally took the hint last year when it passed the Speedy Trial Act of 1974. President Ford signed the measure into law, and it took effect Sept. 29 — 11 days after Patricia Hearst was arrested as a fugitive and seven days after Sara Jane Moore was arrested for attempting to shoot President Ford. Since both women face federal charges, the new law could go a long way toward determining when their cases come to trial.

Under a strict interpretation of the Speedy Trial Act, both Hearst and Moore would have to be brought to trial within 90 days of the dates of their respective arrests, or they would be ordered released from custody pending trial. U.S. District Court Judge Samuel Conti of San Francisco supports this interpretation and has set a trial date of Dec. 15 for Moore. By concidence, this is the date U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Certer has announced for the Hearst trial.

Getting a speedy trial is not necessarily in the best interests of Hearst, Moore, or any other defendant in a federal criminal case, for delay is a common defense tactic. With the passage of time, witnesses may die or disappear, or their memories may fade. Moreover, defendants held for long periods without trial often are able to negotiate a plea of guilty to a lesser offense.

Hearst's and Moore's attorneys complain that they cannot prepare adequate defenses for their clients by mid-December. But government prosecutors fear that the women will attempt to become fugitives from justice if they are released from custody after 90 days.

The Supreme Court traditionally has considered the speedy-trial issue on a case-by-case basis. In a 1972 decision, the court held that the right to a speedy trial "is a more vague concept than other procedural rights. It is, for example, impossible to determine with precision when the right has been denied. We cannot definitely say how long is too long in a system where justice is supposed to be swift but deliberate. As a consequence, there is no fixed point in the criminal process when the state can put the defendant to the choice of either exercising or waiving the right to a speedy trial."

MARQUIS CHILDS

Target: Kissinger

WASHINGTON — In his last two years as secretary of state, Dean Acheson was attacked by a form of congressional and public assault that had become known as McCarthyism. Something like this same attack from a variety of quarters is being directed at Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

It is as though we could exorcise all our troubles in the world by putting the principal agent of foreign policy to the stake.

The Pike committee has cited him for contempt for refusing to surrender private documents of low-level officials bearing on policy decisions. When Congress returns from the Thanksgiving vacation, the House may or may not support its erratic intelligence committee.

But more than the conflict over such relatively minor matters is the effort to undermine the Kissinger policy of trying to bring at least a pause in the nuclear arms race. Waved about is the allegation of a missing letter that, if it could be found, would show that the United States had condoned serious violations of the current nuclear agreement by the Soviet Union.

I believe that the facts about this cloak-and-dagger mystery, of a piece with the fantastic revelations out of the past, are as follows.

First, no one has ever been able to find such a letter. It cannot be found despite an exhaustive search in the files of the National Security Council, in the President's personal files, in the files of former Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger nor anywhere in the Pentagon.

Second, those familiar with the charges the missing — or non-existent — letter makes are convinced they are minor violations. These matters involving the wizardry of modern weapons are so abstruse as to be almost beyond the understanding of the layman.

But apparently at one point the United States briefly made use of advanced radar in a way that was technically a violation of the Soviet agreement. This was then taken up by the Soviets. Having been discovered after about two months, a protest to Moscow brought an end to the violation.

The mysteries of telemetry, the reading of the other side's most secret reports on testing, have also played a part in the give-and-take here at home and in Moscow over the nuclear agreement.

The prospect, and a grim prospect certainly, is that the whole matter of an agreement on offensive nuclear weapons, tentatively reached when President Ford met with Communist Party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev in Vladivostok a year ago, will go by the board. That can mean a year's delay, as the politics of detente or no detente resound loudly on the hustings.

In the intricacies of Kremlin politics, Brezhnev, who has been able and willing to make concessions, may be replaced and by whom during that year's delay it is impossible to know or even to guess.

At one point Kissinger backed the cruise missile, when it was a minor diversion of perhaps $30 million in the defense budget, as a trade-off in future negotiations. He has said recently that he never foresaw that the Pentagon would fall in love with the cruise missile, a new kind of low-level nuclear attack weapon which has become a serious obstacle to agreement.

Today, the day after Thanksgiving, Kissinger flies with President Ford to Peking and from there to Indonesia and the Philippines.

While they are away, Admiral Elmo Zumwalt will be testifying on Capitol Hill on the evils of the Ford-Kissinger policies. Having been relatively moderate as chief of naval operations, when he failed to make chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and retired, he became one of the most vociferous critics of administration policy.

With the full backing of his President, Harry Truman, Acheson survived the often vicious attacks made on him. It is an example that should not be overlooked at this moment of grave uncertainty.

But like the Food and Drug Administration and the National Cancer Institute, Congress too was caught up in the hysteria about cyclamates and added to the general confusion by some helter-skelter legislation. It, too, fears that it will look ridiculous in the eyes of the public for having pressed the panic button before responsible tests had been made.

So the rest of the world uses cyclamates while Americans must either invite obesity by using sugar or accept far less satisfactory sweeteners whose carcinogenic potential has yet to be tested.

Since sugar is far more expensive than cyclamates, one would think that the "consumerists" would be up in arms, but they are far too busy chasing will-o'-the-wisps to care about the consumer.

Engineering Agnew's Downfall

JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — For the first time, it is now possible to trace the strange twists of history that put Gerald Ford in the White House.

If ex-Vice President Spiro Agnew hadn't been caught taking petty bribes from Maryland contractors, he would be president today.

If ex-Treasury Secretary John Connally hadn't become ensnarled in the milk scandal, he would have been named as Agnew's replacement and would now be sitting in the oval office in Ford's place.

We have obtained the amazing, behind-the-scenes story from sources close to both Agnew and ex-President Richard Nixon. We have spoken, for example, with Charles Colson who was the intermediary between Nixon and Agnew. We have also had access to the page proofs of Colson's unpublished book, "Born Again," which discusses Agnew's downfall.

As Agnew's friends relate the story, the then-vice president learned in early 1972 that President Nixon wanted to replace him on the ticket with Connally.

Colson got the same impression from the President who confided that Connally was "one guy who could take over my job." The two men became so close that, after Connally's departure from government to recoup his finances, Nixon quietly intervened to help him with some oil deals in the Middle East, Colson recalls.

But Agnew had a strong, stubborn following among conservative Republicans. To replace him with a lifelong Democrat, Nixon feared, would cause a Republican rebellion. "Could I appoint a Democrat?" Nixon asked Colson. Then, answering his own question, the President said: "No, I can't do it."

Less than a week after their Nov. 7, 1972, re-election, Nixon summoned Agnew to the presidential retreat as Camp David, Md. Apparently, Agnew thought he was being invited for a celebration; he was unprepared for the brutal session that followed.

The President informed him bluntly that the White House staff would exercise tighter control over his operation. His budget would be cut and his activities curtailed, Agnew was told. In short, the triumphant Nixon served notice that he intended to keep his vice president on a short leash.

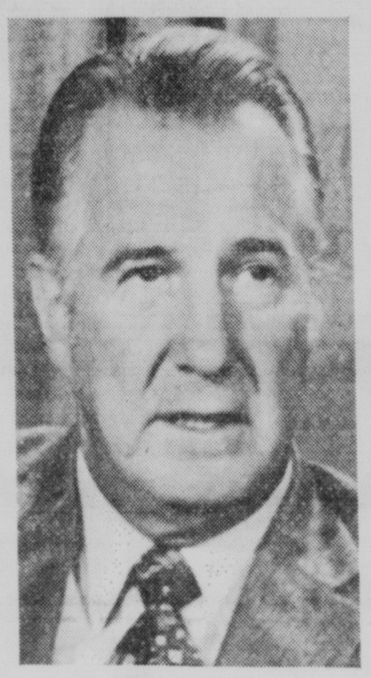

Afterward, the President confided to an aide: "I was really surprised at the way Agnew buckled under. I would never have taken that." Agnew returned from Camp David with a new impression also of Nixon. "He is the coldest fish I ever met," Agnew remarked to a friend.

True to his word, Nixon clamped down on the vice president who was treated thereafter like a minor functionary. He was told whom to fire and whom to keep on his staff. The humiliated Agnew was even obliged to ask a Nixon aide, Alexander Haig, for transportation and other perquisites.

The vice president also had to clear his overseas travel with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. Once Agnew wanted to visit his ancestral home in Greece, but Kissinger refused permission.

It was February, 1973, that Agnew first got wind that a federal grand jury was investigating him. He suspected immediately that Nixon was behind it. As Agnew confided darkly to friends, he expected Nixon to use the threat of indictment to blackmail him into giving up the vice presidency to Connally.

SPIRO AGNEW
. . . put on a short leash by Mr. Nixon . . .

Colson insists that President Nixon had no such plot in mind, although he ended up trying to push Agnew out and to bring Connally in. Colson claims that the President never instigated the Agnew investigation and, in fact, never even learned about it until April, 1973.

Nixon's first reaction was to come to Agnew's aid simply to spare his administration from further embarrassment. On April 13, 1973, he asked Colson, who had left the White House to practice law, to help Agnew.

Not until September, according to Colson, did he get s suggestion from the White House that Agnew should resign.

The President warned Colson: "There is no way Agnew can escape indictment. It is time for him to make a deal."

The removal of Agnew, Nixon indicated to Colson, would take some of the heat off himself from Watergate. Colson contended, on the contrary, that a crippled vice president would be his best insurance against impeachment.

On September 23, Nixon was back on the phone to Colson. "God," said the President, "how I wish it would all go away, but Ted (Agnew) doesn't understand the problem. He has got the best deal he can ever make. It is all boiled down to one income tax problem."

Colson said his client was worried about going to prison. "He should have no fear about that," assured Nixon. "That can be taken care of."

For the first time, Colson put the proposition straight to Agnew on September 24. He had no support in the White House; his situation was deteriorating fast; maybe it was time to make a deal.

Agnew angrily rejected the idea. "I am innocent," he swore. "I am going to stick it out. I don't give a damn. I was elected just like the President was." But Agnew's attempts to force a showdown on Capitol Hill, according to Colson, were undercut by the White House itself.

The President still had Connally in mind as Agnew's replacement, said Colson, until Connally came under investigation for allegedly taking a bribe from dairymen. In desperation, Nixon turned to Gerald Ford to be his new vice president.

Trial Time

WASHINGTON — The Sixth Amendment to the Constitution affirmed "the right to a speedy and public trial" in all criminal prosecutions, but it offered no definition of "speedy." And the Supreme Court has consistently refused to establish an absolute time limitation for a speedy trial on the ground that to do so would involve the court in legislative activity.

Congress finally took the hint last year when it passed the Speedy Trial Act of 1974. President Ford signed the measure into law, and it took effect Sept. 29 — 11 days after Patricia Hearst was arrested as a fugitive and seven days after Sara Jane Moore was arrested for attempting to shoot President Ford. Since both women face federal charges, the new law could go a long way toward determining when their cases come to trial.

Under a strict interpretation of the Speedy Trial Act, both Hearst and Moore would have to be brought to trial within 90 days of the dates of their respective arrests, or they would be ordered released from custody pending trial. U.S. District Court Judge Samuel Conti of San Francisco supports this interpretation and has set a trial date of Dec. 15 for Moore. By concidence, this is the date U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Certer has announced for the Hearst trial.

Getting a speedy trial is not necessarily in the best interests of Hearst, Moore, or any other defendant in a federal criminal case, for delay is a common defense tactic. With the passage of time, witnesses may die or disappear, or their memories may fade. Moreover, defendants held for long periods without trial often are able to negotiate a plea of guilty to a lesser offense.

Hearst's and Moore's attorneys complain that they cannot prepare adequate defenses for their clients by mid-December. But government prosecutors fear that the women will attempt to become fugitives from justice if they are released from custody after 90 days.

The Supreme Court traditionally has considered the speedy-trial issue on a case-by-case basis. In a 1972 decision, the court held that the right to a speedy trial "is a more vague concept than other procedural rights. It is, for example, impossible to determine with precision when the right has been denied. We cannot definitely say how long is too long in a system where justice is supposed to be swift but deliberate. As a consequence, there is no fixed point in the criminal process when the state can put the defendant to the choice of either exercising or waiving the right to a speedy trial."

MARQUIS CHILDS

Target: Kissinger

WASHINGTON — In his last two years as secretary of state, Dean Acheson was attacked by a form of congressional and public assault that had become known as McCarthyism. Something like this same attack from a variety of quarters is being directed at Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

It is as though we could exorcise all our troubles in the world by putting the principal agent of foreign policy to the stake.

The Pike committee has cited him for contempt for refusing to surrender private documents of low-level officials bearing on policy decisions. When Congress returns from the Thanksgiving vacation, the House may or may not support its erratic intelligence committee.

But more than the conflict over such relatively minor matters is the effort to undermine the Kissinger policy of trying to bring at least a pause in the nuclear arms race. Waved about is the allegation of a missing letter that, if it could be found, would show that the United States had condoned serious violations of the current nuclear agreement by the Soviet Union.

I believe that the facts about this cloak-and-dagger mystery, of a piece with the fantastic revelations out of the past, are as follows:

First, no one has ever been able to find such a letter. It cannot be found despite an exhaustive search in the files of the National Security Council, in the President's personal files, in the files of former Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger nor anywhere in the Pentagon.

Second, those familiar with the charges the missing — or non-existent — letter makes are convinced they are minor violations. These matters involving the wizardry of modern weapons are so abstruse as to be almost beyond the understanding of the layman.

But apparently at one point the United States briefly made use of advanced radar in a way that was technically a violation of the Soviet agreement. This was then taken up by the Soviets. Having been discovered after about two months, a protest to Moscow brought an end to the violation.

The mysteries of telemetry, the reading of the other side's most secret reports on testing, have also played a part in the give-and-take here at home and in Moscow over the nuclear agreement.

The prospect, and a grim prospect certainly, is that the whole matter of an agreement on offensive nuclear weapons, tentatively reached when President Ford met with Communist Party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev in Vladivostok a year ago, will go by the board. That can mean a year's delay, as the politics of detente or no detente resound loudly on the hustings.

In the intricacies of Kremlin politics, Brezhnev, who has been able and willing to make concessions, may be replaced and by whom during that year's delay it is impossible to know or even to guess.

At one point Kissinger backed the cruise missile, when it was a minor diversion of perhaps $30 million in the defense budget, as a trade-off in future negotiations. He has said recently that he never foresaw that the Pentagon would fall in love with the cruise missile, a new kind of low-level nuclear attack weapon which has become a serious obstacle to agreement.

Today, the day after Thanksgiving, Kissinger flies with President Ford to Peking and from there to Indonesia and the Philippines.

While they are away, Admiral Elmo Zumwalt will be testifying on Capitol Hill on the evils of the Ford-Kissinger policies. Having been relatively moderate as chief of naval operations, when he failed to make chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and retired, he became one of the most vociferous critics of administration policy.

With the full backing of his President, Harry Truman, Acheson survived the often vicious attacks made on him. It is an example that should not be overlooked at this moment of grave uncertainty.

Food Confab Delegates Spurn Aid Proposal

ROME (AP) — A 136-nation food conference, on the verge of becoming what the United States considered "a political theater," ended Thursday by spurning a proposal to grant food aid to political prisoners and liberation movements "struggling against foreign domination and racism."

Instead, the three-week meeting of the governing board of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) recommended intensified food aid to newly independent countries, naming in particular Angola, Cape Verde, Guinea Bissau and Sao Tome and Principe, all former Portuguese colonies.

Guinea had urged that food aid be also extended "to all resistance movements, political prisoners and Chilean refugees" as well as to the Palestine Liberation Organization and all liberation movements ... struggling against foreign domination and racism."

The United States and 26 other nations said they "did not accept the term 'racism' if that term was understood as including Zionism."

The conference, often marked by political discussion and Third World domination, wound up dropping all references to the PLO, already admitted as an observer to the conference, and other groups as well as political prisoners.

Chief U.S. delegate Don Paarlberg said: "We succeeded in keeping FAO to its essential mission — to assist and improve agriculture." He mentioned "the tendency to convert this special agency into yet another political theater to discuss issues that have a place in the U.N. General Assembly. This drift imperils the agency."

But on most issues the so-called "Group of 77," Third World nations now numbering over 100, prevailed.

"The biggest achievement was the Third World's solidarity," said Jean Camara of Guinea, head of the Group of 77.

At the outset of the conference Third World nations seated the Palestine Liberation Organization as an observer, the first time the PLO was accorded any status in the 30-year-old food agency.

They then elected a Lebanese, Edouard Saouma, as director general of the organization, replacing retiring Addeke H. Boerma of the Netherlands.

The developing states also prevailed in hiking the agency's budget for two years from $106 million to $167 million. The United States, which pays for a quarter of the agency's spending, had originally opposed the proposed hike but went along with it, as did other industrial nations. Paarlberg said the U.S. vote was to show "our desire to cooperate."

The conference also:

— Recommended that FAO "consider on a priority basis" the creation of an international agricultural commodity agency to manage the purchase and distribution of food staples.

— Set a minimum target of $750 million for voluntary contributions in 1977 and 1978 for the World Food Program, jointly administered by the FAO and the United Nations.

— Urged that women on the farms be given equality with men in policy decisions and be liberated from "the household."

'Guinness Book' Editor Shot Dead

LONDON (AP) — A. Ross McWhirter, joint editor and compiler of the Guinness Book of World Records, was shot to death Thursday night as he stood in the doorway of his London home.

Police said they were looking for two men.

McWhirter was rushed to a hospital but died shortly after arrival.

Police cordoned off McWhirter's two-story house and kept reporters from approaching two houses across the street.

Maintenance Man Foils Attempt To Bomb Plane

Miami (AP) — A maintenance man stumbled over a live timebomb in a jetliner restroom just before the plane was to begin boarding passengers Thursday. Explosives experts disarmed it before it could explode.

"If it had gone off, it would have taken the whole plane," an investigator said. "The plane was completely loaded with fuel."

An hour and a half after the bomb was discovered at 8:45 a.m., a man identifying himself as "Ernesto" of "Cuban Power 76" called United Press International's Miami Bureau and said he had planned the explosive device aboard the Bahamasair BAC 1-11.

He said the bombing attempt was to protest the ban of Cuban exile fishermen from Bahamas' waters and of the relationship between the Bahamas and Fidel Castro's regime in Cuba.

Coral Gables police said another explosive device, a pipe bomb, was found at a University of Miami apartment complex at about the same time. Police said they did not know if the two incidents were related.

Police said Bahamasair maintenance supervisor James F. O'Conner was repairing some plumbing when he discovered a "suspicious package" behind some paneling in a restroom.

The 41 passengers who were waiting to board were kept in the waiting room, the crew was taken off the plane and the Dade County bomb squad was called.

The small jetliner was then towed to what is called a "penalty box," an isolated area in the middle of the airport complex which is used in such situations.

Bomb squad member Newton Porter disarmed the bomb, which investigators said consisted of two pounds of plastic explosive attached to a watch and a detonating device.

They'll Be Midshipmen, But No 'Hanky-Panky'

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Women attending the Naval Academy next year will be "midshipmen" or they'll be shipped out, according to academy officials who say handholding, kissing and pregnancy won't be allowed.

Hanky-panky and fraternization between the sexes at the academy will be discouraged when the school gets its first women students, who will arrive next summer as members of the class of 1980.

While academy officials are planning to house men and women "midshipmen" in the same dormitory without separate hallways or floors, coeds will not be allowed to kiss or hold hands in public with their male counterparts. And, as plebes, there'll be no dating with upperclassmen.

According to Cmdr. Robert Lewis, the academy's public affairs officer, Cupid won't be given much of a chance. Lewis said that a coed Naval Academy won't be like a coed college or university, and although the young men and women will be living in dorm situations that might have shocked the nation a decade ago, Navy officals are certain proprieties can be observed.

Janitor closets are being converted into women's toilet facilities and over the Christmas recess, workmen will begin building partitions in existing lavatories.

"Everyone will have plenty of privacy," said Lewis. "As far as I know, there are no restrictions about hallways after hours. I suppose they'll have to wear robes."

No one knows just how many women will join the academy next year. The decision will come directly from the secretary of the Navy based on the needs of the service.

The school doesn't plan to change its curriculum for the women. They are to be designated "midshipmen" and the Navy says it means to treat them the same as males.

But, because women are forbidden to participate in combat roles, the coeds will not go on the extended cruise at the end of the plebe year, nor will they take part in other academy cruises which extend overnight.

The women will be subjected to the same physical regim as males, with some allowances taken for differences in ability in physiology.

N.Y. Faces 'Painful Burdens'

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the long sought promise of federal aid, New York officials say "painful burdens" must be shouldered to fully resolve the fiscal problems of the nation's largest city.

Gov. Hugh Carey said that President Ford's promise Wednesday night of federal loans for the city, which still must be approved by Congress, "does not mark the end of our difficulties. Painful burdens remain ahead of us all.

"Talk of collapse and chaos should now disappear. In its place, we shall talk of the work of rebuilding and restoring confidence in New York City."

Here are some of the problems that lie ahead:

— New York City still has to end a $725 million operating deficit in its budget by June 30, 1978. This is going to mean more layoffs and service cutbacks.

— New York State has to balance its own budget. Gov. Carey has said it will end up $700 million in the red this year, while Republicans project a $300 million deficit. Additionally, four state agencies still could default on their bonds next month.

— The residents of New York City, already the most heavily taxed in the country, are going to have to pay higher income taxes and additional levies on a variety of items. The $200 million tax package approved by the state legislature this week was the key to securing Ford's promise of loans, but New Yorkers could find even more tax increases ahead as the state tries to balance its own books.

Mayor Abraham D. Beame echoed Carey's statement that the problems of the city were far from resolved, but called the promise of federal aid "a crucial turning point" in the city's year long fiscal crisis.

The President called for legislation that would provide up to $2.3 billion in federal loans in each of the next three fiscal years. All of the money must be paid back by the end of the fiscal year in which the loan was made, and Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon is to monitor all the loans to ensure that they are paid back.

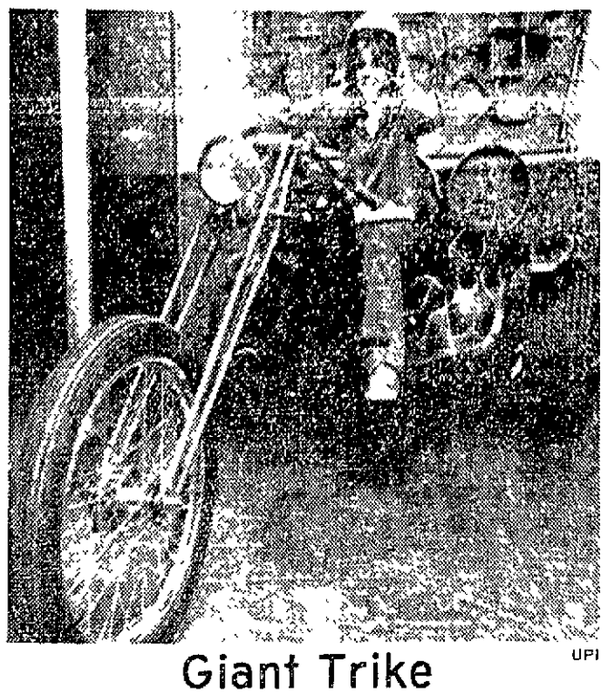

Additionally, Ford said the federal government will have first call on all city income.

The loans are to carry an interest rate one percentage point higher than the rate the Treasury is paying for its own borrowings. Currently, that would be about 8%, a lower charge than many cities are paying for borrowing on the municipal bond market.

In explaining his decision to offer the city loans, Ford said: "New York has bailed itself out." He also promised that the aid program would not cost the taxpayers of other areas any money.

Ford said measures taken by New York state and city led him to reverse his stand that there would be no federal assistance except under court supervised bankruptcy proceedings.

"Only a few months ago, we were told that all these reforms were impossible and could not be accomplished by New York alone," he said. "Today they have been done".

Drizzle Helps Bring Fires Under Control

Glendale, Calif. (UPI) — A soft drizzle fell on the flame-ravaged San Gabriel Mountains Thursday and helped weary fire fighters bring under control the biggest of the blazes which had blackened 100 square miles in five days and caused more than $14 million damage.

The rain, which began during the night, tamped down the embers in the brush and the U.S. Forest Service reported that the big Tujunga Canyon fire was 95% contained and expected to be under full control Thursday night.

The blaze in the Mt. Baldy ski resort area was only 30% contained but rain was falling there intermittently, too.

Turkey dinners were served in camps to the remaining men still on the fire lines. They numbered 4,000 at the peak of the conflagrations which also saw an estimated 5,300 persons flee their homes.

The Forest Service said the total mountain area burned in the Tujunga fire was 72 square miles and the Mt. Baldy area blackened was 30 square miles.

Damage to the watershed was estimated at $14.7 million. In addition, more than 40 homes were destroyed or damaged, some in the $65,000 range.

Federal and county officials already were considering steps to be taken to alleviate the mudslides which almost inevitable follow when the steep slopes are denuded of heavy vegetation and the hard rains begin after the first of the year.

Home-Rule Offer Angers Scots, Welsh

London (AP) — Britain's Labor government offered Scotland and Wales more home-rule Thursday but found its plan was pleasing neither Scots nor Welsh and was angering many English as well.

The Scots and Welsh, especially the nationalists, were furious because, among other things, the new assemblies promised them would still be subject to veto by the London Parliament that governs the United Kingdom of England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

One Scottish Liberal Party member of Parliament, David Steel, advised Prime Minister Harold Wilson to stay out of Scotland for a long time until the rage and fury over his government's proposals had died down.

The Conservative Party deputy leader, William Whitelaw, warned that the proposals have "built-in difficulties" that the nationalists will exploit "to achieve their aim of wrecking the United Kingdom."

Whitelaw complained that the proposals failed to ensure that the unity of the United Kingdom be preserved and strengthened, and Malcolm Rifkind, Conservative spokesman on Scottish affairs, said: "We feel the constitutional framework in which this is to work is unsatisfactory and probably unworkable."

Donald Stewart, leader of the Scottish National Party and member of the London Parliament, said: "The proposals might have been drawn up on another planet. Their only value is as a launching pad for genuine self-government, and the Scottish National Party will build constructively on whatever devolution can be wrung from the government."

Devolution is the word used for the proposed surrender of some powers at present held by the London Parliament to new assemblies in Scotland and Wales.

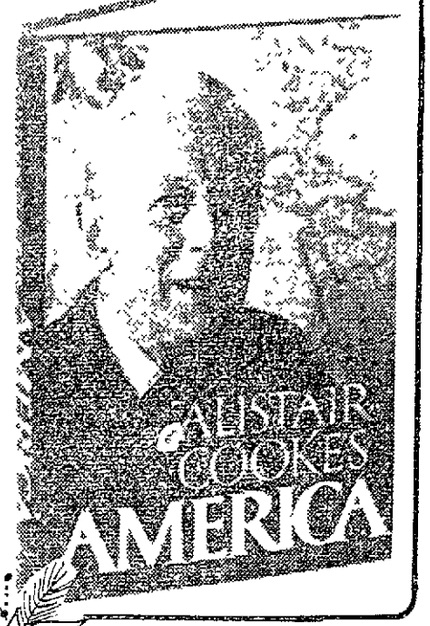

The Scots would have a law-making assembly of 142 members and a premier, while Wales would have a purely executive assembly of 72 members, with no power to make laws.

Site For Penal Institution Found Suitable By LEAA

The proposed site in Omaha for a men's medium-minimum security state penal institution has been found suitable by the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, according to Joseph Vitek, state corrections director.

"All factors . . . indicate suitability," Vitek said, referring to a site near Omaha's Eppley Airfield.

As a result, Gov. J. James Exon is expected to announce next week whether he will give the go-ahead to the project.

When the site was recommended by a special committee Exon created, questions about noise and safety were raised and the administration decided to seek an outside opinion.

The request for an assessment was sent to the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration's National Clearing House for Correctional Architecture.

The Omaha institution results from legislation passed by the Unicameral this year which calls for a new building in Lincoln to replace the existing men's reformatory and a second medium-minimum security institution in Omaha.

The special gubernatorial study committee, which initially ran into stiff opposition on early site proposals for the Omaha institution, was headed by Sen. John Savage of Omaha.

Vitek said the clearing house concluded the latest proposal would not present community acceptance problems, it is located close to resources and transportation, and the noise problem could be coped with in the kind of building materials used.

Montana Storm Fizzles; Thanksgiving Day Mild

An expected storm failed to materialize, leaving Nebraska with partly cloudy to cloudy skies and scattered snow flurries Thanksgiving Day.

The National Weather Service cancelled travelers advisories and a winter storm watch early Thursday after a storm center moving southeastward through Montana weakened.

Any new Nebraska snows connected with that storm, now bringing heavy snow to the Rockies, will be delayed until Saturday or early Sunday, forecasters said.

Cloudy skies are predicted for Friday and Friday night with a chance of light snow in northern and western Nebraska. Highs should be in the upper 20s to 30s with lows Friday night mostly in the 20s.

On Saturday, temperatures will be in the middle 20s to low 30s with a chance of snow across Nebraska, excluding the southeast.

Interstate 80 is normal across the state, the State Patrol reported, and Thursday's warmer temperatures began breaking up snow on state roads in the east.

In central and western Nebraska, most roads remained snow-packed and partly to mostly covered.

Schuyler Rites Monday For Father Herman

Schuyler (AP) — The Rev. Victor E. Herman, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Schuyler the last 40 years, died in a Schuyler hospital Thursday after a lengthy illness.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday for Father Herman, 70.

The funeral mass will be said by Archbishop Daniel E. Sheehan of Omaha.

Snow Removal Budget Melting From Grand Island Treasury

Grand Island (UPI) — Public Works Director A. E. Rasmussen Wednesday said last week's blizzard drained 41% of the city's budget for contracting with outside agencies for snow removal.

Rasmussen said the city spent $20,414 of the $50,000 slated for salting operations and contracting outside firms this winter. The figure does not include money spent for snow removal this week.

The figures also do not reflect city payroll and operations expenditures or maintenance of city vehicles, he said.

Thompson said national media covering the project include the New York Times, Washington Post, Christian Science Monitor, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Rocky Mountain News, Smithsonian Magazine and Art News. Since announcement of the artists in July, more than 250 articles about the project have appeard in the Nebraska press, he said.

Palisade — Eugene Schroeder has been elected to a three-year term on the American Hereford Association board of directors. He is the Nebraska Hereford Association president and a 1942 University of Nebraska graduate.

Fiscal Analyst Assigned To Research

Eldin Ehrlich, the head of the Unicameral's fiscal staff, has been reassigned to special research duties.

He will be replaced as head of the fiscal staff by William Brunsen, a senior analyst on Ehrlich's staff.

The change in Ehrlich's responsibilitites was the result of a decision made by Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, chairman of the Unicameral's Appropriations Committee.

Ehrlich will be working full-time on research into such areas as the distribution of the tax burden among Nebraskans and the future of various federal aid programs.

He will continue at his $24,000 a year salary while Brunsen, who will hold the fiscal director post on an acting basis, will retain his $19,893 a year salary.

Ehrlich joined the staff in 1969 and replaced Marlin Rein in 1973.

Site For Penal Institution Found Suitable By LEAA

The proposed site in Omaha for a men's medium-minimum security state penal institution has been found suitable by the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, according to Joseph Vitek, state corrections director.

"All factors . . . indicate suitability," Vitek said, referring to a site near Omaha's Eppley Airfield.

As a result, Gov. J. James Exon is expected to announce next week whether he will give the go-ahead to the project.

When the site was recommended by a special committee Exon created, questions about noise and safety were raised and the administration decided to seek an outside opinion.

The request for an assessment was sent to the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration's National Clearing House for Correctional Architecture.

The Omaha institution results from legislation passed by the Unicameral this year which calls for a new building in Lincoln to replace the existing men's reformatory and a second medium-minimum security institution in Omaha.

The special gubernatorial study committee, which initially ran into stiff opposition on early site proposals for the Omaha institution, was headed by Sen. John Savage of Omaha.

Vitek said the clearing house concluded the latest proposal would not present community acceptance problems, it is located close to resources and transportation, and the noise problem could be coped with in the kind of building materials used.

Montana Storm Fizzles; Thanksgiving Day Mild

An expected storm failed to materialize, leaving Nebraska with partly cloudy to cloudy skies and scattered snow flurries Thanksgiving Day.

The National Weather Service cancelled travelers advisories and a winter storm watch early Thursday after a storm center moving southeastward through Montana weakened.

Any new Nebraska snows connected with that storm, now bringing heavy snow to the Rockies, will be delayed until Saturday or early Sunday, forecasters said.

Cloudy skies are predicted for Friday and Friday night with a chance of light snow in northern and western Nebraska. Highs should be in the upper 20s to 30s with lows Friday night mostly in the 20s.

On Saturday, temperatures will be in the middle 20s to low 30s with a chance of snow across Nebraska, excluding the southeast.

Interstate 80 is normal across the state, the State Patrol reported, and Thursday's warmer temperatures began breaking up snow on state roads in the east.

In central and western Nebraska, most roads remained snow-packed and partly to mostly covered.

Schuyler Rites Monday For Father Herman

Schuyler (AP) — The Rev. Victor E. Herman, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Schuyler the last 40 years, died in a Schuyler hospital Thursday after a lengthy illness.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday for Father Herman, 70.

The funeral mass will be said by Archbishop Daniel E. Sheehan of Omaha.

Snow Removal Budget Melting From Grand Island Treasury

Grand Island (UPI) — Public Works Director A. E. Rasmussen Wednesday said last week's blizzard drained 41% of the city's budget for contracting with outside agencies for snow removal.

Rasmussen said the city spent $20,414 of the $50,000 slated for salting operations and contracting outside firms this winter. The figure does not include money spent for snow removal this week.

The figures also do not reflect city payroll and operations expenditures or maintenance of city vehicles, he said.

Thompson said national media covering the project include the New York Times, Washington Post, Christian Science Monitor, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Rocky Mountain News, Smithsonian Magazine and Art News. Since announcement of the artists in July, more than 250 articles about the project have appeard in the Nebraska press, he said.

WAR PEPPER . . . displays his oft-seen grin for Warren.

NU Showmanship Specialist Is Retiring

He's probably the first University of Nebraska (NU) staff member to retire at age 15. But he's entitled: after all, 15 is pretty old for a horse.

"War Pepper," a sorrel-chestnut gelding, has performed as a "member" of the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service for the past 11 years, teaching the finer points of horse showmanship to more than 15,000 youngsters attending summer 4-H horse clinics from 1964-75.

Foaled in 1960, War Pepper was retired this fall because of arthritis. "At 15, he was actually about 60 in human age, so you might call it early retirement," says his owner R. B. Warren, NU Extension 4-H horse specialist. The University employee handbook prescribes a retirement age of 65.

Pepper will spend his "emeritus" years on a farm in the Platte Valley.

The association between Warren and War Pepper began in 1955 — five years before the colt hit the ground. He was bred by Michigan State University, where Warren was an animal science staff member until coming to Nebraska in 1956.

"I spoke for him in 1955 because his mother, a Thoroughbred, was used there in equitation classes and the disposition of the sire (a son of the Quarter Horse Peppy) was good," Warren recounts.

The match produced a sorrel-chestnut color, a stripe on the face and four socks on a gelding that stands 16 hands tall and weighs in at about 1,250 pounds.

Excellent Showman

"He was excellent for teaching showmanship," says Warren. "I could make him move any foot any time. The kids were impressed because it looked like I was whispering in his ear and telling him what to do when I really was giving him hand signals off to the side.

"On command, he could stretch out too far, or put his legs too close under him or droop his head, so the kids could see both good and bad examples of how a horse should be set up in the showring.

"And usually towards the end of each showmanship demonstration," Warren recalls, "Pepper would curl back his upper lip and give a big grin. That always tickled the kids."

Pepper gets no praise as a trail horse, however. "He'd never been on a trail ride till last summer at Lewellen. There were 95 horses and he couldn't stand being behind all of them. And we hobbled him that night, but the next morning it took four people to round him up — he'd wandered off to somebody's pasture."

Special Training

War Pepper did shine as a cutting horse. "That's what his special training was in," tells Warren, who trained him "all but three weeks."

Warren's interest in horses goes back a long way. As a boy in Kansas, he rode his family's thoroughbreds to school, to church and to work cattle. His great grandfather owned the 1894 world's champion pacing horse, Symboleer.

Pepper's show career was confined to the student-sponsored NU Block and Bridle Quarter Horse Show, where he won his halter class as a two-year-old and later collected ribbons in cutting and roping events.

Who will take over the job of training young horse enthusiasts? Two younger understudies will now step into the leading role: Husker Red Man and Rinky Dink Bars. "We'll see how they do," Warren muses.

'Potential' Seen For Community Colleges Group

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The newly formed Nebraska Association of Community Colleges Trustees (NACCT) has "tremendous potential," said Don Nielsen of Lincoln, because the six technical community college areas share similar challenges.

Nielsen said he opposes any legislative moves to remove local control and financing of the areas established this year, which some state senators are now attacking.

A member of the Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College Area Board, Nielsen was named NACCT vice president at the trustees' organizational meeting.

Others Elected

Other officers elected to one-year terms are Gordon Schempp of Omaha, president; Ray Schreiner of Wayne, treasurer, and Rita Sheldon of Omaha, secretary. Attorney Patrick F. Render of Omaha, NACCT corporation agent, was named assistant secretary.

The organization was founded to fill a void left when the Legislature abolished the State Board of Technical Community Colleges in the law that beefed up local area boards' control.

"One of our main jobs," Nielsen said, will be coordination among the community colleges, and with high schools, colleges and universities. The NACCT informational charge includes students, the Legislature, county commissioners and city council members.

Some Rapped Board

Some state senators have blasted the Southeast area board's attempt to acquire defunct Pershing College in Beatrice to replace its Fairbury campus. The senators said the new legislation wasn't intended to give boards such authority.

"It should become apparent to any of the senators," Nielsen said, that existing law "is good, and it can provide for the necessary local input to assure us we are offering the right services at the right place and the right time."

Nielsen said, "I question seriously" attempts to change the law "without giving this local control a good opportunity to prove itself."

'Terrible Mess'

In an analogy, Nielsen said, "We would have a terrible mess if we would remove our local school districts from under the governance of our locally elected and controlled school boards.

"I think the community colleges need to have the same type of locally elected and locally controlled type of governance, but only on a broader basis."

And "that's why I think" the Unicameral's decision to establish six community college districts "was right," he said.

'Destroy Ability'

"If you take that away, I think you destroy the ability of the community colleges to be truly responsive" to the area residents they serve, Nielsen said.

He also declared a necessity for area boards to have authority to build or move or close campuses, if that responds to the area need.

Otherwise, Nielsen said, it would be the same as a school district having to get approval of the Legislature to build anew or make changes, "and that would be totally unworkable."

Dual-Purpose Unit

The 12-member NACCT board also appointed a dual-purpose committee, to set a budget for the balance of 1975-76 and propose one for 1976-77, and to act as a search committee to obtain a corporation executive secretary.

Proposed budgets will be submitted at the next NACCT meeting in February, tentatively set in Lincoln, Nielsen said. No deadline was set to fill the executive post.

The trustees established a July 1-June 30 fiscal year, adopted bylaws, will certify final articles of incorporation and apply for tax-exempt status.

'Gag' Ruling Rapped By Sigma Delta Chi

Washington (UPI) — The society of professional journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, Thursday attacked a decision by Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun permitting Nebraska courts to continue a news blackout on major developments in the Erwin Charles Simants murder case.

Simants, 29, is charged with six counts of first degree murder and first degree sexual assault. His trial is scheduled for Jan. 5 in North Platte.

Reporters and press groups in the state have charged that a news blackout in the case and upcoming trial violate first amendment rights of a free press.

Sigma Delta Chi's National Freedom of Information Committee said Blackmun's recent order, which has been appealed to the full Supreme Court, could set a "dangerous precedent" in eroding those first amendment rights.

Blackmun's decision gave the news media permission to publish some details of the Simants' case, but barred disclosure of any confession or other statement that could harm the accused.

Sigma Delta Chi said it hoped the full court would reverse Blackmun's ruling "without delay." It also commended efforts by Nebraska press groups and reporters "to open the trial to unfettered reporting and thereby head off a dangerous precedent for freedom of information."

Blackmun noted Simants' rights to a fair trial under the sixth amendment must be protected as well as those first amendment rights of news media.

But Sigma Delta Chi, in a statement signed by Chairman Grant Dillman of information freedom committee, said both could be upheld during the trial.

"The society believes that when there is a conflict between the sixth amendment and the first amendment's free press guarantees, it should be resolved by sequestering the jury rather than by resorting to prior restrains as in the Nebraska case," the statement said.

"To do otherwise would be to deprive the public of the information it needs to judge the effectiveness of the judicial system and eventually undermine the very public confidence the Nebraska courts seek to instill through their actions in the Simants case."

The Nebraska Supreme Court, meanwhile, Wednesday took under consideration a request by news media attorneys to set aside an order by Lincoln County District Judge Hugh Stuart to limit reporting of a preliminary hearing for Simants.

Hendry Is Re-Elected To Term On Farm Credit Board Of Omaha

Omaha (UPI) — James Hendry, a rancher from Lost Cabin, Wyo., has been re-elected to a three-year term on the Farm Credit Board of Omaha.

The Farm Credit Board sets policy and directs the activities of the three farm credit banks in Omaha — the Federal Land Bank, the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, and the Bank for Cooperatives.

The banks have over $2.8 billion in loans outstanding to farmers, ranchers and their cooperatives in Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming.

Hendry served on the board since first being elected in 1962. His new term will begin on Jan. 1, 1976.

In addition to his involvement in farm credit, Hendry is a former director of the Wyoming Production Credit Association, headquartered in Casper. He is president of the Clear Creek Cattle Co., of Lost Cabin, a commercial cattle and sheep ranching operation.

Other members of the Omaha Farm Credit Board are Fred Ludwig, Laurens, Iowa, chairman; Kenneth R. Lynk, Marshalltown, Iowa, vice chairman; Richard E. Spangler, Plattsmouth; Ralph Raikes, Ashland; Walter W. Peterson, Chappell; and Leo Allmendinger, Selby, S.D.

The newly formed Nebraska Association of Community Colleges Trustees (NACCT) has "tremendous potential," said Don Nielsen of Lincoln, because the six technical community college areas share similar challenges.

Nielsen said he opposes any legislative moves to remove local control and financing of the areas established this year, which some state senators are now attacking.

A member of the Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College Area Board, Nielsen was named NACCT vice president at the trustees' organizational meeting.

Others Elected

Other officers elected to one-year terms are Gordon Schempp of Omaha, president; Ray Schreiner of Wayne, treasurer, and Rita Sheldon of Omaha, secretary. Attorney Patrick F. Render of Omaha, NACCT corporation agent, was named assistant secretary.

The organization was founded to fill a void left when the Legislature abolished the State Board of Technical Community Colleges in the law that beefed up local area boards' control.

"One of our main jobs," Nielsen said, will be coordination among the community colleges, and with high schools, colleges and universities. The NACCT informational charge includes students, the Legislature, county commissioners and city council members.

Some Rapped Board

Some state senators have blasted the Southeast area board's attempt to acquire defunct Pershing College in Beatrice to replace its Fairbury campus. The senators said the new legislation wasn't intended to give boards such authority.

"It should become apparent to any of the senators," Nielsen said, that existing law "is good, and it can provide for the necessary local input to assure us we are offering the right services at the right place and the right time."

Nielsen said, "I question seriously" attempts to change the law "without giving this local control a good opportunity to prove itself."

'Terrible Mess'

In an analogy, Nielsen said, "We would have a terrible mess if we would remove our local school districts from under the governance of our locally elected and controlled school boards.

"I think the community colleges need to have the same type of locally elected and locally controlled type of governance, but only on a broader basis."

And "that's why I think" the Unicameral's decision to establish six community college districts "was right," he said.

'Destroy Ability'

"If you take that away, I think you destroy the ability of the community colleges to be truly responsive" to the area residents they serve, Nielsen said.

He also declared a necessity for area boards to have authority to build or move or close campuses, if that responds to the area need.

Otherwise, Nielsen said, it would be the same as a school district having to get approval of the Legislature to build anew or make changes, "and that would be totally unworkable."

Dual-Purpose Unit

The 12-member NACCT board also appointed a dual-purpose committee, to set a budget for the balance of 1975-76 and propose one for 1976-77, and to act as a search committee to obtain a corporation executive secretary.

Proposed budgets will be submitted at the next NACCT meeting in February, tentatively set in Lincoln, Nielsen said. No deadline was set to fill the executive post.

The trustees established a July 1-June 30 fiscal year, adopted bylaws, will certify final articles of incorporation and apply for tax-exempt status.

'Gag' Ruling Rapped By Sigma Delta Chi

Washington (UPI) — The society of professional journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, Thursday attacked a decision by Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun permitting Nebraska courts to continue a news blackout on major developments in the Erwin Charles Simants murder case.

Simants, 29, is charged with six counts of first degree murder and first degree sexual assault. His trial is scheduled for Jan. 5 in North Platte.

Reporters and press groups in the state have charged that a news blackout in the case and upcoming trial violate first amendment rights of a free press.

Sigma Delta Chi's National Freedom of Information Committee said Blackmun's recent order, which has been appealed to the full Supreme Court, could set a "dangerous precedent" in eroding those first amendment rights.

Blackmun's decision gave the news media permission to publish some details of the Simants' case, but barred disclosure of any confession or other statement that could harm the accused.

Sigma Delta Chi said it hoped the full court would reverse Blackmun's ruling "without delay." It also commended efforts by Nebraska press groups and reporters "to open the trial to unfettered reporting and thereby head off a dangerous precedent for freedom of information."

Blackmun noted Simants' rights to a fair trial under the sixth amendment must be protected as well as those first amendment rights of news media.

But Sigma Delta Chi, in a statement signed by Chairman Grant Dillman of information freedom committee, said both could be upheld during the trial.

"The society believes that when there is a conflict between the sixth amendment and the first amendment's free press guarantees, it should be resolved by sequestering the jury rather than by resorting to prior restrains as in the Nebraska case," the statement said.

"To do otherwise would be to deprive the public of the information it needs to judge the effectiveness of the judicial system and eventually undermine the very public confidence the Nebraska courts seek to instill through their actions in the Simants case."

The Nebraska Supreme Court, meanwhile, Wednesday took under consideration a request by news media attorneys to set aside an order by Lincoln County District Judge Hugh Stuart to limit reporting of a preliminary hearing for Simants.

Fremont St. Study Lists Alternatives

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City Hall machinery is gearing up to widen Fremont St. in northeast Lincoln from 48th to 70th.

A report prepared by the Public Works Department lists a wide range of alternatives to improve the street, which is narrow and generally without curbs, gutters or adequate lighting.

The city agreed to study the possibility of improving Fremont after a number of homeowners along the street bugged the mayor and City Council to do something about it.

The basic proposal outlined in the report calls for widening, with improved street lighting and traffic signals. Storm sewer construction, school crossing signals, tree planting and curb ramps also are included.

Cost of the project is estimated at $1.35 million. Federal dollars would pick up 70% of the bill.

Fremont St. is 20 feet wide from 49th to 68th and is 38 feet wide from 68th to 70th.

The Public Works Department lists other ways to handle traffic on the street, among them considering varying pavement widths. The width would depend on whether a two-lane or four-lane street is built and whether medians are constructed.

Also being considered is the possibility of linking Fremont to Hartley, as one-way pairs from 48th to 66th.

A third alternative suggests that Fremont be made four-lane from 48th to 56th, turning into a two-lane road from 56th to 70th.

The city will hold a neighborhood information meeting at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 11 at Dawes School, 49th and Colfax, to explain the report and planning process. Citizens will then have 30 days to comment on the report.

A public hearing before the City Council on the project is scheduled for March.

Presentation of the report is part of the street action plan, which is designed to increase citizen participation in the street planning process.

Nebraska Serviceman Shot At Minot Air Base

MINOT, N.D. (AP) — A 19-year-old security policeman is listed in satisfactory condition at a Minot hospital following a shooting incident Thursday at the Minot Air Force Base, a base spokesman said.

Maj. Milburn Sharpe, a base information officer, said Airman 1-C. George Welch Jr. of Thedford, Neb., underwent surgery Thursday after he was shot while on duty at the base.

"The bullet went completely through his body and missed all of his vital organs," Sharpe said.

He also said several persons were questioned in connection with the incident. The major said no charges have been filed, but the investigation into the shooting was continuing.

"A total of nine people were questioned on this, but all have been released," he said.

Welch was shot with his own weapon, a .38 caliber pistol, near a barracks early Thursday morning.

Sharpe said Welch was inspecting a parking lot and saw several men vandalizing a car. When the security policeman challenged them, they turned on him and he was shot, Sharpe said.

Sharpe quoted the report as saying four or five men were involved.

NPPD Won't Get Involved With N.M. Uranium Mine

Columbus — The Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) will not become involved financially or any other way in a potential uranium mine in northern New Mexico.

Bob Kamber, an NPPD assistant general manager, said negotiations have been terminated with the owner of the uranium deposits because too many uncertainties were involved.

NPPD had been negotiating with the owner for possible purchase of milled uranium ore that could be processed further for use at Cooper Nuclear Station near Brownville.

Kamber said no particular item led to termination of negotiations. Rather, he said, it involved a number of things, such as financing arrangements and some technical and legal matters.

NPPD will continue to look at other sources of uranium fuel for Cooper, he said.

Wallace C. Peterson

State Economic Education Group Picks Peterson

The Nebraska Council on Economic Education announced Thursday the election of Wallace C. Peterson of Lincoln as chairman for 1976.

Soshnik, former chief executive officer for NU's Lincoln campus, served as the council's chairman for the past two years and will remain as a member of the executive committee.

The other officers who will also serve on the executive committee include Vernon A. Allan of Scottsbluff, vice chairman representing business, Nels Peterson of Omaha, vice chairman representing labor, and Ralph Raikes of Ashland, vice chairman recpresenting agriculture.

John Hilsabeck of Omaha was re-elected council treasurer.

Among new turestees elected to the board were John L. Maginn of Omaha, Thomas E. Moore of Omaha and Harold Rowe of Kearney.

Rural Electrification Meet Set

The Nebraska Rural Electrification Association will hold its 40th annual meeting in Lincoln Monday through Wednesday of next week.

Association officials said a highlight of the meeting will be a talk by Ken Holum, general manager of Western Fuels Association, a nonprofit group involved in getting fuels for member generating plants.

Holum will discuss attempts to reverse a recent court ruling against immediate development of low sulphur coal fields in the northern Great Plains, including Montana and Wyoming.

The ruling, obtained by the Sierra Club, asks that a full environmental study be done for the coal field area before mining operations begin.

The association contends because the study could take several years, it could block construction and operation of needed electrical generation plants in the area.

Also speaking will be John Dolinger, president of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association of Washington, D.C.

The speaker for the annual banquet on Tuesday will be William Matson, general manager of the Pennsylvania Rural Electric Association.

A highlight of the banquet will be the presentation of a special award to Rollie Gibson of St. Paul, who recently received the president's medal for saving the life of a fellow worker who lost both arms in an electrical substation accident.

Another event scheduled for the convention is a panel discussion on the Unicameral's proposed study of public power district rate structures.

Fremont Man Shot In Face In Gun Mishap

Fremont (AP) — A rural Fremont man was reported in satisfactory condition at a hospital Thursday with a face wound suffered in a quick draw mishap.

The Dodge County sheriff's office said Frank Bawersox, in his early 20s, was practicing revolver quick draws Wednesday with Ronald Payne, 29.

Officers said Bawersox was wounded when the revolver held by Payne discharged. The sheriff's office said both men believed the revolver was unloaded and the incident was ruled an accident.

Bawersox and Payne live at a mobile home development four miles west of Fremont, where the incident occurred.

Polygraph Tool, Not Judge

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

You sit in a quiet room — just you, the examiner and a polygraph. The polygraph has its wiry arms around you, trying to take your moral pulse.

There is nothing to distract you. And there is nothing to worry about — unless you lie.

"Have you ever stolen anything?" the examiner asks.

You lie.

And behind your back the lie detector's pins start writing "Liar" in a jerky, illegible script the examiner has been trained to read.

"It's not magic or a mystery," said Lt. Gene Armstead, a polygraph examiner for the Lincoln Police Department. "All we want to do is find out if they (recruits) are telling the truth."

The polygraph is a highly sensitive instrument capable of measuring involuntary physical reactions believed to occur when people lie.

Polygraph examinations are not admissible evidence in Nebraska courts except by the agreement of both prosecution and defense. But polygraphs increasingly are being used by businesses to verify applications and track down employe theft.

Armstead said the police polygraph — a four-pin, $2,400 model — measures breathing-rate, blood pressure and perspiration. More expensive models measure such things as the amount of blood in the capillaries.

Two corrugated tubes are wrapped around the subject's chest, one high and one low. A blood pressure cuff is placed on the arm. An electrode is attached to the hand.

Theoretically, people are taught from birth that something bad happens when they lie, Armstead said. The body responds with fear, signified by quicker breathing, higher blood pressure and sweaty palms.

These involuntary responses are measured by the polygraph.

"Some people think they can control their breathing, for instance, but the response becomes too gross. It's obvious they're trying to control their reactions," he said.

Armstead, who attended a six-week polygraph school in Chicago, said the polygraph is a tool for use in judging people, not the judge itself.

"I'm the one they have to convince. The machine doesn't light up or ring bells when they're lying. I have to decide that," he said. "Nobody ever beat the polygraph. They may have beaten the examiner, though.

"The machine gives me two advantages. It records reactions so I can look at them later, and it has more sensitivity. It sees what usually cannot be seen. For instance, it's hard to see a change in blood pressure."

A pre-employment polygraph test for the police department takes an hour to 2½ hours, Armstead said.

Most of the important questions asked during the polygraph test are asked in an interview prior to it.

"For instance, we'll ask if they've ever stolen anything. I haven't had anybody in here yet who hasn't taken something. So we'll get a list of all the pens and pencils, and then when we do the polygraph test I can ask if they've ever stolen anything they haven't told me about."

The polygraph exam is given in two sessions. During the second session, follow-up questions and less important questions are asked. Occasionally, a third session is required, Armstead said, "for something hard to bring out like the use of drugs.

"We're not so concerned about whether they stole something yesterday," he said. "We're concerned about whether or not they tell the truth."

For a story on the use of lie detector tests of business employes, see Page 1.

Women Volunteer Firefighters During Day

Micanopy, Fla. (UPI) — Between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. on weekdays, women run the Micanopy Volunteer Fire Department while their menfolk are off in nearby Gainesville earning a living.

"At first, it was kind of hard," said Carmen Polk, the only paid firefighter in Micanopy (population 500) and wife of Claude Polk, the town's fire chief.

"But the times we've gone out we've done the same things they would've done. I think we've done as well as they could have done."

The 10 women members were added to the fire department two years ago after a large house burned to the ground because firemen arrived too late from Gainesville, about 15 miles north of here.

"If you've got your hair rolled up in curlers you've just got to go that way," said Mrs. Polk, who has two children and becomes a volunteer herself after her 8-to-5 shift and on weekends

One night the alarm was sounded while she was wearing a bikini She grabbed her heavy canvas jump suit and put it on over the bathing suit.

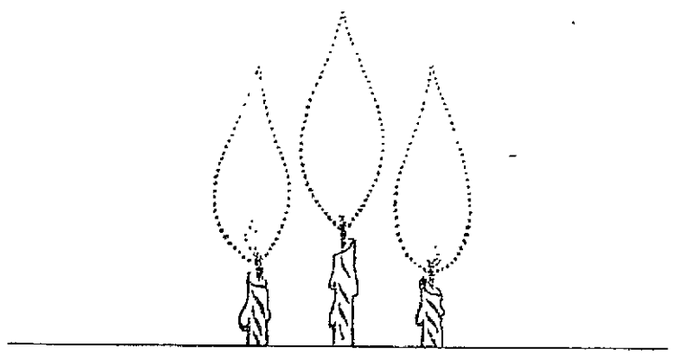

"Everybody thought it was real funny," she said.

The women finally have received fire hats and boots made to their petite sizes.

A new air-conditioned fire station will have separate sleeping quarters and bathrooms, said Mrs. Polk, whose main job is to sound alarms and keep the equipment, two trucks and a rescue unit, clean and shining.

The biggest fire the women have had was an attic fire in an old house. They had to request help from the Gainesville Fire Department. Most of their alarms, however, are for small brush fires.

You're invited to a five-day birthday party for

JOSEPHINE

...our 3-year-old 24 hour Teller Machine

Perhaps you remember when Josephine was born —7:30 a.m., November 28, 1972.

She wasn't a pretty baby. You can hardly call her a pretty child. But she's very talented and very alert.

Josephine never sleeps. She's never even taken a nap. Except for an occasional diaper change, she has been standing in her crib ready to complete any of 11 different banking transactions for customers every minute of every day since the nurse brought her in from the delivery room.

Polygraph Tool, Not Judge

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

You sit in a quiet room — just you, the examiner and a polygraph. The polygraph has its wiry arms around you, trying to take your moral pulse.

There is nothing to distract you. And there is nothing to worry about — unless you lie.

"Have you ever stolen anything?" the examiner asks.

You lie.

And behind your back the lie detector's pins start writing "Liar" in a jerky, illegible script the examiner has been trained to read.

"It's not magic or a mystery," said Lt. Gene Armstead, a polygraph examiner for the Lincoln Police Department. "All we want to do is find out if they (recruits) are telling the truth."

The polygraph is a highly sensitive instrument capable of measuring involuntary physical reactions believed to occur when people lie.

Polygraph examinations are not admissible evidence in Nebraska courts except by the agreement of both prosecution and defense. But polygraphs increasingly are being used by businesses to verify applications and track down employe theft.

Armstead said the police polygraph — a four-pin, $2,400 model — measures breathing-rate, blood pressure and perspiration. More expensive models measure such things as the amount of blood in the capillaries.

Two corrugated tubes are wrapped around the subject's chest, one high and one low. A blood pressure cuff is placed on the arm. An electrode is attached to the hand.

Theoretically, people are taught from birth that something bad happens when they lie, Armstead said. The body responds with fear, signified by quicker breathing, higher blood pressure and sweaty palms.

These involuntary responses are measured by the polygraph.

"Some people think they can control their breathing, for instance, but the response becomes too gross. It's obvious they're trying to control their reactions," he said.

Armstead, who attended a six-week polygraph school in Chicago, said the polygraph is a tool for use in judging people, not the judge itself.

"I'm the one they have to convince. The machine doesn't light up or ring bells when they're lying. I have to decide that," he said. "Nobody ever beat the polygraph. They may have beaten the examiner, though.

"The machine gives me two advantages. It records reactions so I can look at them later, and it has more sensitivity. It sees what usually cannot be seen. For instance, it's hard to see a change in blood pressure."

A pre-employment polygraph test for the police department takes an hour to 2½ hours, Armstead said.

Most of the important questions asked during the polygraph test are asked in an interview prior to it.

"For instance, we'll ask if they've ever stolen anything. I haven't had anybody in here yet who hasn't taken something. So we'll get a list of all the pens and pencils, and then when we do the polygraph test I can ask if they've ever stolen anything they haven't told me about."

The polygraph exam is given in two sessions. During the second session, follow-up questions and less important questions are asked. Occasionally, a third session is required, Armstead said, "for something hard to bring out like the use of drugs.

"We're not so concerned about whether they stole something yesterday," he said. "We're concerned about whether or not they tell the truth."

For a story on the use of lie detector tests of business employes, see Page 1.

Women Volunteer Firefighters During Day

Micanopy, Fla. (UPI) — Between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. on weekdays, women run the Micanopy Volunteer Fire Department while their menfolk are off in nearby Gainesville earning a living.

"At first, it was kind of hard," said Carmen Polk, the only paid firefighter in Micanopy (population 500) and wife of Claude Polk, the town's fire chief.

"But the times we've gone out we've done the same things they would've done. I think we've done as well as they could have done."

The 10 women members were added to the fire department two years ago after a large house burned to the ground because firemen arrived too late from Gainesville, about 15 miles north of here.

"If you've got your hair rolled up in curlers you've just got to go that way," said Mrs. Polk, who has two children and becomes a volunteer herself after her 8-to-5 shift and on weekends.

One night the alarm was sounded while she was wearing a bikini. She grabbed her heavy canvas jump suit and put it on over the bathing suit.

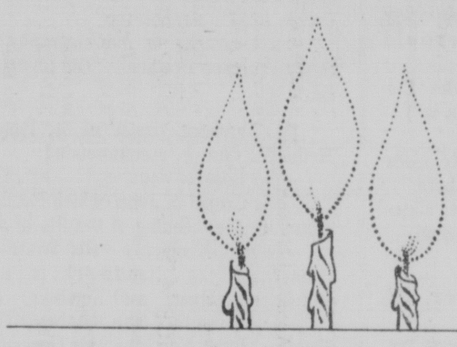

"Everybody thought it was real funny," she said.

The women finally have received fire hats and boots made to their petite sizes.

A new air-conditioned fire station will have separate sleeping quarters and bathrooms, said Mrs. Polk, whose main job is to sound alarms and keep the equipment, two trucks and a rescue unit, clean and shining.

The biggest fire the women have had was an attic fire in an old house. They had to request help from the Gainesville Fire Department. Most of their alarms, however, are for small brush fires.

Bible, Bard Lead Lists

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

The Bible and the works of Shakespeare won hands down.

Eight Lincoln people who work in academic or book-related fields were each asked to name five books they felt might be included on an "educated" person's reading list.

Five agreed that the Bible should be included. Likewise, five (not necessarily the same five) listed one or another of Shakespeare's works.

Only three other books were mentioned on more than one list: "The Federalist Papers," Gibbon's "The History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" and Twain's "Huckleberry Finn," each of which was mentioned twice.

It's hard to recommend books for other people based on your own reading preferences, commented Charles Dalrymple, director of the Lincoln City Libraries.

Dalrymple said he likes to know what a person's interests are before suggesting a book to him or her.

However, based on his personal preference, Dalrymple recommended the following books:

—"The Story of Civilization," series by Ariel and Will Durant.

—Van Doren's "Anthology of World Poetry"

—selected works of Shakespeare

—"The History of Philosophy" by Bertrand Russell

—poems by ee. cummings.

If you have read these books, you won't necessarily be well-educated, Dalrymple said. But "you will read other books more insightfully."

"What I would select is in the Western, English-speaking tradition," said University of Nebraska-Lincoln English Professor Bernice Slote. "Others from different backgrounds . . . would select others," she continued.

Miss Slote listed the following works as "five of the books, not the five" that an educated person might have read:

—selections from the Bible (preferably the King James version, read "as a work of history and a foundation for understanding a good deal of literature")

—Shakespeare's "Hamlet" (described by Miss Slote as the "ultimate problem-posing play about the nature of man's choices and actions")

—Homer's "Odyssey" ("a classic quest story which has a kind of archetypical significance")

—Keats' poetry, expecially the "great odes" ("With Keats' poetry, you come as near as you can get to man's sense of life, death, immortality.")

—"Huckleberry Finn" (a book that "gives you a feeling for this country").

Responding to the request as "a humanist, not a scientist," Nebraska Wesleyan University English Professor Leon Satterfield recommended:

—Sophocles' "Oedipus Rex" (provides "the essence of the tragic view of what man is")

—Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales"

—Voltaire's "Candide" ("Everybody needs the healthy skepticism that's implied there.")

—Thoreau's "Walden" (an excellent "statement regarding the worth of the individual)

—Huckleberry Finn.

A scientist, NWU Biology Professor Bill Boernke, listed the following:

—Heller's "Catch-22" ("We take ourselves too seriously" and this book "puts the pretensions of human beings down.")

—Dostoevsky's "The Brothers Karamazov" (in part, for its treatment of "psychological factors")

—Steinbeck's "The Grapes of Wrath"

—selected Greek and Shakespearian tragedies

—"Zen and the Art of Motorcyle Maintenance" by Robert Pirsig (a relatively new book which revolves around a discussion of rational Western thought as opposed to Eastern thought).

Durward Varner, UNL president, compiled his list on the basis of categories:

—the Bible (religion)

"Cybernetics" by Norbert Wiener (science)

—"The Federalist Papers" (public affairs)

—"Civilisation" by Kenneth Clark (humanities)

"The Lonely Crowd" by David Reisman (behavoiral science).

"I think a person should be acquainted with the Bible," though not necessarily from "cover to cover" said Dr. Otis Young, pastor of First-Plymouth Congregational Church.

Dr. Young, who along with the Rev. Dr. Clarence Forsberg, appears on a local radio station's book review program, also listed the following books:

—"The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire"

—Shakespeare's plays

—one of "the great novels" such as "Gone With the Wind" or Willa Cather's "Death Comes for the Archbishop"

—a biography or autobiography such as Harry Emerson Fosdick's "The Living of these Days."

Dr. Forsberg, pastor of St. Paul United Methodist Church, recommended:

—the Book of Job

—the Gospel of John (which Forsberg said "sums up the meaning of the life of Jesus")

—Gerald Kennedy's "His Word Through Preaching" (a "landmark in my own professional career," said Forsberg)

—any books by Loren Eisley ("The Night Country," "The Man Who Saw Through Time," "The Immense Journey")

—books by Wright Morris ("The Field Of Vision," "My Uncle Dudley," "The Works Of Love").

Mrs. Mara Murphy, English Teacher at Lincoln Southeast High School, also listed the Bible, which she said should be read for its literary, historical and inspirational merits.

The reamaining four books on her list — which she noted was limited to Western thought — were:

—the collected works of Shakespeare

—"The Federalist Papers"

—"The Deline and Fall of the Roman Empire"

—Remarque's "All Quiet on the Western Front" ("It's a work that's quite represenative of the disillusionment that precipitated many of the changes" following World War I).

Snoring Of Husband Helped Woman Sleep

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: My husband died last winter, and ever since. I have had a terrible time falling asleep. I don't want to get into the habit of taking sleeping pills.

I recently visited my sister, and the sound of her husband's snoring in the next room put me to sleep instantly! Every night I was there I slept like a baby. I soon realized that what I'd been missing all these months was the sound of my beloved late husband's snoring. It must have given me a sense of security and well being.

I suppose it is ridiculous to ask if there is some place I can buy a record or a tape of a man snoring. But that could be the answer to my problem. Can you help me?

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

DEAR SLEEPLESS: Ask your sister's husband to record a long snoring session on a cassette. All you'll need is something on which to play it, and you're off to dreamland!

DEAR ABBY: My son, a brilliant, ambitious honor student, has just announced that he is dropping out of law school (in his second year) to get a job so he can marry a girl he hsa gotten pregnant.

This young man was told the facts of life early so there is no excuse for such an "accident." Nowadays, no girl has to get pregnant unless she wants to — or is awfully dumb. And, Abby, this girl is far from dumb — she's 21 and a college dropout.

I can't help but feel that the girl used my son to escape from a family situation she found intolerable.

I know I can't prevent the marriage, but I would like to know how I can honestly accept this girl when I feel she used my son and cost him his lifelong dream — to become a lawyer.

CRUSHED IN COLORADO

DEAR CRUSHED: Unless you want to alienate your son completely, you had better "accept" the girl — and graciously.

If your son is as brilliant and ambitious as you say he is, he'll find a way to resume his education and realize his lifelong dream.

DEAR ABBY: I am anti-trousers for females. So much so that I refuse to extend any gentlemanly courtesies to a woman who is wearing trousers. (I won't hold a door open for her, allow her to go ahead of me or help her with her chair.)

If I get a waitress who is wearing trousers, and doing a good job, she gets NO tip. If she does an excellent job, she gets only a 5 per cent tip, but I won't go back to that restaurant. A waitress wearing a skirt (length unimportant) gets anywhere from 15 per cent to 25 per cent tip, depending upon the service she gives me.

My wife wears trousers once in a while. So do my daughters-in-law, but if they don't wear dresses in public, I refuse to go along. And when I don't go, they have no one to pick up the tab.

I've heard all the excuses women use for wearing pants instead of skirts — "they're more comfortable, hide the runs in my stockings, keep my legs warm in winter," etc — but I still hate 'em.

PREFERS SKIRTS

DEAR PREFERS: To each his own, but I think you're unfair to penalize a waitress just because the legs she rushes around on to serve you happen to be in trousers!

PLEASE HELP SAVE A TREE!

Old, discarded phone books can make a paper mountain of pollution. Or, recycled, they can save many trees. The Salvation Army and the Lincoln Telephone Company are again working together to collect and recycle used 1975 telephone directories in the Lincoln area. And you can help so easily. Just drop your old directories in any Salvation Army drop box or take them to any Red Shield Store by December 15, 1975. Locations are listed below.

It is estimated that each ton of recycled paper saves about 17 trees. Together, we can save a small forest.

PLEASE HELP SAVE A TREE!

Old, discarded phone books can make a paper mountain of pollution. Or, recycled, they can save many trees. The Salvation Army and the Lincoln Telephone Company are again working together to collect and recycle used 1975 telephone directories in the Lincoln area. And you can help so easily. Just drop your old directories in any Salvation Army drop box or take them to any Red Shield Store by December 15, 1975. Locations are listed below.

It is estimated that each ton of recycled paper saves about 17 trees. Together, we can save a small forest.

Opening lead — king of hearts

The real test of a bidding partnership is its ability to bid (or avoid) slams Accuracy is the keynote of slam bidding — because, in effect, you predict you'll make twelve tricks, neither more nor less This is quite different from bidding, say, three notrump, where you might make either 9, 10 or 11 tricks without testing your skill as a bidder

Consider this deal from a match between Sweden and the United States When the American pair were North-South, they stopped at five spades True, they had only 23 high-card points, but that didn't stop them from making 12 easy tricks

After North's jump raise, South made an excellent bid of four diamonds, realizing that North might have the right hand for a slam North cuebid clubs in response, even though he had less than the normal complement of high cards for his three spade bid

South should have bid six spades at this point, but he chickened out. He felt he had done enough by cuebidding diamonds and couldn't bring himself to bid six on his 12-point hand He bid only five.

North passed, since he had nothing in hearts and had already bid his hand to the hilt West led the heart king, which held, and South took the rest of the tricks.

When the Swedish pair at the second table were North-South, they did not come even close to a slam The bidding went 1♠-3♠-4♠, period West led a club and Sweden gained an insignificant 30 points on the deal when their declarer made all the tricks.

The deal vividly illustrates that high cards are not the sole criterion in slam bidding. Distribution also plays an important role.

Fromme Jurors Avoid Reporters

SACRAMENTO, Calif (AP) The jurors who convicted Lynette 'Squeaky' Fromme of trying to kill President Ford, apparently fearing reprisals from the notorious Charles Manson family remained silent Thursday about the wrangling deliberations that preceded their verdict

After returning the verdict late Wednesday night, the jury sent word through the judge that they would not speak to reporters and on Thanksgiving Day most could not be reached at their homes

Their refusal to talk to reporters — and a specific request that they not be photographed — indicated they might be fearful of reprisals from the Manson family

I've been advised, U S District Court Judge Thomas J MacBride had told reporters, that no member of the jury wishes to confer with the press or to have their pictures taken

This has been a trying experience for them, to say the least and they do not want to be subjected to any more publicity than they have already

After the verdict the eight women and four men — mostly middle aged and elderly — returned to the hotel where they had been sequestered during the three week trial They collected their belongings, but a team of U S marshals would not permit them to leave until after all reporters had left the area

The jurors had been reported deadlocked at one point in its 19½ hours of deliberations But they offered no hint of how the initial vote went on the question of whether Miss Fromme intended to kill the President

At one point even MacBride speculated that they might be having great difficulty reaching a decision

But when they returned solemnly to court late Wednesday, each one answered unflinchingly 'Yes,' when asked if they agreed with the verdict

As they left the courtroom, some jurors may have noticed Miss Fromme's former roommate and sister Manson follower, Sandra Good, in the back row

Miss Good, who came to court with a group of friends and supporters later gave interviews predicting violence for those who oppose the Manson cult

Miss Fromme, 27 was the first person to be found guilty under a 1965 federal law covering the attempted assassination of a president

The jury deliberated over three days before returning the verdict Miss Fromme could receive a life term when she is sentenced Dec 17 after a probation report

She chose to stay outside court for the verdict as she had since testimony began

Miss Fromme arrested in a park outside the state Capitol on Sept 5 after she pointed a loaded gun at President Ford, returned to court after the jury left looking pale but smiling at her attorney got into an argument with the judge and was evicted

The case included the first oral testimony by a president at a criminal trial Ford's videotaped testimony which led off the defense case said little more than that he saw a hand carrying a gun emerge from a crowd of well-wishers

Miss Good, Miss Fromme's roommate and also a follower of Manson the convicted mass murderer and cult leader spoke of more violence only moments after the verdict was returned

Your children will rise up and kill you Your own children saw what you've done Now you've judged yourselves again You all know money is your god Miss Good 31, proclaimed to reporters

They'll Flip A Coin

CLYDE HILL, Wash (AP) — What the 1,152 voters here couldn't decide in the last mayoral election will be settled Monday with the flip of a coin

It's just ridiculous I don't think that's how the people would want it done,' said Lib Tufarolo, who received 576 votes

Oh well, I guess it's the most equitable, least offensive method of settling it, said Miles Nelson, who also received 576 votes

Both men say they would rather have another election

But Ralph Dillon, King County superintendent of elections, and flipper of the decisive coin said 'The law says that in case of a tie you decide the election by lot and the usual procedure has been to flip a coin

Why was this community so evenly divided? There are at least two different views

The people didn't know there was a choice' said Nelson who spent $5 on his campaign "They didn't vote intelligently

I attribute it mostly to my position on the ballot, said Tufarolo whose name appeared below Nelson's

Future Brightening For Santee Reservation

Santee (AP) — A cattle herd and a new industrial plant are among several projects which promise a brighter future for residents of the Santee Sioux Indian Reservation in Knox County

The new Becton-Dickenson and Co plant located on the tribe's industrial tract is operated by 18 Indian employes Plant manager Donald LaPointe said 'it is bound to expand

It is the fourth B-D plant in Nebraska and the only one of the firm's 60 plants worldwide that is managed by Indians

The plant produces thermometer kits and disposable shields for electric thermometers

The plant is about nine miles south of the recently incorporated Village of Santee that has grown from 85 to 290 residents since 1970

In the village, a 103-year-old Episcopal Church is being restored and the bell tower renovated

Another item of pride on the reservation is the self-help cattle program that was started two years ago with federal funds

The Methodist Men of Nebraska pitched in with 59 head and about 80 cows calved this year boosting the tribally owned herd to more than 200 cows and calves

Carl Crosley, community action program director, estimates it will take two more years to reach a 300-head base herd After it is established, cattle will be distributed to qualified tribal members who will receive training in cattle management

At the southern edge of town, a new grade school will open next month that will accommodate 225 pupils More than 60 low income housing units have been constructed in the last six years and another 60 are being considered

The tribal grocery store, which opened less than two years ago, is operating in the black And a new recreational park with facilities for campers and trailers will provide another source of income when the tribe begins selling camping supplies there next spring

Jim James, tribal reservation planner, says the community reached a turning point in 1970 when the federal housing project began

He said, "A good number of people are staying around because there is a job opportunity and an educational opportunity

An early morning burglary resulted in the loss of $540 Thursday at Klein's IGA, 815 S 11th, police said

An additional $100 damage was done to the storeroom area, where, police speculate, the burglars entered the building and ransacked the area before stealing the money from registers in the front of the store

Oskaloosa Iowa (UPI) — The Iowa Coal Research Project said it has sold 50,000 tons of Iowa coal to a Northcentral Iowa Utility, the first commercial sale of coal from the experimental mine site near here

The purchaser was Cornbelt Power Co of Humboldt, which said the 50 000 tons represented about a six-month supply

Judge Katz Rejects Request For 2 NETV Bargaining Units

By United Press International

Judge Dean Kratz of the State Court of Industrial Relations has rejected a request for an election to decide the exclusive bargaining agents for Lincoln employes of the Nebraska Educational Television Network

Local 121 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers had wanted two separate units to represent the workers in collective bargaining

One bargaining unit would have dealt with engineers from the University of Nebraska and the Nebraska Educational Television Commission The other was to represent University production workers

Judge Kratz said the request was inappropriate because state law says fragmentation of collective bargaining units should be avoided

'Fragmented units interfere with the continuous operational efficiency of governmental service and should therefore, be avoided he said

Fromme Jurors Avoid Reporters

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The jurors who convicted Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme of trying to kill President Ford, apparently fearing reprisals from the notorious Charles Manson family, remained silent Thursday about the wrangling deliberations that preceded their verdict.

After returning the verdict late Wednesday night, the jury sent word through the judge that they would not speak to reporters, and on Thanksgiving Day most could not be reached at their homes.

Their refusal to talk to reporters — and a specific request that they not be photographed — indicated they might be fearful of reprisals from the Manson family.

"I've been advised," U.S. District Court Judge Thomas J. MacBride had told reporters, "that no member of the jury wishes to confer with the press or to have their pictures taken.

"This has been a trying experience for them, to say the least, and they do not want to be subjected to any more publicity than they have already."

After the verdict, the eight women and four men — mostly middle-aged and elderly — returned to the hotel where they had been sequestered during the three-week trial. They collected their belongings, but a team of U.S. marshals would not permit them to leave until after all reporters had left the area.

The jurors had been reported deadlocked at one point in its 19½ hours of deliberations. But they offered no hint of how the initial vote went on the question of whether Miss Fromme intended to kill the President.

At one point, even MacBride speculated that they might be having great difficulty reaching a decision.

But when they returned solemnly to court late Wednesday, each one answered unflinchingly "Yes," when asked if they agreed with the verdict.

As they left the courtroom, some jurors may have noticed Miss Fromme's former roommate and sister Manson follower, Sandra Good, in the back row.

Miss Good, who came to court with a group of friends and supporters, later gave interviews predicting violence for those who oppose the Manson cult.

Miss Fromme, 27, was the first person to be found guilty under a 1965 federal law covering the attempted assassination of a president.

The jury deliberated over three days before returning the verdict. Miss Fromme could receive a life term when she is sentenced Dec. 17, after a probation report.

She chose to stay outside court for the verdict, as she had since testimony began.

Miss Fromme, arrested in a park outside the state Capitol on Sept. 5 after she pointed a loaded gun at President Ford, returned to court after the jury left, looking pale but smiling at her attorney, got into an argument with the judge, and was evicted.

The case included the first oral testimony by a president at a criminal trial. Ford's videotaped testimony, which led off the defense case, said little more than that he saw a hand carrying a gun emerge from a crowd of well-wishers.

Miss Good, Miss Fromme's roommate and also a follower of Manson, the convicted mass murderer and cult leader, spoke of more violence only moments after the verdict was returned.

"Your children will rise up and kill you. Your own children saw what you've done. Now you've judged yourselves again. You all know money is your god," Miss Good, 31, proclaimed to reporters.

They'll Flip A Coin

CLYDE HILL, Wash. (AP) — What the 1,152 voters here couldn't decide in the last mayoral election will be settled Monday with the flip of a coin.

"It's just ridiculous. I don't think that's how the people would want it done," said Lib Tufarolo, who received 576 votes.

"Oh, well, I guess it's the most equitable, least offensive method of settling it," said Miles Nelson, who also received 576 votes.

Both men say they would rather have another election.

But Ralph Dillon, King County superintendent of elections, and flipper of the decisive coin, said: "The law says that in case of a tie you decide the election by lot . . . and the usual procedure has been to flip a coin."

Why was this community so evenly divided? There are at least two different views.

"The people didn't know there was a choice," said Nelson who spent $5 on his campaign. "They didn't vote intelligently."

"I attribute it mostly to my position on the ballot," said Tufarolo, whose name appeared below Nelson's.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — "By my computer, turkey should last four days," I said. The moppets groaned. They said: "We're getting tired of turkey."

I said: "Small wonder we're headed for the poorhouse. Eat what you find in front of you. It's the chef's day off."

Turkey goes on a four-way stretch: The entire browned bird on Thanksgiving Day. Next day cold turkey sandwiches. Hot leftover gravy is provided for those who wish it. Leftover celery and olives are on the table.

Third day: Turkey a la king. Fourth day: Turkey soup.

Modern man is tense as a fox in a forest fire. This is what makes him get a passport and gallop from one country to another. So says a prominent head doctor.

"This may give temporary relief but sooner or later he will feel the same uneasiness no matter where he is."

If you look at the paperback books in the drugstore racks, you'll find many books on tension. How to get yourself down off the chandelier.

The doctor says: "TV and radio play a part in relief. If you stopped radio and television for a week, a great deal of unconscious fear would surface. Hospitals would be full.

Tune in to "SWAT." Relax.

For a week or more I sat on a back porch in Samoa watching the rain come down at 15 inches a day!

I didn't watch TV because there was no TV nearer than New Zealand, I didn't listen to radio. There was no radio.

I sat there and drank Tennent's beer from Scotland. Other times I drank gin from merry England.

I didn't go off my rocker from lack of TV, radio and newspapers. Fact is, I felt absolutely great. With warm tropic rain bucketing down, flying boats quit flying.

There wasn't a blessed thing I could do about it. I went to bed early and slept like a child. Let science get a handle on that.

☆ ☆ ☆

Great and important men are just as tense as you and I, friend. When you begin to coil like a bed spring, keep that in mind. You have company.

They develop ways of untensing.

Harry Truman played the piano. Though his only number was "Missouri Waltz," it smoothed his sandpapered nerves. Never mind an encore.

Some people collect stamps. Many women have tea leaves read to them "A dark and handsome stranger is coming into your life."

They go right out and have their hair done. Relax under the dryer.

A president of General Motors walked his dog. Dog name of Barney. (I can't remember the president's name. But on Barney I have total recall.)

The president came out fit as a fiddle. Barney came out of it with nerves like piano wire. Had to go to a dog psychiatrist.

At no time of life was I ever so relaxed as on the back porch at Aggie Grey's. Rain banging on the roof. A bunch of bananas swinging on a string. I couldn't even find a copy of an old paperback novel.

I rose clear-eyed and relaxed at 6 a.m. I opened a bottle of beer at breakfast without any twinges of conscience.

Then the rain stopped. The flying boat came. I went up to Honolulu and switched on the room TV. And somebody put a key in my back and began winding me up.

Modern man is tense as a fox in a forest fire. This is what makes him get a passport and gallop from one country to another. So says a prominent head doctor.

"This may give temporary relief but sooner or later he will feel the same uneasiness no matter where he is."

If you look at the paperback books in the drugstore racks, you'll find many books on tension. How to get yourself down off the chandelier.

The doctor says: "TV and radio play a part in relief. If you stopped radio and television for a week, a great deal of unconscious fear would surface. Hospitals would be full.

Tune in to "SWAT." Relax.

For a week or more I sat on a back porch in Samoa watching the rain come down at 15 inches a day!

I didn't watch TV because there was no TV nearer than New Zealand, I didn't listen to radio. There was no radio.

I sat there and drank Tennent's beer from Scotland. Other times I drank gin from merry England.

I didn't go off my rocker from lack of TV, radio and newspapers. Fact is, I felt absolutely great. With warm tropic rain bucketing down, flying boats quit flying.

There wasn't a blessed thing I could do about it. I went to bed early and slept like a child. Let science get a handle on that.

☆ ☆ ☆

Great and important men are just as tense as you and I, friend. When you begin to coil like a bed spring, keep that in mind. You have company.

They develop ways of untensing.

Harry Truman played the piano. Though his only number was "Missouri Waltz," it smoothed his sandpapered nerves. Never mind an encore.

Some people collect stamps. Many women have tea leaves read to them "A dark and handsome stranger is coming into your life."

They go right out and have their hair done. Relax under the dryer.

A president of General Motors walked his dog. Dog name of Barney. (I can't remember the president's name. But on Barney I have total recall.)

The president came out fit as a fiddle. Barney came out of it with nerves like piano wire. Had to go to a dog psychiatrist.

At no time of life was I ever so relaxed as on the back porch at Aggie Grey's. Rain banging on the roof. A bunch of bananas swinging on a string. I couldn't even find a copy of an old paperback novel.

I rose clear-eyed and relaxed at 6 a.m. I opened a bottle of beer at breakfast without any twinges of conscience.

Then the rain stopped. The flying boat came. I went up to Honolulu and switched on the room TV. And somebody put a key in my back and began winding me up.

Moscow (UPI) — Moscow city authorities are planning a new tourist attraction — three 100-foot-high glass cubes to be known as a Climatron.

The aim is to display 2,000 species of tropical flora. Architects say each building will have a different climate — humid tropical, humid subtropical and arid subtropical. Still in the planning stage, the Climatron is expected to be completed "within the next few years."

New York (UPI) — Coffee drinking in the United States last year was down from the year before, continuing a decline that started in 1962, according to the National Coffee Association. Moe Iba is not deceived by the University of Illinois' basketball record last season.

"We know they didn't have a great year last season," said the Nebraska assistant basketball coach, "But they have some fine individual players."

The Illini invade the NU Coliseum for a 7:35 p.m. match Friday against coach Joe Cipriano's Nebraska basketball team in NU's season opener.

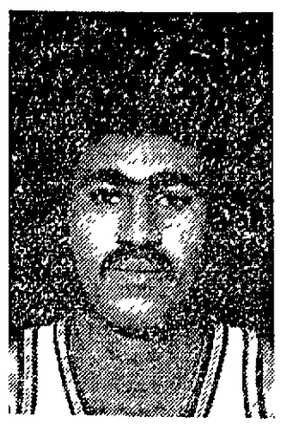

Iba scouted Illinois in a preseason exhibition game against Windsor (Ont.) University last Friday at Champaign and was impressed with new coach Lou Henson's operation.

"The coach has put in a new style which has helped the big stars by slowing the temp down," Iba said. "They play real well together as a team."

He praised 6-6 senior guard Otho Tucker, 6-9 sophomore forward Rich Adams and 6-4 senior guard Nate Williams.

Tucker was the Illini's second-leading scorer last year behind the graduated Rick Schmidt. He averaged 11.8 points while Adams hit 5.1 and Williams was Illinois' third top scorer with a 10.7 average.

"We're going to have a problem with their height," Iba explained. "Their shortest player is 6-4 and they could cause us problems with their big guards (6-6 and 6-4)."

"The main thing for us will be to try to handle their big men," he continued. "Our defense will get a real test. We hope they'll respond."

Illinois finished 8-18 overall last season with a 4-14 Big Ten record (tied for ninth with Northwestern).

But Henson is optimistic about his first Illinois team. He coached at New Mexico State for nine years (with an outstanding 173-71 mark) before replacing Gene Bartow as the Illini boss.

"Our goal for this season is to implement our system," he said. "We will work on establishing our fast-break offense, getting our players to rebound better and above all, to play good defense. We believe the game is won on the defensive end of the floor."

Cipriano, meanwhile, is beginning his 13th year at the Lincoln helm, with perhaps more talent than ever.

Otho Tucker

The guards are his most potent combination. All-Big Eight standout Jerry Fort, the NU team scoring leader the past three years; and senior Steve Willis, who was new to the NU system last year, give NU a strong alignment.

Forward should also be effective with former Fairbury all-stater Bob Siegel and either Rickey Harris, a 6-7 product from Denver, or Allen Holder, a 6-3 transfer from Seminole Junior College in Oklahoma.

Senior Larry Cox will man the center spot despite his lack of exceptional height (6-6). The Denver native averaged 10.2 points-per-game last year including a 20-point outburst against Oklahoma at Norman in a 68-61 NU triumph.

The Huskers, undoubtedly will feature an aggressive defense, which last year ranked second in the Big Eight. But for Nebraska to succeed this season, it must average more than the 69.1 points it averaged last season.

Preliminary Game

Nebraska's junior varsity basketball team will meet the Nebraska Wesleyan University junior varsity in a 5:15 p.m. preliminary to the NU-Illinois game Friday at the NU Coliseum.

Series Record

Illinois leads Nebraska 5-2. The teams last met in 1946-47 when Nebraska lost to Illinois at Champaign, 72-37.

This will be the first time a Joe Cipriano-coached team has played Illinois.

Buffalo running back Jim Braxton bulls his way over the goal line for the first of his three touchdowns in the Bills' 32-14 victory over St. Louis. St. Louis defender Mark Arenson (57) attempts to block Braxton's way.

Cards Stop Simpson, Not Bills

THE LINCOLN STAR
Sports
Friday, November 28, 1975 19

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Clearly, St. Louis' goal was to turn off the Juice. All the Cardinals accomplished in doing was turning on Jim Braxton.

The bruising fullback, who spends most of his time blocking for the irrepressible O. J. Simpson, crashed through the Cards for 160 yards and three touchdowns and Buffalo's defense forced seven St. Louis turnovers Thursday that carried the Bills to a 32-14 upset victory.

"We felt we could do a job offensively against this club," Bills' Coach Lou Saban said. "It was in the game plan to go more with Braxton because we'd been going too much with the Juice. The last few games the other teams were really keying on him."

Simpson said the Cardinals "were playing the off-tackle holes pretty tough—but it left them vulnerable to Jim up the middle. The quick hitters really paid off."

And Braxton added: "We do what we can offensively, according to what the defense does. The middle was weaker, so I got the call."

The victory, achieved in subfreezing temperatures, gave the Bills a 7-4 record and moved them within one-half game of the first-place Miami Dolphins in the National Football League's American Conference East. The Cardinals, 8-3, had their National Conference East lead shaved to one-half game over the Dallas Cowboys.

"We're used to working in weather like this," Saban grinned. "It was a beautiful day. I didn't think we'd get Buffalo weather in St. Louis. It's sure a happy Thanksgiving. This win gives us some impetus."

Braxton ran in twice from one yard out and also scored from the five-yard line. Simpson added a touchdown, his 18th of the season, on a three-yard run, and John Leypoldt kicked a pair of field goals for the Bills in the nationally televised game.

Terry Metcalf opened the Cardinals' scoring with a one-yard touchdown run and closed with a four-yard catch of a Jim Hart pass. But in between, it was all Buffalo, which intecepted four of Hart's passes, sacked him twice and recovered three fumbles.

"We just had a very, very poor game," said Cards' Coach Don Coryell. "Buffalo is a fine team They played very well. They played an awful lot better than we thought they would."

And Hart, looking at the brighter side, observed: "We hurt ourselves, but we're still in first place We just have to win the rest of them."

Braxton, in the best game of his career—surpassing by far his previous high of 119 yards—carried 34 times as the Bills' workhorse. Simpson, the NFL rushing leader, added 85 yards on 23 carries, giving him 1,479 for the season

Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson hit on 11 of 22 passes for 126 yards Hart, who had been sacked only six times in the Cards' previous 10 games, wound up completing 13 of 31 for 156 yards.

The bruising Bills' defense, the second worst in the league, outmuscled the Cardinals' offense after the slippery Metcalf had slashed in from a yard out to give St Louis the lead in the opening seven minutes

Bolstered by Ferguson's accurate passes, the Bills charged 71 yards with the ensuing kickoff to close the lead to 7-6 on Braxton's first touchdown plunge

Leypoldt's conversion sailed wide to the right and Buffalo still trailed. But after defensive end Jeff Winans landed on a Steve Jones fumble to give the ball back to Buffalo, the Bills sailed 37 yards and went ahead to stay on Simpson's short touchdown run up the middle in the second period.

Leypoldt booted a 30-yard field goal early in the third quarter to widen the margin to 16-7. It followed the first of cornerback Dwight Harrison's two interceptions

Later in the period, middle guard Don Croft recovered a fumble by Hart at the St Louis 21-yard line and Leypoldt converted that into a 33-yard field goal

The Bills blew it open early in the fourth period on Braxton's five-yard touchdown burst—set up by Harrison's second theft—and Braxton's one-yard TD run just 73 seconds later, following cornerback Tony Greene s interception.

Metcalf's TD catch was set up by his 74-yard kickoff return following Braxton's third touchdown.

Rams' Quick Pass Helps Blank Lions

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — The best way to beat the blitz is to throw quick passes. It also seems to be the best way to beat the Detroit Lions.

The Los Angeles Rams loaded up on blitz-beating pass plays Thanksgiving Day and rolled up a 20-0 victory over the Lions to win their third NFC Western Division championship in a row.

"It's a great tribute to our team," said Coach Chuck Knox of the Rams. "We came in to play, to wrap up the championship, and we did.

"We expected them to blitz a lot so consequently we threw a lot on first down," he said. "The 'Red-Dog' (blitz) is designed to stop the run."

Quarterback James Harris did not have a spectacular day but he was efficient, hitting passes when it counted and completing three of them for touchdowns—including a pair to wide receiver Harold Jackson.

Detroit Coach Rick Forzano felt interceptions and a trick play that was nullified by a penalty just before the first half ended were what ruined his team.

With less than a minute to go in the first half, Detroit got the ball on its 20 after a punt and the Lions brought out an old one Forzano calls his "guarantee" play. It amounts to the quarterback standing over the football, picking it up and flipping it out to a halfback who has every lineman in front of him and proceeds to run down field.

The surprise worked all right, with Altie Taylor running deep into Los Angeles territory but rookie guard Lynn Boden was detected moving illegally on the play.

"I diagrammed it for the officials before the game," a slightly burned Forzano said. "Maybe I shouldn't have—then they wouldn't have known what to look for."

It may not have mattered anyway because Detroit had trouble getting out of its own territory.

A national television audience watched the Rams improve their record to 9-2 and also saw Detroit's faint playoff hopes dimmed further as the Lions fell to 6-5. Los Angeles only let Detroit cross the 50 yard line three times, once in the first half and twice in the second.

Harris threw an 11-yard touchdown pass to ex-Lion Ron Jessie in the first quarter and connected twice with Jackson in the second half with throws of 17 and 38 yards. Harris wound up with 11 completions in 24 attempts, for 157 yards while Jackson caught five of those passes for a total of 106 yards.

The Rams played near flawless football, fumbling twice but only losing it once, while the Los Angeles defense picked off two Joe Reed passes in handing the Lions their first shutout loss since Washington defeated them 20-0 on Thanksgiving Day in 1973. Los Angeles got its first shutout this season after chalking up two last year.

The Rams scored a touchdown the second time they had the ball when Harris hit Jessie, who caught the ball at the 6 and ducked under attempted tackles by Lem Barney, Charlie West and Paul Naumoff to score.

The only time Reed got Detroit over mid-field in the first half, safety Bill Simpson intercepted his fifth pass of the season at the goal line to blunt the Lions only serious scoring threat. Reed completed only 11 of 26 passes for 117 yards in Detroit's second straight loss.

Strong safety Dave Elmendorf intercepted Reed on the Lion's first drive of the second half and Harris turned the mistake into a touchdown with his 17-yard pass to Jackson.

Early in the fourth quarter, Harris dove over the line for three yards and a first down on a fourth down situation and then, after that brash maneuver, put his 38-yard toss into Jackson's hands as cornerback Levi Johnson was victimized for a second touchdown.

The Rams also rolled up 177 yards on the ground and held a 320-214 overall edge in offense.

Newcomer Award To Ferragamo

Kan as City, Mo. (UPI) — Nebraska quarterback Vince Ferragamo and Oklahoma cornerback Jerry Anderson Thursday were voted UPI's Big Eight offensive and defensive newcomers of the year.

Ferragamo, who had to sit out a year to regain his eligibility after transferring from California, led the Cornhuskers to a 10-1 season and a berth in the Fiesta Bowl.

The 6-3, 208-pound junior from Carson, Calif., led the Big Eight in touchdown passes with 12. Although he didn't become a starter until the sixth game of the season, he completed 79 of 134 for 1,253 yards and a .590 percentage.

Vince Ferragamo
Top Offensive Newcomer

Ferragamo played behind senior Terry Luck until the opening conference game against Oklahoma State. Luck suffered an eye injury in the first quarter of that contest and Ferragamo ran for two touchdowns and passed for two more, leading Nebraska to a 28-20 victory. He started every game thereafter.

Anderson, a 6-0, 187-pound junior from Murfreesboro Tenn., was a junior college transfer from Northeastern A&M in Miami, Okla. He started every Sooner game and quickly became known for his vicious tackling.

For the season, Anderson made 71 tackles, 47 unassisted, had five interceptions, broke up 10 passes and recovered one fumble.

Perhaps his biggest moment of the season came on the final play of the first half last week in the regular-season finale against Nebraska. The Cornhuskers faced fourth down on the Oklahoma one-yard line, where Anderson nailed I-back Monte Anthony to preserve a 7-3 Oklahoma lead during intermission. The Sooners won going away, 35-10, to gain a bid to the Orange Bowl.

Ferragamo polled six of the 17 votes cast by UPI's panel of sports writers and broadcasters. He edged Colorado tailback Tony Reed and Oklahoma fullback Horace Ivory, who drew four and three votes, respectively. No other offensive newcomer received more than one vote.

Anderson's victory in the defensive newcomer category was even closer. He drew six votes to five for Colorado middle guard Charlie Johnson. Kansas defensive tackle Franklin King received two votes and no other defensive newcomer garnered more than one vote.

Earlier UPI Big Eight awards were won by Kansas' Bud Moore, coach of the year, Kansas quarterback Nolan Cromwell, offensive player of the year, and Oklahoma tackle Leroy Selmon, defensive player of the year.

Cleveland Obtains Thurmond

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bulls announced Thursday they have traded reserve center Nate Thurmond and reserve forward Rowland Garrett to the Cleveland Cavaliers for center Steve Patterson and rookie forward Eric Fernsten.

The National Basketball Association team also announced they have obtained veteran forward Jack Marin from the Buffalo Braves for "future considerations."

In addition, guard Jerry Sloan was placed on the injured reserve list, which means he will miss at least five games.

The trade announcement follows several days of speculation about the fate of Thurmond, 34, who came to the Bulls last year from the Golden State Warriors with a $350,000 salary but saw little starting time before being replaced by Tom Boerwinkle. Thurmond was named to the NBA all-star team seven times with Golden State.

Thurmond failed to show for Chicago's Tuesday night game against Cleveland and missed Wednesday's team practice. He was fined 1-62nd of his salary for missing the game—the NBA plays an 82-game schedule— and $100 for missing practice.

Thurmond has said he felt the Bulls front office was making him "a scapegoat" for the team s dismal start this season. Chicago has a 3-11 record, the league's worst. The 6-foot-11, 13-year veteran said Wednesday he wanted to be traded.

Garrett, 25, was a fifth-round draft choice for the Bulls in 1972 and never broke into the starting lineup. The 6-foot-6 forward was expected to fill in for veteran Chet Walker after Walker failed to return to the team this year, but so far rookies Mickey Johnson and Cliff Pondexter have seen more playing time

The 6-foot-9 Patterson, 27, was drafted by Cleveland five years ago out of UCLA

The Cavs also announced veteran Butch Beard, a 6-3 guard, was given his unconditional release to make room on the Cleveland roster for guard Austin Carr. Carr was reactivated Thursday after spending the first month of the NBA season on the injured list with a knee problem.

Illini Fans Eye Henson Debut

By The Associated Press

Does the name Lou Henson ring a bell?

It does for anyone who looked a little beyond the headlines last year when Gene Bartow, who had directed Illinois basketball team through an 8-18 season, was awarded the most prestigious college coaching job in the country.

Bartow recognized as an astute coach, both in the collegiate ranks and with several international teams, replaced non-legendary John Wooden at perennial powerhouse UCLA

And amid all the hoopla that went with Wooden's retirement and Bartow's succession, Henson was quietly named Bartow's successor at Illinois

Henson has some pretty impressive credentials of his own. He coached New Mexico State to a 20-7 record to put his 13-year coaching record at 240-106.

But the cry of "What have you done lately?" may well be on the Illini minds Friday night—and that's when they'll find out just what kind of coach they have

Illinois opens at Nebraska as the college basketball season swings into action

Other major games on tap include Oregon State at 11th-ranked Arizona, Stonehill at 17th-ranked Providence and, in the Iptay Invitational Tournament at Clemson, 20th-ranked Syracuse against Austin Peay

But no doubt as far as most fans are concerned, the season doesn't really get under way until Saturday night, when UCLA's Bruins, the defending national champions but ranked No. 2 in the preseason polls, visits top-ranked Indiana.

Then it ll be the Bruins' fans—or maybe the Hoosiers'—who say, "What have you done lately?"

"I expect a lot from our club," Bartow says "I know Indiana people don t expect their team to lose a game. I also know people look at UCLA the same way

He also wishes he didn't have to send his Bruins against Indiana as a season opener He would have preferred to face the Hoosiers around "the first of the year" referring to the calendar, rather than the schedule.

UCLA has three starters back—but that s not too comforting, Bartow seems to feel. We have talented preseason All-Americans. But on paper, we lost more than they did. We lost David Meyers, one of the great players in the country.

"We felt we could do a job offensively against this club," Bills' Coach Lou Saban said. "It was in the game plan to go more with Braxton because we'd been going too much with the Juice. The last few games the other teams were really keying on him."

Simpson said the Cardinals "were playing the off-tackle holes pretty tough—but it left them vulnerable to Jim up the middle. The quick hitters really paid off."

And Braxton added: "We do what we can offensively, according to what the defense does. The middle was weaker, so I got the call."

The victory, achieved in sub-freezing temperatures, gave the Bills a 7-4 record and moved them within one-half game of the first-place Miami Dolphins in the National Football League's American Conference East. The Cardinals, 8-3, had their National Conference East lead shaved to one-half game over the Dallas Cowboys.

"We're used to working in weather like this," Saban grinned. "It was a beautiful day. I didn't think we'd get Buffalo weather in St. Louis. It's sure a happy Thanksgiving. This win gives us some impetus."

Braxton ran in twice from one yard out and also scored from the five-yard line. Simpson added a touchdown, his 18th of the season, on a three-yard run, and John Leypoldt kicked a pair of field goals for the Bills in the nationally televised game.

Terry Metcalf opened the Cardinals' scoring with a one-yard touchdown run and closed with a four-yard catch of a Jim Hart pass. But in between, it was all Buffalo, which intecepted four of Hart's passes, sacked him twice and recovered three fumbles.

"We just had a very, very poor game," said Cards' Coach Don Coryell. "Buffalo is a fine team. They played very well. They played an awful lot better than we thought they would."

And Hart, looking at the brighter side, observed: "We hurt ourselves, but we're still in first place. We just have to win the rest of them."

Braxton, in the best game of his career—surpassing by far his previous high of 119 yards—carried 34 times as the Bills' workhorse. Simpson, the NFL rushing leader, added 85 yards on 23 carries, giving him 1,479 for the season.

Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson hit on 11 of 22 passes for 128 yards. Hart, who had been sacked only six times in the Cards' previous 10 games, wound up completing 13 of 31 for 156 yards.

The bruising Bills' defense, the second worst in the league, outmuscled the Cardinals' offense after the slippery Metcalf had slashed in from a yard out to give St. Louis the lead in the opening seven minutes.

Bolstered by Ferguson's accurate passes, the Bills charged 71 yards with the ensuing kickoff to close the lead to 7-6 on Braxton's first touchdown plunge.

Leypoldt's conversion sailed wide to the right and Buffalo still trailed. But after defensive end Jeff Winans landed on a Steve Jones fumble to give the ball back to Buffalo, the Bills sailed 37 yards and went ahead to stay on Simpson's short touchdown run up the middle in the second period.

Leypoldt booted a 30-yard field goal early in the third quarter to widen the margin to 16-7. It followed the first of cornerback Dwight Harrison's two interceptions.

Later in the period, middle guard Don Croft recovered a fumble by Hart at the St. Louis 21-yard line and Leypoldt converted that into a 33-yard field goal.

The Bills blew it open early in the fourth period on Braxton's five-yard touchdown burst—set up by Harrison's second theft—and Braxton's one-yard TD run just 73 seconds later, following cornerback Tony Greene's interception.

Metcalf's TD catch was set up by his 74-yard kickoff return following Braxton's third touchdown.

Rams' Quick Pass Helps Blank Lions

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — The best way to beat the blitz is to throw quick passes. It also seems to be the best way to beat the Detroit Lions.

The Los Angeles Rams loaded up on blitz-beating pass plays Thanksgiving Day and rolled up a 20-0 victory over the Lions to win their third NFC Western Division championship in a row.

"It's a great tribute to our team," said Coach Chuck Knox of the Rams. "We came in to play, to wrap up the championship, and we did.

"We expected them to blitz a lot so consequently we threw a lot on first down," he said. "The 'Red-Dog' (blitz) is designed to stop the run."

Quarterback James Harris did not have a spectacular day but he was efficient, hitting passes when it counted and completing three of them for touchdowns—including a pair to wide receiver Harold Jackson.

Detroit Coach Rick Forzano felt interceptions and a trick play that was nullified by a penalty just before the first half ended were what ruined his team.

With less than a minute to go in the first half, Detroit got the ball on its 20 after a punt and the Lions brought out an old one Forzano calls his "guarantee" play. It amounts to the quarterback standing over the football, picking it up and flipping it out to a halfback who has every lineman in front of him and proceeds to run down field.

The surprise worked all right, with Altie Taylor running deep into Los Angeles territory but rookie guard Lynn Boden was detected moving illegally on the play.

"I diagrammed it for the officials before the game," a slightly burned Forzano said. "Maybe I shouldn't have—then they wouldn't have known what to look for."

It may not have mattered anyway because Detroit had trouble getting out of its own territory.

A national television audience watched the Rams improve their record to 9-2 and also saw Detroit's faint playoff hopes dimmed further as the Lions fell to 6-5. Los Angeles only let Detroit cross the 50 yard line three times, once in the first half and twice in the second.

Harris threw an 11-yard touchdown pass to ex-Lion Ron Jessie in the first quarter and connected twice with Jackson in the second half with throws of 17 and 38 yards. Harris wound up with 11 completions in 24 attempts for 157 yards while Jackson caught five of those passes for a total of 106 yards.

The Rams played near flawless football, fumbling twice but only losing it once, while the Los Angeles defense picked off two Joe Reed passes in handing the Lions their first shutout loss since Washington defeated them 20-0 on Thanksgiving Day in 1973. Los Angeles got its first shutout this season after chalking up two last year.

The Rams scored a touchdown the second time they had the ball when Harris hit Jessie, who caught the ball at the 6 and ducked under attempted tackles by Lem Barney, Charlie West and Paul Naumoff to score.

The only time Reed got Detroit over mid-field in the first half, safety Bill Simpson intercepted his fifth pass of the season at the goal line to blunt the Lions only serious scoring threat. Reed completed only 11 of 26 passes for 117 yards in Detroit's second straight loss.

Strong safety Dave Elmendorf intercepted Reed on the Lion's first drive of the second half and Harris turned the mistake into a touchdown with his 17-yard pass to Jackson.

Early in the fourth quarter, Harris dove over the line for three yards and a first down on a fourth down situation and then, after that brash maneuver, put his 38-yard toss into Jackson's hands as cornerback Levi Johnson was victimized for a second touchdown.

The Rams also rolled up 177 yards on the ground and held a 320-214 overall edge in offense.

Newcomer Award To Ferragamo

Kan as City, Mo. (UPI) — Nebraska quarterback Vince Ferragamo and Oklahoma cornerback Jerry Anderson Thursday were voted UPI's Big Eight offensive and defensive newcomers of the year.

Ferragamo, who had to sit out a year to regain his eligibility after transferring from California, led the Cornhuskers to a 10-1 season and a berth in the Fiesta Bowl.

The 6-3, 208-pound junior from Carson, Calif., led the Big Eight in touchdown passes with 12. Although he didn't become a starter until the sixth game of the season, he completed 79 of 134 for 1,253 yards and a .590 percentage.

Vince Ferragamo
Top Offensive Newcomer

Ferragamo played behind senior Terry Luck until the opening conference game against Oklahoma State. Luck suffered an eye injury in the first quarter of that contest and Ferragamo ran for two touchdowns and passed for two more, leading Nebraska to a 28-20 victory. He started every game thereafter.

Anderson, a 6-0, 187-pound junior from Murfreesboro Tenn., was a junior college transfer from Northeastern A&M in Miami, Okla. He started every Sooner game and quickly became known for his vicious tackling.

For the season, Anderson made 71 tackles, 47 unassisted, had five interceptions, broke up 10 passes and recovered one fumble.

Perhaps his biggest moment of the season came on the final play of the first half last week in the regular-season finale against Nebraska. The Cornhuskers faced fourth down on the Oklahoma one-yard line where Anderson nailed I-back Monte Anthony to preserve a 7-3 Oklahoma lead during intermission. The Sooners won going away, 35-10, to gain a bid to the Orange Bowl.

Ferragamo polled six of the 17 votes cast by UPI's panel of sports writers and broadcasters. He edged Colorado tailback Tony Reed and Oklahoma fullback Horace Ivory, who drew four and three votes, respectively. No other offensive newcomer received more than one vote.

Anderson's victory in the defensive newcomer category was even closer. He drew six votes to five for Colorado middle guard Charlie Johnson. Kansas defensive tackle Franklin King received two votes and no other defensive newcomer garnered more than one vote.

Earlier UPI Big Eight awards were won by Kansas' Bud Moore, coach of the year; Kansas quarterback Nolan Cromwell, offensive player of the year, and Oklahoma tackle Leroy Selmon, defensive player of the year.

Cleveland Obtains Thurmond

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bulls announced Thursday they have traded reserve center Nate Thurmond and reserve forward Rowland Garrett to the Cleveland Cavaliers for center Steve Patterson and rookie forward Eric Fernsten.

The National Basketball Association team also announced they have obtained veteran forward Jack Marin from the Buffalo Braves for "future considerations."

In addition, guard Jerry Sloan was placed on the injured reserve list, which means he will miss at least five games.

The trade announcement follows several days of speculation about the fate of Thurmond, 34, who came to the Bulls last year from the Golden State Warriors with a $350,000 salary but saw little starting time before being replaced by Tom Boerwinkle. Thurmond was named to the NBA all-star team seven times with Golden State.

Thurmond failed to show for Chicago's Tuesday night game against Cleveland and missed Wednesday's team practice. He was fined 1-82nd of his salary for missing the game—the NBA plays an 82-game schedule—and $100 for missing practice.

Thurmond has said he felt the Bulls front office was making him "a scapegoat" for the team's dismal start this season. Chicago has a 3-11 record, the league's worst. The 6-foot-11, 13-year veteran said Wednesday he wanted to be traded.

Garrett, 25, was a fifth-round draft choice for the Bulls in 1972 and never broke into the starting lineup. The 6-foot-6 forward was expected to fill in for veteran Chet Walker after Walker failed to return to the team this year, but so far rookies Mickey Johnson and Cliff Pondexter have seen more playing time.

The 6-foot-9 Patterson, 27, was drafted by Cleveland five years ago out of UCLA

The Cavs also announced veteran Butch Beard, a 6-3 guard, was given his unconditional release to make room on the Cleveland roster for guard Austin Carr. Carr was reactivated Thursday after spending the first month of the NBA season on the injured list with a knee problem.

Illini Fans Eye Henson Debut

By The Associated Press

Does the name Lou Henson ring a bell?

It does for anyone who looked a little beyond the headlines last year when Gene Bartow, who had directed Illinois' basketball team through an 8-18 season, was awarded the most prestigious college coaching job in the country.

Bartow, recognized as an astute coach, both in the collegiate ranks and with several international teams, replaced near-legendary John Wooden at perennial powerhouse UCLA.

And amid all the hoopla that went with Wooden's retirement and Bartow's succession, Henson was quietly named Bartow's successor at Illinois.

Henson has some pretty impressive credentials of his own. He coached New Mexico State to a 20-7 record to put his 13-year coaching record at 240-106.

But the cry of "What have you done lately?" may well be on the Illini minds Friday night—and that's when they'll find out just what kind of coach they have.

Illinois opens at Nebraska as the college basketball season swings into action.

Other major games on tap include Oregon State at 11th-ranked Arizona, Stonehill at 17th-ranked Providence and, in the Iptay Invitational Tournament at Clemson, 20th-ranked Syracuse against Austin Peay.

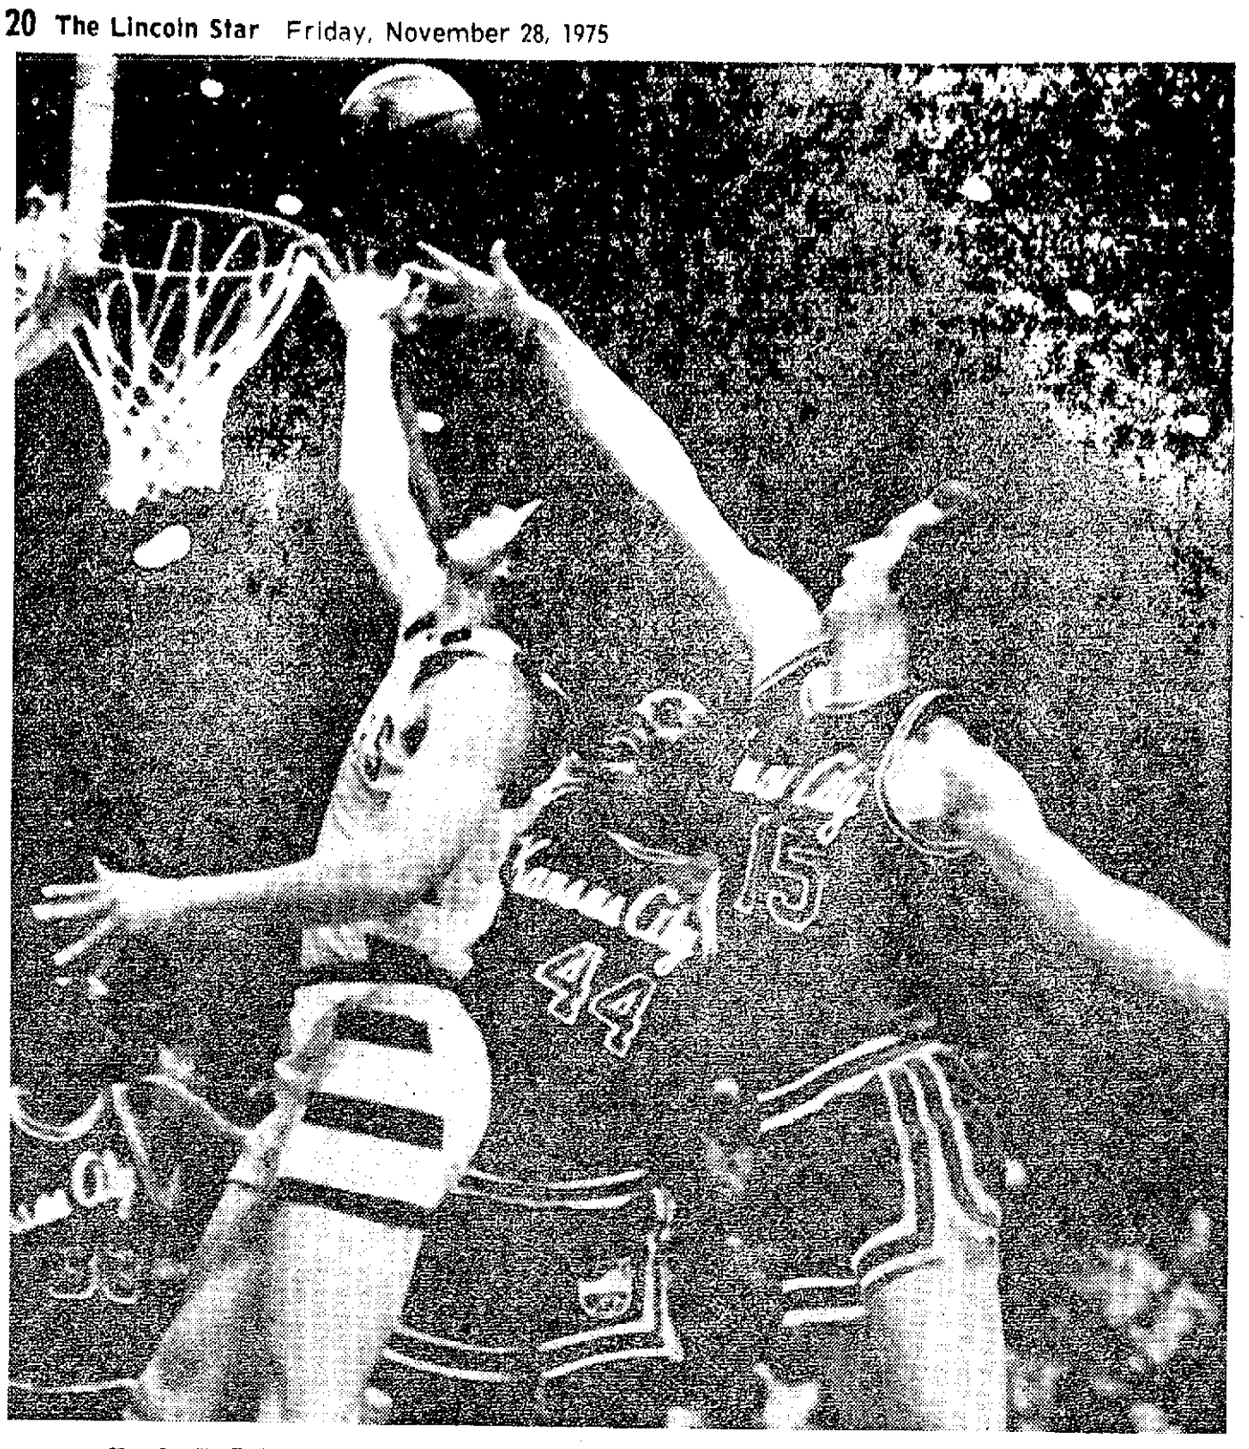

But no doubt as far as most fans are concerned, the season doesn't really get under way until Saturday night, when UCLA's Bruins, the defending national champions but ranked No. 2 in the preseason polls, visits top-ranked Indiana.

Then it'll be the Bruins' fans—or maybe the Hoosiers'—who say: "What have you done lately?"

"I expect a lot from our club," Bartow says. "I know Indiana people don't expect their team to lose a game; I also know people look at UCLA the same way."

He also wishes he didn't have to send his Bruins against Indiana as a season opener. He would have preferred to face the Hoosiers around "the first of the year," referring to the calendar, rather than the schedule.

UCLA has three starters back—but that's not too comforting, Bartow seems to feel. "We have talented preseason All-Americans. But on paper, we lost more than they did. We lost David Meyers, one of the great players in the country.

Cleveland's Bobby Smith has a shot blocked by Kansas City's Sam Lacey (44) and Scott Wedman (15).

Kings Topple Cavs

CLEVELAND (AP) — A clutch basket by rookie Bill Robinzine with 27 seconds left and 30 points by veteran Jimmy Walker Thursday night paced the Kansas City Kings to a 95-91 National Basketball Association victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Kansas City equaled its biggest previous lead of the game at 86-79 with 4:45 remaining. Cleveland tied the score at 86 and 88 before a basket and two free throws by Walker and Robinzine's basket put the game on ice at 94-91. Nate Archibald, who chipped in with 23 points, added the final Kings point on a free throw with two seconds remaining.

Bobby Smith kept the Cavaliers in the game in the second half with 18 of his 26 points. Dick Snyder added 21 for the Cavaliers.

Austin Carr, the Cleveland veteran who had been on the injured list since the preseason, was reactivated Thursday and scored two points in limited action.

Cleveland held its biggest lead of the game at 20-11, midway in he first period, but fell behind 49-44 at the half. Walker came up with 16-points and Archibald 14 points in the second half.

Georgia Bulldogs Upend Georgia Tech, 42-26

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Georgia Bulldogs capitalized on alert defensive play and the running of Glynn Harrison to jump into a 28-point halftime lead Thursday night and went on to beat strong-finishing Georgia Tech 42-26 in a nationally-televised game.

The 14th-ranked Bulldogs, who will take a 9-2 record into their Cotton Bowl date with the Southwest Conference champion on Jan. 1, broke the game open in the second period when they scored three of their six touchdowns.

The big play in the period was a 78-yard run by Harrison, who wound up with 139 yards rushing although he didn't play after the middle of the third period.

The Bulldogs' other two second-period touchdowns came on a 20-yard fumble return by Lawrence Craft and a one-yard plunge by Al Pollard four plays after Georgia had blocked a Tech punt.

The Bulldogs, favored by only three points, intercepted a Tech pass on the first offensive play of the game and took only five plays to jump into the lead with Ray Goff going the final yard. The Bulldogs had a second down at the Tech one-yard line when the first quarter ended but failed to score when Tech blocked a field goal try.

Georgia padded its lead to 42-0 in the third period with two long drives, scoring first on a 13-yard pass from Goff to mark Wilson and again on a threeyard run by Pollard.

Georgia Tech, held to just three first downs in the first three periods, finally erupted in the fourth quarter with a four-touchdown barrage, three by reserve quarterback Rudy Allen. Allen's first touchdown came on the opening play of the final period on a one-yard run, and he added touchdown runs of two and 13 yards in the closing three minutes. The Yellow Jackets' other touchdown came on an 11-yard run by freshman Eddie Lee Ivery.

Georgia placekicker Allan Leavitt, in kicking six extra points Thursday night, extended his streak to 61 consecutive points after, a new Southeastern Conference record.

Georgia Tech, the No. 2 rushing team in the nation, went into the game needing 350 yards to take over first place but fell 199 yards shy of that.

Golden State Wins In OT

Milwaukee (UPI) — Rookies Gus Williams led the Golden State Warriors back from a 31-point second quarter deficit Thursday night to help them post a 106-105 win over the Milwaukee Bucks.

The Bucks led 52-21 midway through the second quarter until the Warriors began to chip away at the lead.

The Bucks led 97-84 early in the fourth quarter when Williams came into the lineup for Charles Johnson. Then the rookie from USC scored 13 points in the fourth quarter.

Milwaukee was leading 103-97 when Williams stole an inbounds pass and made a basket and a free throw to move Golden State to within three. Then Jamaal Wilkes took an assist from Williams on an inbounds pass and moved Golden State to within one at 103-102.

Bullets Fall To New York

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Earl Monroe tossed in eight of his 20 points in the fourth quarter Thursday night to lead the New York Knicks to a 96-90 National Basketball Association victory over the slumping Washington Bullets.

The Bullets, who have dropped four in a row and six of their last seven games, led 72-71 as the final period started. But Monroe and Walt Frazier took charge as the Knicks outscored the Bullets 12-2 in the first 2½ minutes to take an 83-74 advantage.

Frazier finished as the game's top scorer with 27 points. He also grabbed 12 rebounds and had seven assists as the Knicks won their first game on the road in their last 13 tries over the last two seasons. Phil Chenier paced the Bullets with 19 points and Dave Bing added 17.

Pruitt Garners Respect

Cleveland (AP) — Hidden in the rubble of the Cleveland Browns' disastrous season is Greg Pruitt's coming of age as a pro running back.

The 5-foot-10, 190-pound scatback, regarded by some as too small to withstand the rigors of the National Football League, burst out of seeming obscurity Sunday as Cleveland won its first game in 10 tries this season.

He broke the 100-yard mark in rushing for the second straight week in Cleveland's 35-23 victory, finishing with 121 yards in 17 carries.

Pruitt also caught seven passes for 106 yards, ran back two punts for 41 yards and two kickoffs for 36 yards. He scored two touchdowns in the game and came up with one 50-yard run and a 48-yard scramble with a short pass.

The third-year pro from Oklahoma also brought the partisan Browns crowd to its feet when he grabbed a short swing pass and went 13 yards for a touchdown, strewing the bodies of Cincinnati players behind him.

That play reminded more than a few loyal Browns followers of a spectacular four-yard touchdown burst by the legendary Jim Brown 10 years ago against Dallas. That tackle-busting run by Brown still is regarded by many as the greatest single effort in the team's 25-year National Football League history.

"Mike Phipps threw the ball low and the pass kind of shielded me," the diminutive Pruitt said. "I kept going and just broke through."

"What can you say about a day like that," Coach Forrest Gregg said. "He was super. I never saw him better."

Pruitt, who joined Brown as one of only eight NFL backs ever to run for 100 yards and catch passes for 100 yards in the same game, also added momentum to his effort to become the first Cleveland player to go over 1,000 yards rushing in a season since Leroy Kelly in 1968.

His current total of 654 yards in 139 carries — a 4.7-yard average — already dwarfs his previous season rushing totals of 389 and 540 yards with four games remaining.

His season showing, and particularly his efforts in the last two games against Oakland (103 yards) and Cincinnati, have brought up the inevitable comparisons with the 6-foot-2, 225-pound Brown.

"But I'm not a power guy like he was," Pruitt said. "A little guy has got to go harder all the time. My style is to keep moving. Sometimes when I'm following a big tackle or guard, the tacklers don't even see me. I sort of hide behind them."

Nebraska Jucos Lose In Classic

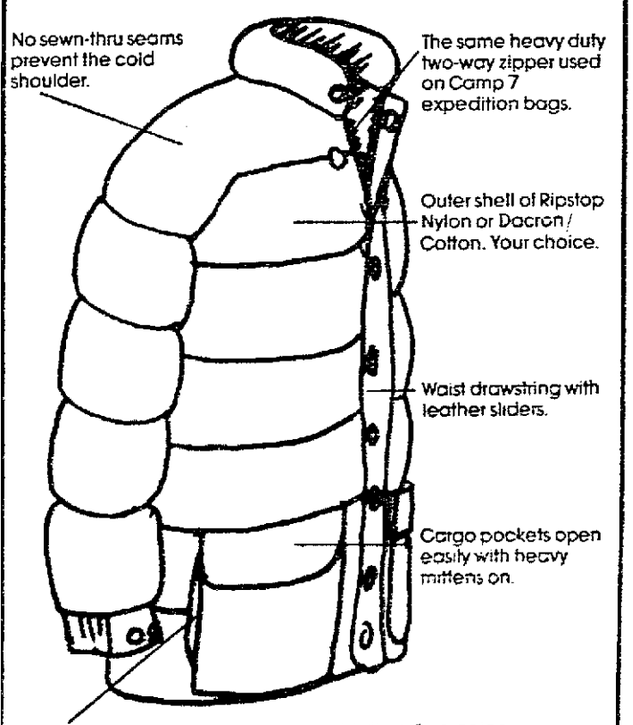

CASPER, Wyo. (AP)—Two Nebraska junior college teams were scheduled to play each other in the losers bracket Friday after dropping first games in the Thanksgiving Cage Classic Thursday night.

Southeast Community College of Fairbury lost to defending champion Western Wyoming of Rock Springs 83-78 and Nebraska Western was topped by Snow College of Utah 83-77.

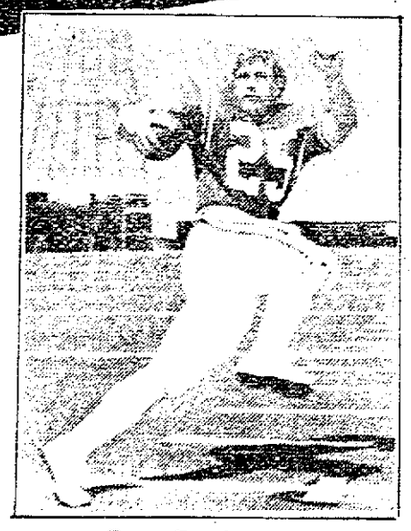

Nebraska Western was behind 44-34 at the half and was unable to catch up with the Utah team.

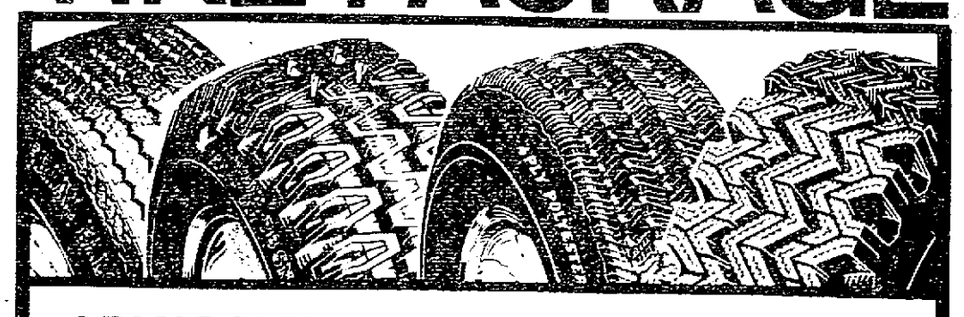

Fairbury held a 40-37 mid-game lead over the taller Spartans but scored only 8 of 18 free throws compared with 23 of 25 for Rock Springs.

Georgia Bulldogs Upend Georgia Tech, 42-26

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Georgia Bulldogs capitalized on alert defensive play and the running of Glynn Harrison to jump into a 28-point halftime lead Thursday night and went on to beat strong-finishing Georgia Tech 42-26 in a nationally-televised game.

The 14th-ranked Bulldogs, who will take a 9-2 record into their Cotton Bowl date with the Southwest Conference champion on Jan. 1, broke the game open in the second period when they scored three of their six touchdowns.

The big play in the period was a 78-yard run by Harrison, who wound up with 139 yards rushing although he didn't play after the middle of the third period.

The Bulldogs' other two second-period touchdowns came on a 20-yard fumble return by Lawrence Craft and a one-yard plunge by Al Pollard four plays after Georgia had blocked a Tech punt.

The Bulldogs, favored by only three points, intercepted a Tech pass on the first offensive play of the game and took only five plays to jump into the lead with Ray Goff going the final yard. The Bulldogs had a second down at the Tech one-yard line when the first quarter ended but failed to score when Tech blocked a field goal try.

Georgia padded its lead to 42-0 in the third period with two long drives, scoring first on a 13-yard pass from Goff to mark Wilson and again on a threeyard run by Pollard.

Georgia Tech, held to just three first downs in the first three periods, finally erupted in the fourth quarter with a four-touchdown barrage, three by reserve quarterback Rudy Allen. Allen's first touchdown came on the opening play of the final period on a one-yard run, and he added touchdown runs of two and 13 yards in the closing three minutes. The Yellow Jackets' other touchdown came on an 11-yard run by freshman Eddie Lee Ivery.

Georgia placekicker Allan Leavitt, in kicking six extra points Thursday night, extended his streak to 61 consecutive points after, a new Southeastern Conference record.

Georgia Tech, the No. 2 rushing team in the nation, went into the game needing 350 yards to take over first place but fell 199 yards shy of that.

The Bucks led 97-84 early in the fourth quarter when Williams came into the lineup for Charles Johnson. Then the rookie from USC scored 13 points in the fourth quarter.

Milwaukee was leading 103-97 when Williams stole an inbounds pass and made a basket and a free throw to move Golden State to within three. Then Jamaal Wilkes took an assist from Williams on an inbounds pass and moved Golden State to within one at 103-102.

The Bullets, who have dropped four in a row and six of their last seven games, led 72-71 as the final period started. But Monroe and Walt Frazier took charge as the Knicks outscored the Bullets 12-2 in the first 2½ minutes to take an 83-74 advantage.

Frazier finished as the game's top scorer with 27 points. He also grabbed 12 rebounds and had seven assists as the Knicks won their first game on the road in their last 13 tries over the last two seasons. Phil Chenier paced the Bullets with 19 points and Dave Bing added 17.

Pruitt Garners Respect

Cleveland (AP) — Hidden in the rubble of the Cleveland Browns' disastrous season is Greg Pruitt's coming of age as a pro running back.

The 5-foot-10, 190-pound scatback, regarded by some as too small to withstand the rigors of the National Football League, burst out of seeming obscurity Sunday as Cleveland won its first game in 10 tries this season.

He broke the 100-yard mark in rushing for the second straight week in Cleveland's 35-23 victory, finishing with 121 yards in 17 carries.

Pruitt also caught seven passes for 106 yards, ran back two punts for 41 yards and two kickoffs for 36 yards. He scored two touchdowns in the game and came up with one 50-yard run and a 48-yard scramble with a short pass.

The third-year pro from Oklahoma also brought the partisan Browns crowd to its feet when he grabbed a short swing pass and went 13 yards for a touchdown, strewing the bodies of Cincinnati players behind him.

That play reminded more than a few loyal Browns followers of a spectacular four-yard touchdown burst by the legendary Jim Brown 10 years ago against Dallas. That tackle-busting run by Brown still is regarded by many as the greatest single effort in the team's 25-year National Football League history.

"Mike Phipps threw the ball low and the pass kind of shielded me," the diminutive Pruitt said. "I kept going and just broke through."

"What can you say about a day like that," Coach Forrest Gregg said. "He was super. I never saw him better."

Pruitt, who joined Brown as one of only eight NFL backs ever to run for 100 yards and catch passes for 100 yards in the same game, also added momentum to his effort to become the first Cleveland player to go over 1,000 yards rushing in a season since Leroy Kelly in 1968.

His current total of 654 yards in 139 carries — a 4.7-yard average — already dwarfs his previous season rushing totals of 389 and 540 yards with four games remaining.

His season showing, and particularly his efforts in the last two games against Oakland (103 yards) and Cincinnati, have brought up the inevitable comparisons with the 6-foot-2, 225-pound Brown.

"But I'm not a power guy like he was," Pruitt said. "A little guy has got to go harder all the time. My style is to keep moving. Sometimes when I'm following a big tackle or guard, the tacklers don't even see me. I sort of hide behind them."

Nebraska Jucos Lose In Classic

CASPER, Wyo. (AP)—Two Nebraska junior college teams were scheduled to play each other in the losers bracket Friday after dropping first games in the Thanksgiving Cage Classic Thursday night.

Southeast Community College of Fairbury lost to defending champion Western Wyoming of Rock Springs 83-78 and Nebraska Western was topped by Snow College of Utah 83-77.

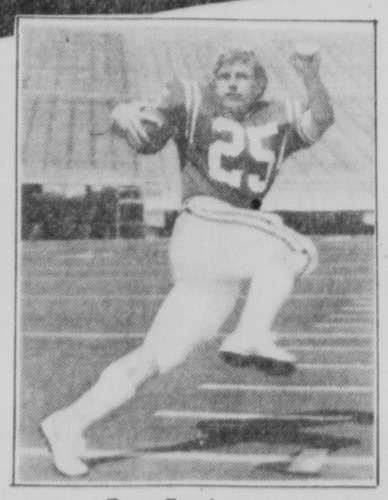

Nebraska Western was behind 44-34 at the half and was unable to catch up with the Utah team.

Fairbury held a 40-37 midgame lead over the taller Spartans but scored only 8 of 18 free throws compared with 23 of 25 for Rock Springs.

Huskers Top All Big Eight Defense Statistics

Kansas City (AP) — There are no oranges in Nebraska's future this season, but the Cornhuskers reaped just about every other fruit the Big Eight Conference had to offer.

Despite losing out on a trip to the Orange Bowl by a 35-10 loss to Oklahoma on the last week of the 1975 campaign, Nebraska dominated all four conference team defensive categories, as well as one offensive area.

The Cornhuskers, who finished with a 10-1 over-all mark and 6-1 in the Big Eight to tie Oklahoma for first and earn a visit to the Fiesta Bowl, limited opposing squads to just 120 points — 10.2 a game.

Nebraska also surrendered only 137.7 yards a contest rushing, 86.4 yards a game through the air and an average of 224.1 yards in total offense, all good enough to lead the conference.

Oklahoma was runner-up in rushing defense with 147 yards a game and total defense with a 260.5-yard average, while Missouri was second best on the passing charts with a 93.3 yards clip and Kansas was second in scoring defense, surrendering just 13.4 points a contest. The Jayhawks also led in interceptions with 18.

On offense, the honors were more spread out as four different teams each won one category.

Nebraska was the best scoring unit, ripping off 32.1 points a game, while Oklahoma was second with 30 points a contest. Kansas, led by quarterback Nolan Cromwell, dominated team rushing, with an average of 317.1 yards a game to runner-up Oklahoma's 308.6.

The Tigers of Missouri, sparked by the combination of Steve Pisarkiewicz and Henry Marshall, led all teams in passing, throwing the ball enough to average 175.2 yards a game, compared to second-place Nebraska's 158.4 pace.

UCLA Not Trojans Biggest Problem

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA tries to beat Southern California while the Trojans try not to beat themselves in a Friday night college football game that will decide who goes to the Rose Bowl.

Southern Cal has been ravaged by injuries this year, but sloppy play has bothered Coach John McKay even more.

"The trouble is we can't anticipate what we're going to do," he said. "We usually have not been stopped by our opponents this year. We have stopped ourselves.

"In O. J. Simpson's last year here (1968) we got down inside our opponent's 20-yard line 38 times and we scored 33 of those times. This year it's just about the reverse of that."

UCLA Coach Dick Vermeil agreed with McKay. "Naturally USC misses those people who are injured, but that's not the reason they've lost. They have lost because of a lack of concentration and some unlucky breaks."

If UCLA wins, it will share the Pacific-8 title with California and get the trip to Pasadena for the New Year's Day battle with Ohio State. If Southern Cal wins, California will win the conference crown outright and will go to the Rose Bowl.

Looking at the scores of UCLA and Southern Cal, it is hard to determine which team should be favored. Of UCLA's 7-2-1 record, the losses are to Ohio State and Washington.

Southern Cal was a 28-14 loser to California, a 13-10 loser to Stanford and an 8-7 loser to Washington. McKay said that if one play in each of those games had turned around, "We might even be unbeaten now."

Still, he's been displeased with the overall play of this team, a young squad which has suffered more than its share of injuries to starters.

The latest injury was to Gary Jeter, the star defensive tackle who pulled a hamstring in a Tuesday practice. He is questionable and if he doesn't play, freshman Rich Dimler will.

UCLA is rated a two-point favorite, perhaps because of the contrast in styles at quarterback. John Sciarra is the precision-honed director of UCLA's Veer-T offense.

Ricky Bell is USC's main offensive weapon—some say he is the Trojans' only weapon. He has gained 1,739 yards, just 143 shy of Ed Marinaro's NCAA one-season record. Bell's effort is 52% of USC's total offense and 64% of the rushing attack.

Merger May Bail Out St. Louis, Utah In ABA

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Imagine Ron Boone, Moses Malone and Randy Denton of the Utah Stars playing on the same American Basketball Association team with Marvin Barnes, Maurice Lucas and Freddie Lewis of the Spirits of St. Louis.

That impressive team would be assembled if the Stars and Spirits, both in financial trouble, are merged as reported in Thursday's Salt Lake Tribune. The merger reportedly is seriously being considered by team officials and ABA Commissioner Dave DeBusschere.

The story quoted authoritative sources as saying the consolidation was contingent upon local business and civic leaders pledging $600,000 by Saturday. The report said the Spirits would control 70 per cent of the combined franchise, Stars owners Bill Daniels would hold 20 per cent, and local investors would control the remaining 10 per cent. The team would operate out of Salt Lake City.

Stars General Manager Bill Orwig, reached by telephone at Park City, Utah, said he would not comment on the report. However, he said, "In my opinion, it's pure speculation." He confirmed there was a meeting but said, "We asked . . . that anything that was said would be held in confidence and I'm going to do just that."

The report quoted Daniels as saying the report was speculation ". . . and I don't want anything said that would jeopardize anything we're trying to do. We discussed several things . . . such as local participation in ownership of the Stars. We also discussed just how we're going to solve this problem."

Meanwhile, The Deseret News quoted Spirits' public relation director Mike Recht as saying, "That type of speculation is in left field. I've never heard anything like that before. If rumors were correct, we would be playing in Cincinnati right now."

Huskers Top All Big Eight Defense Statistics

Kansas City (AP) — There are no oranges in Nebraska's future this season, but the Cornhuskers reaped just about every other fruit the Big Eight Conference had to offer.

Despite losing out on a trip to the Orange Bowl by a 35-10 loss to Oklahoma on the last week of the 1975 campaign, Nebraska dominated all four conference team defensive categories, as well as one offensive area.

The Cornhuskers, who finished with a 10-1 over-all mark and 6-1 in the Big Eight to tie Oklahoma for first and earn a visit to the Fiesta Bowl, limited opposing squads to just 120 points — 10.2 a game.

Nebraska also surrendered only 137.7 yards a contest rushing, 86.4 yards a game through the air and an average of 224.1 yards in total offense, all good enough to lead the conference.

Oklahoma was runner-up in rushing defense with 147 yards a game and total defense with a 260.5-yard average, while Missouri was second best on the passing charts with a 93.3 yards clip and Kansas was second in scoring defense, surrendering just 13.4 points a contest. The Jayhawks also led in interceptions with 18.

On offense, the honors were more spread out as four different teams each won one category.

Nebraska was the best scoring unit, ripping off 32.1 points a game, while Oklahoma was second with 30 points a contest. Kansas, led by quarterback Nolan Cromwell, dominated team rushing, with an average of 317.1 yards a game to runner-up Oklahoma's 308.6.

The Tigers of Missouri, sparked by the combination of Steve Pisarkiewicz and Henry Marshall, led all teams in passing, throwing the ball enough to average 175.2 yards a game, compared to second-place Nebraska's 158.4 pace.

Raiders' Blanda Eyes 221st Tilt

Oakland (UPI) — George Blanda, the 48-year-old Oakland Raider field-goal specialist, will be playing in his 221st consecutive game Sunday against the visiting Atlanta Falcons.

Blanda, who started his career as a quarterback, kicked a 27-yarder in sudden death overtime Sunday to give the Raiders a 26-23 win over Washington after missing a 33-yarder in regulation play.

Coach John Madden sent Blanda in for the second kick with the Raiders on second down and ten to go.

"When he had that much confidence in me, giving up two downs, I knew I was going to make it," Blanda said.

Jordan Closes Auburn Career

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — There will be plenty of "lasts" for Auburn Coach Shug Jordan when his Tigers and fourth-ranked Alabama clash in the annual intrastate duel for a year's right to brag.

After 25 years as Auburn's head coach, it will be Jordan's last time to lead an Auburn squad into an arena, his last game at mammoth Legion Field and his last game against Alabama Coach Bear Bryant.

Although Saturday will mark the end of Jordan's career at Auburn, it won't be his last coaching assignment before retirement. He will coach in the All-American Bowl in Tampa, Fla., along with his successor, Doug Barfield. Barfield will be offensive coordinator in the bowl game.

Jordan says he has a lot of speaking engagements to clean up, too. He added that he is not "going to put my hat on and walk out Jan. 1. But the office will be available for Doug when we get back from Tampa."

His last game that means a lot will be on national television (ABC) Saturday, starting at 3:05 p.m. CST. And an Auburn victory would go far toward erasing the pain of a 3-5-2 season.

"A lot of people don't realize that were are 3-3 with Alabama over the last six years. And this has been a golden era for them," Jordan said.

"I would like to go out a winner and I would like to take a 4-3 advantage over Alabama for the last seven years," he added. "I think the players are working themselves up to some kind of peak."

One of those players, Tiger fullback Kenny Burks, said, "Maybe I'm crazy, but I think we will beat them. It seems to me they have been looking for somebody to beat them all year. I think we can get it together against Alabama."

Alabama has won nine straight after an opening 20-7 loss to Missouri. The Tide is headed for the Dec. 31 Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, Bryant's 17th straight post-season outing.

Temple Clobbers Villanova

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Don Bitterlich kicked for 11 points—two field goals and five extra points—to set six NCAA kicking records Thursday as Temple defeated Villanova in their traditional season finale by the largest margin ever, 41-3.

Bitterlich, a leftfooted soccer style kicker, established national collegiate records for most field goals in a season (21); most points scored in one season by kicking (95); most consecutive points after touchdown (87); points per game by a kicker in a career (7.1), field goals per game (1.9), and career kicking points (220). He also set 11 Temple records for kicking and scoring.

The game was marred by 14 turnovers including seven fumbles lost and three interceptions by Villnova.

Bitterlich put Temple on the scoreboard with a 32-yard field goal set up by Ken Bekelja who blocked a Lance Viola punt in the first period.

On the Owls' next series, Pat Carey found Jeff Stemple for 15 yards and a touchdown. The Owls stretched their lead to 13-0 shortly after the start of the second quarter when Bitterlich kicked a 34-yard field goal.

With 9:50 left in the half Temple's Rich Tabor recovered a fumble by Villanova's Brian Sikorski. Seven plays later Tom Duff carried for one yard to put Temple ahead 20-0.

Alcorn Upsets Jackson, 12-6

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Maurice Bell scored on a five-yard run in the fourth quarter Thursday to give revenge-minded Alcorn State a 12-6 upset victory over arch-rival Jackson State in a Southwestern Athletic Conference football game.

Bell's touchdown came one play after a fumble recovery by Alcorn's Larry Warren. The fumble was caused by Alcorn defensive end Lawrence Pillars' tackle of runner Joe Lowery.

Alcorn defenders, led by Pillars and linebacker Edmundo McCune, held Jackson State to 66 yards passing, minus 25 rushing and only five first downs, including two by penalty.

The defeat, which left Jackson State's record at 7-3, killed the Tigers' hopes of competing in the NCAA Division II playoffs or sharing the SWAC title.

Alcorn, which finished the season with a 6-3-1 record, avenged Jackson State's 19-13 upset victory last year, which spoiled the Braves' perfect regular-season record.

All of the scoring Thursday was set up by turnovers. Alcorn went ahead 6-0 in the second quarter on Augusta Lee's three-yard run after Earnest Jones' interception at the Jackson 36.

Jackson State recovered two fumbles in the third quarter, but the Alcorn defense held and the Tigers had to settle for field goals of 45 and 32 yards by Vernon Perry.

Cotton Bowl, Rankings Give Texas A&M Edge

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — One of the best of those old fashioned college rivalries comes up for renewal again Friday, and as it often has in the past, this one is awash in extra meaning.

Fifth-rated Texas, with its quarterback status improved, and second-ranked Texas A&M, owning thy nation's No. 1 defense, heat up again for the national television cameras and a record Kyle Field crowd of 54,000 with the Southwest Conference championship and a Cotton Bowl trip among the prizes on the shelf.

The Arkansas Razorbacks will be more than an interested spectator since they still have a shot at a league co-title and a Cotton Bowl berth if Texas A&M should win.

The Aggies, with the home field advantage and a shot at a No. 1 ranking, could own an emotional edge going into the contest.

"They're playing for a possible national championship which we're not doing," said Texas coach Darrell Royal. "But both of us have the Southwest Conference championship and the Cotton Bowl as incentives."

The condition of Longhorn quarterback Marty Akins has been the question of interest around Austin for the past two weeks — or since he suffered a knee injury while dashing around against TCU.

Akins has shown steady improvement since the injury, however, and began working out with the first team offense early this week. He is expected to be in the starting lineup.

The Aggies will put most of its hope on its defense, led by outspoken linebacker Ed Simonini with A&M's chief offensive concern being to not turn the ball over.

All sorts of possibilities remain in the conference race going into the Friday contest. They include:

If Texas wins — The Longhorns will be undisputed conference champion, will go the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1, Texas A&M will be relegated to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl against Colorado and Arkansas will go to the Liberty Bowl against USC.

If Texas A&M wins — Texas will have to be satisfied with the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl bid, with the winner of the Arkansas-Texas A&M game Dec. 6 in Little Rock going to the Cotton Bowl and the loser to the Liberty Bowl.

The scouting reports indicate A&M offense has a history of inconsistency. Thus, the game should be decided on how well the Longhorns can move against the ferocious Aggie defense.

Alcorn Upsets Jackson, 12-6

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Maurice Bell scored on a five-yard run in the fourth quarter Thursday to give revenge-minded Alcorn State a 12-6 upset victory over arch-rival Jackson State in a Southwestern Athletic Conference football game.

Bell's touchdown came one play after a fumble recovery by Alcorn's Larry Warren. The fumble was caused by Alcorn defensive end Lawrence Pillars' tackle of runner Joe Lowery.

Alcorn defenders, led by Pillars and linebacker Edmundo McCune, held Jackson State to 66 yards passing, minus 25 rushing and only five first downs, including two by penalty.

The defeat, which left Jackson State's record at 7-3, killed the Tigers' hopes of competing in the NCAA Division II playoffs or sharing the SWAC title.

Alcorn, which finished the season with a 6-3-1 record, avenged Jackson State's 19-13 upset victory last year, which spoiled the Braves' perfect regular-season record.

All of the scoring Thursday was set up by turnovers. Alcorn went ahead 6-0 in the second quarter on Augusta Lee's three-yard run after Earnest Jones' interception at the Jackson 36.

Jackson State recovered two fumbles in the third quarter, but the Alcorn defense held and the Tigers had to settle for field goals of 45 and 32 yards by Vernon Perry.

Cotton Bowl, Rankings Give Texas A&M Edge

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — One of the best of those old fashioned college rivalries comes up for renewal again Friday, and as it often has in the past, this one is awash in extra meaning.

Fifth-rated Texas, with its quarterback status improved, and second-ranked Texas A&M, owning thy nation's No. 1 defense, heat up again for the national television cameras and a record Kyle Field crowd of 54,000 with the Southwest Conference championship and a Cotton Bowl trip among the prizes on the shelf.

The Arkansas Razorbacks will be more than an interested spectator since they still have a shot at a league co-title and a Cotton Bowl berth if Texas A&M should win.

The Aggies, with the home field advantage and a shot at a No. 1 ranking, could own an emotional edge going into the contest.

"They're playing for a possible national championship which we're not doing," said Texas coach Darrell Royal. "But both of us have the Southwest Conference championship and the Cotton Bowl as incentives."

The condition of Longhorn quarterback Marty Akins has been the question of interest around Austin for the past two weeks — or since he suffered a knee injury while dashing around against TCU.

Akins has shown steady improvement since the injury, however, and began working out with the first team offense early this week. He is expected to be in the starting lineup.

The Aggies will put most of its hope on its defense, led by outspoken linebacker Ed Simonini with A&M's chief offensive concern being to not turn the ball over.

All sorts of possibilities remain in the conference race going into the Friday contest. They include:

If Texas wins — The Longhorns will be undisputed conference champion, will go the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1, Texas A&M will be relegated to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl against Colorado and Arkansas will go to the Liberty Bowl against USC.

If Texas A&M wins — Texas will have to be satisfied with the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl bid, with the winner of the Arkansas-Texas A&M game Dec. 6 in Little Rock going to the Cotton Bowl and the loser to the Liberty Bowl.

The scouting reports indicate A&M offense has a history of inconsistency. Thus, the game should be decided on how well the Longhorns can move against the ferocious Aggie defense.

Raiders' Blanda Eyes 221st Tilt

Oakland (UPI) — George Blanda, the 48-year-old Oakland Raider field-goal specialist, will be playing in his 221st consecutive game Sunday against the visiting Atlanta Falcons.

Blanda, who started his career as a quarterback, kicked a 27-yarder in sudden death overtime Sunday to give the Raiders a 26-23 win over Washington after missing a 33-yarder in regulation play.

Coach John Madden sent Blanda in for the second kick with the Raiders on second down and ten to go.

"When he had that much confidence in me, giving up two downs, I knew I was going to make it," Blanda said.

Money Not Tops For Lefty Vilas

Stockholm (AP) — Guillermo Vilas, the poetry-loving tennis star from Argentina, says that money isn't the most important thing for him when he opens defense of his Masters title here Sunday against Harold Solomon, one of two Americans in the tournament.

"Yes, I've made enough money," said the 23-year old southpaw from Mar Del Plata after one of his daily workout at the Royal Tennis Hall, site of the final major tournament after a gruelling season.

"The most important thing for me in this tournament is the honor and satisfaction to win, nothing else," he said. "Money isn't really that vital any longer."

For the eight players who qualified after struggling through Grand Prix tournaments week after week around the world, a $100,000 purse is at stake in the Masters with $40,000 to the winner and $20,000 to the runnerup.

Vilas, who often emphasizes that friendship with other players and the pleasure of playing the game means most to him, has won more money than any other player on the International Lawn Tennis Federation circuit this year.

He got a $100,000 bonus for winning the Grand Prix for the second straight year, and with all the prize money from tournaments he has cashed in more than $200,000 with one major event to go.

Vilas and Raul Ramirez of Mexico, the only other Latin American who qualified, arrived early this week to practice on the slow artificial surface being used by the Masters for the first time.

"It will be tougher to win on this surface than on the grass at Kooyong last year. Some players had a big advantage in Melbourne. It will be more fair now," said Vilas, who has been training with his close friend Bjorn Borg, Sweden's hope in the Masters.

After the Masters last year, when Vilas beat three-time winner Ilie Nastase of Romania in the final, Vilas was ordered off the court for four months by his doctor because of stomach trouble. That meant he had to skip the World Championship of Tennis circuit.

"All this travel and tournament play takes a lot out of you. I've got pretty bad nerves, and I can't tell you if I'm more nervous than other players," he said.

It took him a couple of weeks to get in shape again. But then he got back on the winning trail and on top in the Grand Prix standings.

He won the Dutch Open and the South American Championships and did very well in some of the major tournaments, reaching the final of the French Open only to lose to Borg in straight sets. He also reached the semifinals in both the Italian and U.S. Open championships and the quarter-finals at Wimbledon.

But three weeks ago, Vilas was in Stockholm for the Stockholm Open, billed as the world's biggest indoor tournament. He failed badly on the fast court.

Creighton Opens Slate With Drake

Des Moines (UPI) — Drake opens its 1975-76 basketball season Friday night with a game at Creighton, a team second-year coach Bob Ortegel says will provide a "good test" for his young club.

Ortegel had a successful debut as Drake's coach last year, leading the team to a 19-10 record and the championship of the National Commissioner's Invitational Tournament.

Most of the scoring and rebounding punch from that team has left, but Ortegel feels he has a good nucleus to start with.

Heading the returnees is junior forward Ken Harris, who played well down the stretch last season and averaged 9.9 points a game. He'll start Friday night along with forward Ray Watson, center Paul Mellen and guard Napoleon Gaither.

Ortegel said his other guard will be either freshman Wayne Kreklow or sophomore Ron Clarkson.

Terry Benka, who started last year and led the team in assists, would have been the starter but he broke his foot in an intrasquad game and will be sidelined until January.

"Creighton is a good opener for us," Ortegel said. "They'll be a good test for our kids and give us a good opportunity to see how they respond."

Creighton, 20-7 last year, has three starters back — Cornell Smith, Daryl Heeke and Rick Apke. The two other who will start Friday night — Robert Scrutchens and Tim McConnell — both saw considerable action last season.

Creighton edged Drake 71-70 last year on a 30-foot shot at the buzzer.

Johnson-Brock's Ilsa Doesn't Mind Last Place

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Johnson — She can't remember whether her placing was 56th or 57th, but a smiling Ilsa Bednar recalls one thing about the Syracuse cross-country invitational:

"There was one boy who finished behind me. He hurt his leg."

Two last places and two next-to-lasts were the total season showing for the slight 15-year-old Johnson-Brock sophomore. Yet some say she was a winner all the way.

First, she had to go against the strong foe of precedent. Encountering a Nebraska School Activities Assn. (NSAA) bylaw against mixed-sex competition, she appealed to U.S. District Court and sprinted away with a temporary restraining order which added up to "full speed ahead."

"Sixth Man"

Just staying out for the demanding sport was another victory. The "sixth man" on J-B's six-member team, the 5-5 110-pounder ran in only four meets, since entries are often limited to five per school.

Going against dozens of muscular males each time she ran, Ilsa would have been in the embarrassing spotlight even without the lawsuit publicity. But she wasn't one to quit, either on or off the field.

"In making a test case of the issue, the Nebraska Civil Liberties Union warned that it wouldn't be easy," said the girl's mother, Carolyn Bednar. "She never dropped out. She was wretchedly sick with the flu the day before one meet, for instance, but insisted on running anyway and she finished."

Though moderately successful as a distance runner in girls' track, Ilsa never had illusions about outdoing the boys in cross-country. And she had no notion of becoming a test case when routinely querying Coach John Schulze for a tryout.

"My main reason for going out was that I'm not very good in volleyball and hoped to be better in running," said the girl, whose only hint of masculinity is her letter jacket. Soft-spoken and scholarly, she is active in music and dramatics and also handles a morning newspaper route.

School officials had no personal objections to her competing, but were reminded of the NSAA regulation. The Civil Liberties Union then stepped in, contending Ilsa's constitutional rights were being violated.

The temporary order of U.S. District Judge Warren Urbom took note of Ilsa's situation only, leaving other ramifications of boy-girl sports competition for later examination. This is expected at an upcoming hearing on a permanent injunction.

No Regrets

Both Ilsa and her mother, a Greenwood native who was also listed as a plaintiff, said they don't regret the lawsuit despite all its involvement. Their hope is that "more doors may be opened for more girls in the state."

"It used to be that certain things were for the boys and others for girls," said Mrs. Bednar, who has three other daughters and a son. "Nobody ever asked questions and I believe that was wrong."

Ilsa Bednar . . . she who runs last sometimes runs best.

OLD PAINE HOUSE . . . built at 1102 First Ave. in Nebraska City by Robert Paine 96 years ago.

Home's Clock

NEW OWNERS . . . John and Mimi Steinheider.

Couple Tackles Restoration

Nebraska City — A stately 96-year-old house on First Avenue has new occupants but its original "character" is being restored.

The home, built in 1897 by Robert Paine, stayed in the Paine family until John and Mimi Steinheider bought it three years ago.

The Steinheiders began their remodeling in the kitchen, which had no cupboards and only one electrical outlet. What they thought was going to be a quick job turned into an eight-month project.

"We had to rewire the entire first floor," Mrs. Steinheider said.

Then they tackled the job of stripping the pantry cupboards. Six layers of very secure paint resisted their efforts.

"We tried many kinds of strippers and finally used a commercial type of gymnasium floor stripper," Mrs. Steinheider said.

Once the old paint and varnish was off, they used a wash and then sanded with four different weights of sandpaper. Next came the stain and sealer, some more sanding, touch-up repairs with stained woodworking putty and the final varnish.

The pantry window was especially difficult because the sash had to be removed. "Such a project can be frustrating — you sometimes don't have enough physical energy to go around," Mrs. Steinheider said. The remaining 55 windows in the house may have to wait a while.

The Steinheiders discovered that one project often leads to another. All those chemicals left the kitchen and pantry's linoleum floors ruined, so they had to rip them up.

"We thought we wanted the natural plank wood floors," Mrs. Steinheider said, but with all the cabinets the wood floor became a "bit overpowering."

So they had kitchen carpeting in a floral pattern installed.

The dining room required a new ceiling, the walls had to be treated for moisture before repapering and the floors needed sanding.

Although decorative wallpaper was traditionally above a dining room's plate rack, the Steinheiders reversed the arrangement, figuring the plain background would set off their antique, hand-painted plates better.

The woodwork, which Mrs. Steinheider called "tolerable," needed only a light wash and an application of linseed oil and beeswax.

Somewhere along the way the original Tiffany lamps and chandelier had been sold, so the young couple ordered reproductions.

The major problem in the bathroom was cracking tile.

"I tried filling and painting, but nothing seemed to cover the cracks," Mrs. Steinheider said, so she painted vines with little flowers and leaves along the cracks, making them practically impossible to detect.

"I was an elementary school teacher," she said, "and they teach you to draw things like that."

Pointing to a small, well-lighted room off the living room, the petite mother called it "my sanity keeper."

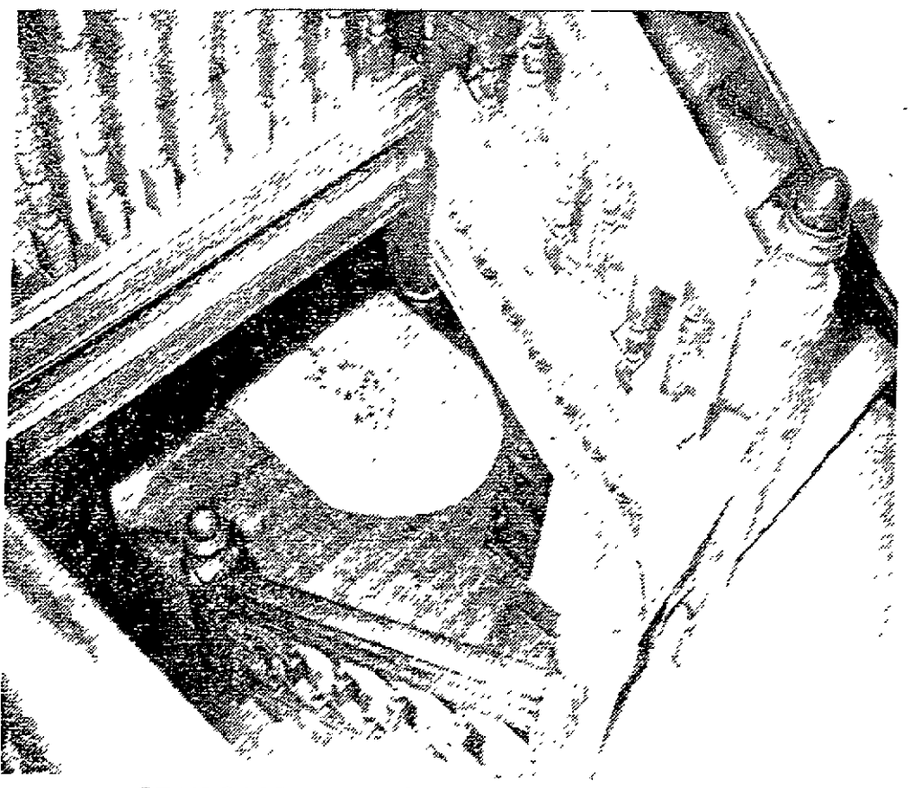

The children, Matt, who is almost 2, and Ann, one in January, spend many hours in the playroom with their toys, an old upright piano, a cane rocker and a couch.

Mrs. Steinheider admits that caring for the children has slowed restoration of the old house, but they've also provided inspiration for further projects.

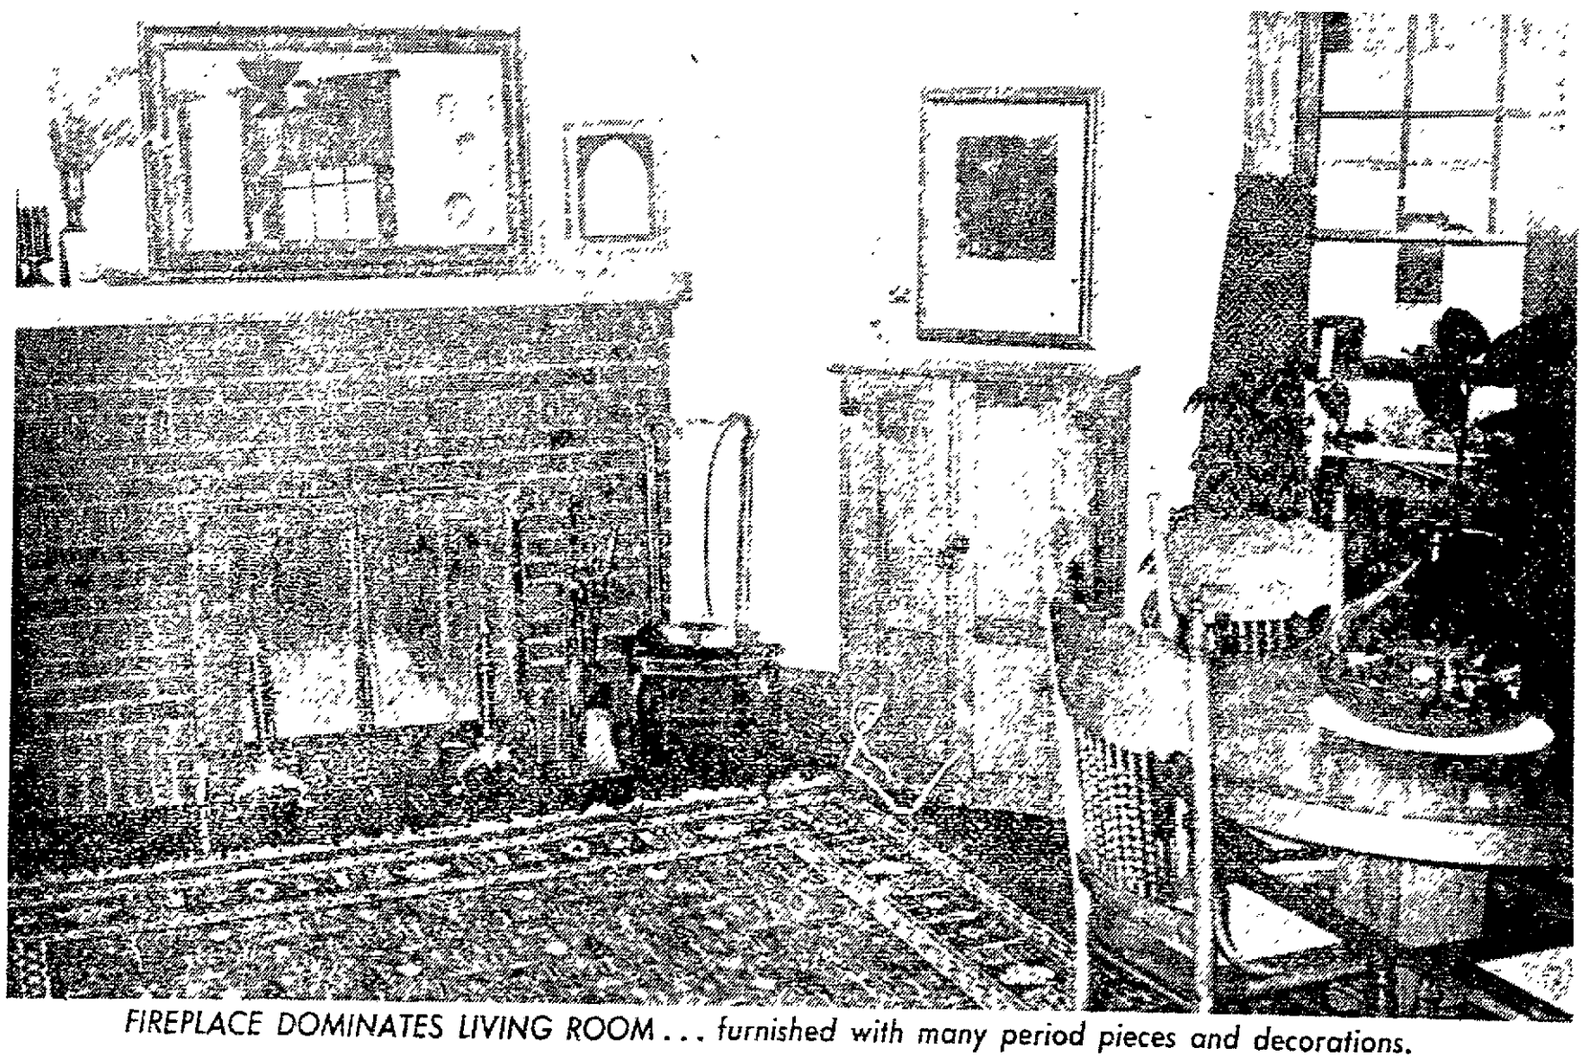

For example, the attic. "I can already visualize plays and little performances up there when the children get older," she said.

FRUIT CAN LABELS . . . add old-time touch to tile.

KITCHEN HAS ALL THE CONVENIENCES NOW . . . yet still retains something of original character.

With Expert Assistance

If the woodwork is so smooth it feels like plastic, there's a good chance Ralph and Louise Reed finished it.

But don't believe Mrs. Reed when she says all it takes is "a little common sense and thinking to know what you're doing."

It takes experience too, and the Reeds have more than 30 years of it in the decorating business around Nebraska City.

During those years the Reeds have satisfied countless customers. Listen to Mimi Steinheider:

"If it hadn't been for Ralph and Louise Reed, I think we'd have given up before we hardly got started."

The Reeds helped the Steinheiders as they began restoring their 96-year-old house, in the process revealing a few of the tricks that make the difference between smooth and rough finishes.

Mrs. Steinheider, pointing to the beautifully finished dining room floor, said she was amazed to learn what the Reeds' secret was.

The Reed process involves removing varnish with a power floor sander and saving the sandings.

After brushing stained floor filling over only small areas at a time, the Reeds scatter the sandings and rub the area with a gunnysack in a circular motion.

They then sweep the sawdust off the floor across the grain and let it set overnight.

The final steps include coating with two layers of sanding sealer, sanding again, vacuuming off the residue and finishing with a low-gloss varnish.

The secret to finishing any wood to a "plastic-like" smoothness is the vacuuming, according to Mrs. Reed.

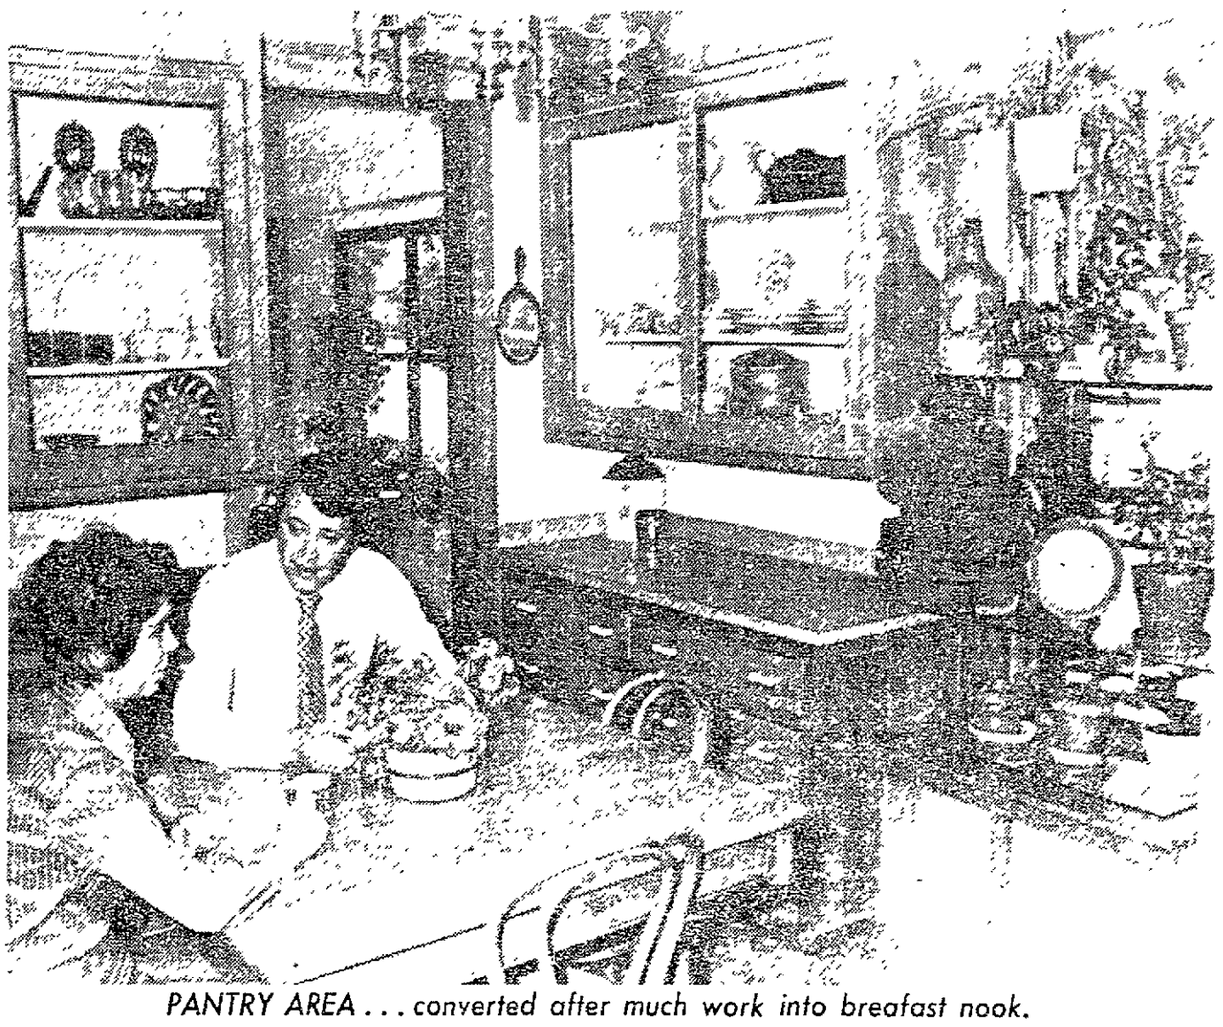

"Don't use a rag because you're going to get lint from the cloth," she said, noting that the vacuum picks up the fine particles that otherwise mar the finish.

"When you have lint flying in the air, the wood will feel like sandpaper," Mrs. Reed warned.

To refinish painted woodwork, the Reeds use a stripper and Paeso wash, sanding the area with varying weights of sandpaper and vacuuming to remove all stripped paint and varnish.

At least two coats of sanding sealer are then applied.

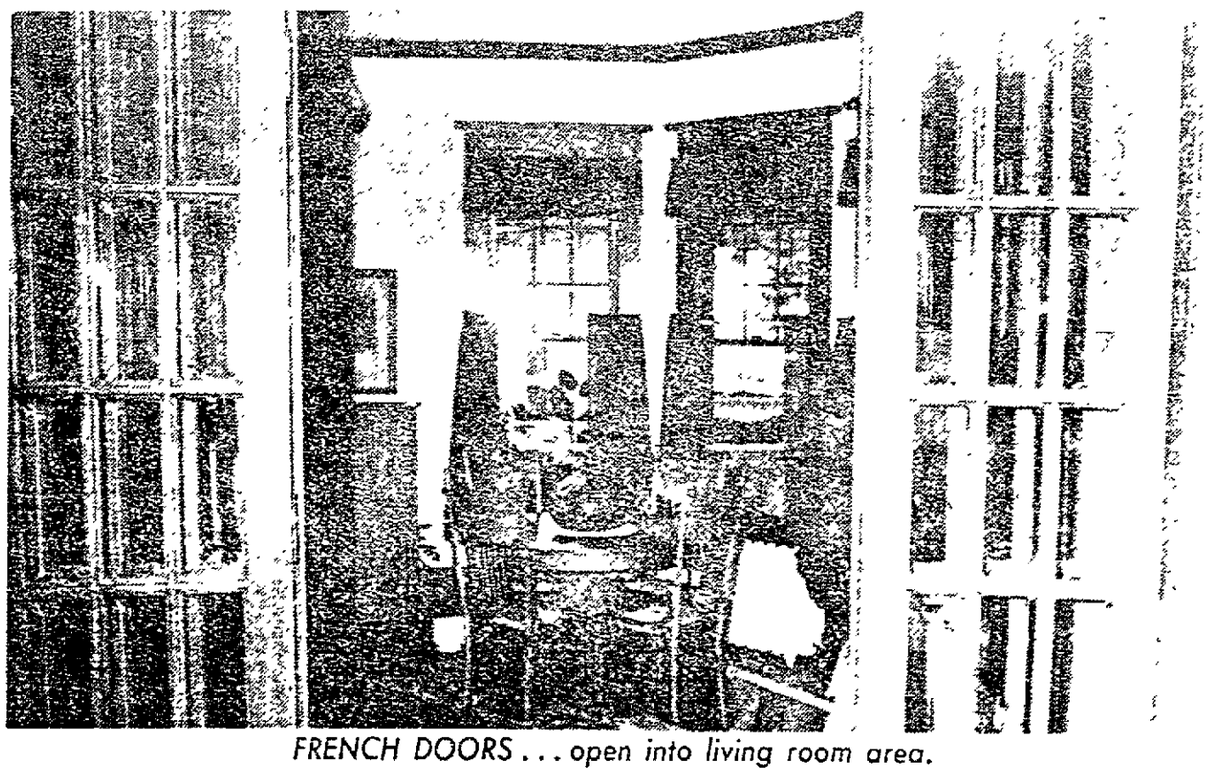

"The more you build it up, the nicer the finish."

Omaha Woman, Son Won't Fight Charges

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha woman and her son have entered pleas of no contest to drug charges resulting from a September raid by police.

Mrs Dorothy Mae Torrence, 40, and her son, Phillip Leon Goodman, 24, entered the pleas before District Judge John T. Grant No contest pleas are considered guilty pleas for sentencing purposes

Mrs. Torrence was charged with possessing heroin with intent to sell She is the wife of Billy Rae Torrence, a convicted heroin supplier now in prison Goodman was charged with possessing marijuana with intent to sell

Deputy County Attorney Samuel Cooper said other charges against the two stemming from the raid will not be pressed in exchange for the pleas Judge Grant deferred sentencing and both were returned to jail in lieu of bonds totaling $200,000

Cooper said charges against a woman also arrested in the raid, Cheryl C. Hemphill, 19, of Omaha, was dismissed at a preliminary hearing because evidence showed she was not involved in any drug business

Omaha Woman, Son Won't Fight Charges

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha woman and her son have entered pleas of no contest to drug charges resulting from a September raid by police.

Mrs. Dorothy Mae Torrence, 40, and her son, Phillip Leon Goodman, 24, entered the pleas before District Judge John T. Grant. No contest pleas are considered guilty pleas for sentencing purposes.

Mrs. Torrence was charged with possessing heroin with intent to sell. She is the wife of Billy Rae Torrence, a convicted heroin supplier now in prison. Goodman was charged with possessing marijuana with intent to sell.

Deputy County Attorney Samuel Cooper said other charges aginst the two stemming from the raid will not be pressed in exchange for the pleas. Judge Grant deferred sentencing and both were returned to jail in lieu of bonds totaling $200,000.

Cooper said charges against a woman also arrested in the raid, Cheryl C. Hemphill, 19, of Omaha, was dismissed at a preliminary hearing because evidence showed she was not involved in any drug business.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
